Contents: Of the newe landes and of ye people founde by the messengers of the kynge of Portyngale, named Emanuel; Of the x dyuers nacyons crystened; Of Pope Iohn and his landes and of the costely keyes and wonders molodyes that in that lande is; Life and labours of Richard Eden.—A treatyse of the newe India, with other new founde landes and ilandes, as well eastwarde as westwarde, as they are knowen and found in these oure dayes, by Sebastian Münster.—The decades of the Newe Worlde, or West India, conteynyng the nauigations and conquestes of the Spanyardes, with the description of the moste ryche and large landes and ilandes lately founde in the west ocean perteynyng to the inheritaunce of the kinges of Spayne, by P. M. d'Anghiera.

BURKE, Edmund.

Account of the European settlements in America. 2v.

1757.r970 B91

"A very noteworthy account, not indeed written throughout by, but receiving its final revision from, one of the most eminent English men of letters. It describes the American colonies of six European nations from 1492 to about 1750; and was evidently undertaken in consequence of the Seven Years' War....Shows wide knowledge, unusual judgment, a somewhat too slight tolerance for other nations than the English, and, here and there, Edmund Burke's resplendent English style...Was issued anonymously, and is not usually included in Burke's collected works." Larned's Literature of American history.

DE ROO, P.

History of America before Columbus, according to documents and approved authors. 2v. 1900.....970 D44 v.1. American aborigines.

v.2. European immigrants.

Bibliography, v.1, p.9-23.

While this is primarily a religious history of America during that early period, the author has also in his researches noted the important circumstances, events and institutions of the social and political life of the American tribes before 1492.

"No previous work has disclosed to the general reader so many disquisitions on the possible Christianization of the Western world before Columbus, nor made so full a compilation of the many opinions on this vexed question." Dial, 1901.

PAYNE, Edward John.

History of the New World called America. v.1-2.

1892-99.970 P33

No more published. The author died in Dec. 1904, leaving the work unfinished.

"In the first part [of v.1] the author traces the development of geographical knowledge and the rise of the spirit of discovery, and gives an account of the principal voyages down to Verrazano, 1524. His point of view is suggestive and stimulating. His narrative, however, is in many places behind the present state of knowledge, and cannot be relied upon in its statements of fact. The second part [of v.1] is an investigation into the physical basis of primitive American culture, and accounts for its inferiority to and divergence from European culture by the nature of its food supply and the lack of useful domestic animals. The second volume...continues this discussion and is mainly devoted to the primitive culture and history of Mexico." Larned's Literature of American history.

UNITED STATES—Commission to the Columbian historical exposition, Madrid, 1892-93.

Report, with special papers. 1895.....r970 U25

Special papers: Catalogue and description of the collection of pictures representing various places identified with the life of Columbus.—Catalogue of the Hemenway collection, by J. W. Fewkes.—Ancient Mexican feather work, by Zelia Nuttall.—Ancient Central and South American pottery, by Walter Hough.—Chipped stone implements, by H. C. Mercer.

WINSOR, Justin, ed.

Narrative and critical history of America. 8v. 1884-89..qr970 W79 v.1. Aboriginal America.

v.2. Spanish explorations and settlements in America from the 15th to the 17th century.

v.3. English explorations and settlements in North America, 1497-1689.

v.4. French explorations and settlements in North America, and those of the Portuguese, Dutch and Swedes, 1500-1700.

v.5. English and French in North America, 1689-1763.

v.6-7. United States of North America.

v.8. Later history of British, Spanish and Portuguese America.

"Composed of critical essays by different writers covering American history in detail to the adoption of the Constitution and briefly to about 1850. The most valuable parts of the work are the critical essays on the sources and Mr. Winsor's notes, which together form an exhaustive and generally critical account of the printed and manuscript sources and of the secondary authorities on American history. The volumes are rich in facsimiles of maps, historical illustrations, and portraits. For the student it is the most useful and valuable work on American history that he can possess." Larned's Literature of American history.

Children's stories in American history. 1895.....j970 W93

913.7 Antiquities

AMERICAN ANTIQUARIAN SOCIETY.

Archæologia Americana; transactions and collections. v.1, v.1. Origin of the American antiquarian society.—Archæologia Americana.

3-4. 1820-60.....r913.7 A51

v.3. Records of the Company of the Massachusetts Bay, to the embarkation of Winthrop and his associates for New England.—The diaries of John Hull, mint-master and treasurer of the colony of Massachusetts Bay.—Memoir of Hon. Thomas Lindall Winthrop, second president of the American antiquarian society.—Memoir of Hon. John Davis, fourth president of the society.—Officers and members of the society.

v.4. Original documents from the State-paper office, London, and the British museum; illustrating the history of Sir Walter Raleigh's first American colony, and the colony at Jamestown.—"A discourse of Virginia," by Edward Maria Wingfield, the first president of the colony; now first printed from the original ms. in the Lambeth library.—New England's rarities discovered, by John Josselyn, gent.—Narrative of a voyage to Spitzbergen in the year 1613, at the charge of the fellowship of English merchants for the discovery of new trades, commonly called the Muscovy company, with a description of the country and the operations of the whale-fishery; now first printed from the original ms.—APPENDIX: Life of Sir Ralph Lane.—Notice of Samuel Jennison, esq., late treasurer of the American antiquarian society.

BALDWIN, John Denison.

Ancient America, in notes on American archæology.

1872.913.7 B19

"In its day this volume, prepared by a journalist with an arm-chair interest in the subject, was practically the only treatise on American archæology that ventured to cover the entire field. In the light of modern scientific research, there is almost nothing to commend it to the student." Larned's Literature of American history.

BRINTON, Daniel Garrison.

Essays of an Americanist. 1890.....913.7 B75

Contents: Ethnologic and archæologic.—Mythology and folk lore.—Graphic systems and literature.—Linguistic.

On American origins.

"Dr. Brinton's activity has proved very useful in raising new Americanistic problems or presenting the old in a novel light, whatever the real value of his own articles, theories and publications may be." Nation, 1890.

CHARNAY, Désiré.

Ancient cities of the New World; being voyages and explorations in Mexico and Central America, 1857-1882; tr. fr. the French by J. Gonino and H. S. Conant.

1888.....913.7 C38

"Written somewhat in the form of a journal. The descriptions of modern Mexicans and Indians make it entertaining reading and do not detract from the value of the scientific part. The author has much to say about ancient Mexico and quotes frequently from the early Spanish writers. The important part of the book is the account of explorations among the famous ruins, as a result of which the theory of a Toltec civilization is strongly advocated." Larned's Literature of American history.

JONES, George, called Count Johannes.

History of ancient America anterior to the time of Columbus, proving the identity of the aborigines with the Tyrians and Israelites, and the introduction of Christianity by St. Thomas. v.1. 1843.....913.7 J39 v.1. Tyrian æra.

No more published.

MOOREHEAD, Warren King, and others.

Prehistoric implements; a description of the ornaments, utensils and implements of pre-Columbian man in America. 1900.....913.7 M87

Contains several bibliographies.

"Reference-book for collectors, not a hand-book for the professional archæologist...A well-digested, connected and symmetrical presentation of the same material by one person would have been far more satisfactory." Dial, 1901.

Illustrations of about 3,000 specimens are given.

Pre-historic America; tr. by N. d'Anvers. 1895.....913.7 N11

"Embodies the results of the latest researches." C. K. Adams.

"There is no question that the compiler amassed a great deal of valuable material from many excellent sources, but a considerable body of unauthoritative matter is also included. It should therefore be read with discriminating care." Larned's Literature of American history.

PEET, Stephen Denison.

Prehistoric America. v.1-5. 1892-1905. (Antiquarian library.)913.7 P36

v.1. Mound builders.

v.2. Emblematic mounds and animal effigies.

v.3. Cliff dwellers and Pueblos.

v.4. Ancient monuments and ruined cities; or, Beginnings of architecture.

v.5. Myths and symbols; or, Aboriginal religions in America.
 "Made up largely of matter reprinted from The American antiquarian, of which magazine the author is editor. The results of limited personal field work, conducted at such times as the author's ministerial duties permitted, are included, but in the main the contents embrace the results of the researches of others (some of them of questionable authority), poorly digested and presented in unattractive style...Not highly regarded by scientific men." Larned's Literature of American history.

RAFN, Karl Christian.

Supplement to the Antiquitates Americanæ. 1841.....r973.1 R14
 Bound with his "Mémoire sur la découverte de l'Amérique au dixième siècle."

THOMAS, Cyrus.

Introduction to the study of North American archaeology.

1898.....913.7 T37
 "By an authority of wide experience in active field investigation. As an 'Introduction' it is the best treatise on North American archaeology thus far presented [1902]." Larned's Literature of American history.

917 Description and travel

SHALER, Nathaniel Southgate.

Story of our continent. 1894.....j917 S52

A plain and simple treatment of the physiography and the geological history of North America. Elementary and descriptive in style. Its object is to show how the present and past physical features of the continent have been successively developed. It shows the connection between the geology and the geography of the United States, and the causes which have helped to determine regional and national development. Adapted to the beginner. May serve as introduction to the author's "Nature and man in America," (573.4 S52).

"Authorities quoted," v.1, p.17-49.

"The author had access to a vast number of early Spanish works relating to the condition of the early inhabitants of Mexico and the Pacific slopes; and he has not only used these with indefatigable industry, but he has also availed himself of such results as could come from recent observation of the native races. The production shows learning and good judgment, as well as unwearied research." C. K. Adams.

BEACH, William Wallace, ed.

Indian miscellany; containing papers on the history, antiquities, arts, languages, religions, traditions and superstitions of the American aborigines, with descriptions of their domestic life, incidents of border warfare, missionary relations. 1877.....r970.1 B34

BEATTY, Charles.

Journal of a two months tour with a view of promoting religion among the frontier inhabitants of Pennsylvania and of introducing Christianity among the Indians to the westward of the Allegheny mountains. 1768....r970.1 B345
With newspaper clippings and annotations by Isaac Craig.
The original edition, very rare. Contains many notes relating to the manners and customs of the Delaware Indians, whom from certain similar customs and some traditions among them, the author conjectures to be the descendants of the ten lost tribes of Israel.

BRINE, Lindesay.

Travels amongst American Indians, their ancient earthworks and temples, including a journey in Guatemala, Mexico and Yucatan, and a visit to the ruins of Patinamit, Utatlan, Palenque and Uxmal. 1894.....r970.1 B75
"Contains much that is trivial, and but little concerning the 'American Indians, their ancient earthworks and temples,' that is not found in... works of greater authority. As a narrative of adventures it is interesting; it is not without literary merit, and in the main it is instructive to the general reader." Larned's Literature of American history.

BROOKS, Elbridge Streeter.

Story of the American Indian. 1887.....970.1 B77

"Best 100 books on the American Indian," p.301-308.

The same. 1887.....j970.1 B77

"His opening chapter on 'The ancient American' contains so many errors of fact as to make it misleading to the layman; but, while the remainder of the book is not free from blemish, it covers the scope for which it was designed in a manner calculated to warrant commendation." Larned's Literature of American history.

BROWNELL, Charles De Wolf.

Indian races of North and South America. 1857.....r970.1 B81
History, customs, mythology and religion of the leading tribes.

CATLIN, George.

Catlin's notes of eight years' travels and residence in

1848.r970.1 C28c

In 1839 Catlin went abroad to exhibit the large collection of Indian costumes, weapons and pictures of Indians and their life which he had spent years in making in the far West. He describes his many interesting and amusing experiences, especially in connection with parties of Indians whom he piloted about, acting as guide and showman.

Last rambles amongst the Indians of the Rocky mountains and the Andes. 1867.r970.1 C28l

"Practically the second volume of Life amongst the Indians. It is a good book of adventure entertainingly written from the author's own experiences. It gives the story of his wanderings in South America and western North America. Information about the peoples of the countries visited is given incidentally." Larned's Literature of American history.

Letters and notes on the manners, customs and condition of the North American Indians. 2v. 1841.qr970.1 C28

"Mr. Catlin visited forty-eight tribes in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys and on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains during eight years' travels. His object was to paint portraits of men and women in every tribe, together with views of villages, games, etc. The two volumes...form an unusually entertaining narrative of travels in an almost unknown region, and at the same time are of great value in their descriptions of Indian life. Over three hundred illustrations from Catlin's original paintings accompany the text." Larned's Literature of American history.

DELLENBAUGH, Frederick Samuel.

North-Americans of yesterday; a comparative study of North-American Indian life, customs and products on the theory of the ethnic unity of the race. 1901.970.1 D41

ica. 2v. 1860.r970.1 D71

v.1. Ancient emigrations.—American origins.—Descriptions.—Antiquities.

v.2. Origin of the Americans.—Character of the Indians.—Indian languages.—Festivals and industry.—Customs of the Indians.—Indian religions.

"The Abbé Domenech (1825-1886), of questionable reputation for veracity, was private chaplain to Maximilian during the latter's residence in Mexico...The greater part of the two volumes is in reality a compilation from other works. The plates are...far from accurate." Larned's Literature of American history.

DRAKE, Francis Samuel.

Indian history for young folks. 1884.j970.1 D78

DRAKE, Samuel Gardner.

Biography and history of the Indians of North America.

"Very excellent and carefully compiled...The result of a lifetime of labor, by one who spared no pains to be...faithful to the completeness and truthfulness of history." Field's Indian bibliography.

ELLIS, George Edward.

Red man and white man in North America. 1882.....r970.1 E53

Contents: General survey.—Spanish discoverers and invaders.—The Indian; his origin, numbers, person and character.—The Indian in his condition, resources and surroundings.—Indian tenure of land as viewed by European invaders and colonists.—The French and the Indians.—Colonial relations with the Indians.—Missionary efforts among the Indians.—Relations of Great Britain with the Indians.—The United States government and the Indians.—Military and peace policy with the Indians.—The Indians under civilization.

FLINT, Timothy.

Indian wars of the west; containing biographical sketches of pioneers, with a view of the character, manners, monuments and antiquities of the western Indians.

1833.r970.1 F64

Not what we now call the West. Accounts of the settlement of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and other states of the Mississippi valley.

FORCE, Gen. Manning Ferguson.

Some early notices of the Indians of Ohio; [and] To what race did the Mound builders belong? 1879.....r551.79 C55

Bound with Claypole's "Lake age in Ohio."

First part of this memoir gives valuable information on the early aborigines of Ohio, derived from the best of the narratives of its early explorers. The second part is still in consonance with modern scientific conclusions regarding the archæology of the Mississippi region. Adapted from Larned's Literature of American history.

FROST, John.

Border wars of the west; the frontier wars of Pennsylvania, Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Tennessee and Wisconsin, and individual adventures among the Indians. 1856.....r970.1 F96

"The author has had free recourse to the local histories of the able writers, among them, Hildreth, Perkins, McClung, Drake and others, who have written on the subject. The host of engravings that illustrate the book, seem to have been executed by the aborigines themselves. This is one of a numerous class of fictitious works of little merit, which aimed to attract attention, by assuming a title giving an air of veracity to the narratives." Thomson's Bibliography of Ohio.

FURTHER accompt of the progresse of the gospel amongst the Indians in New-England. 1865. (Sabin's reprints.).....r970.1 F99

Reprint of the edition of 1659.

Title of reprint reads "Further manifestation of the progress of the gospel among the Indians in New England."

HUMFREVILLE, James Lee.

Twenty years among our hostile Indians. 1899.....970.1 H92
Author, a captain of United States cavalry, had unusual opportunities for studying the life and character of our wild Indians. He shows them in an unfavorable light.

HUNTER, John Dunn.

Memoirs of a captivity among the Indians of North America. 1823.....r970.1 H94

Another edition has the title "Manners and customs of several Indian tribes located west of the Mississippi."

Hunter (1798?-1827), according to his own narrative, was, when an infant, taken captive by the Kickapoo Indians and adopted into the family of one of the principal warriors. His published account of his captivity was at first received with much favor, but afterward denounced as an imposture. Adapted from Appletons' cyclopædia of American biography.

IRVING, John Treat.

Indian sketches taken during an expedition to the Pawnee and other tribes of American Indians. 2v. in 1. 1835....r970.1 I28
"This object of this expedition was of a higher humanitarian order than those which the government has usually organized for Indian affairs ...Mr. Irving accompanied the expedition, and his work affords us many interesting incidents of savage life. The work abounds in such fragments of the traditions, history and peculiarities of the Indian tribes as the opportunity offered the author." Field's Indian bibliography.

JOHNSTON, Charles, b. 1768.

Narrative of the incidents attending the capture, detention and ransom of Charles Johnston of Virginia, made prisoner by the Indians, 1790, [with] sketches of Indian character and manners. 1827.....r970.1 J36

JONES, David.

Journal of two visits made to some nations of Indians on the west side of the Ohio, 1772 and 1773, with a biog- raphical notice of the author by H. G. Jones. 1865.

 (Sabin's reprints.).....r970.1 J39
 "Form an interesting account of the manners, customs, language and religious belief of a people now almost extinct." Preface.

LONG, John.

- Voyages and travels of an Indian interpreter and trader; describing the manners and customs of the North American Indians, with an account of the posts on the St. Laurence, Lake Ontario, &c., to which is added a vocabulary of the Chippeway language. 1791.....qr970.1 L82
The same; [reprinted]. 1904. (In Thwaites's Early western travels, 1748-1846, v.2.).....r917.8 T43 v.2
 "Author engaged in the service of the Hudson's Bay Company in 1768, and journeyed as a fur trader among the Indians of Canada for nineteen years. His knowledge of the character, customs, and domestic life of Indians was therefore the most thorough and intimate. His relations are characterized by candor and intelligence, tinged a little with the disappointments, which most of the servants of the Company who have written accounts of their experiences, seem to have suffered." Field's Indian bibliography.

LOVE, William DeLoss.

- Samson Occom and the Christian Indians of New England.
 1899.r970.1 L93
 "Important not only as a biography of Occom, who, if not 'the greatest of his race,' was probably the 'first in peace' of his people, but also as containing an excellent account of probably the greatest attempt at colonization and self-government by the Indians themselves on the model of their white neighbors...the movement to found a settlement of Christian Indians of New England in the Oneida country." Nation, 1900.

McKENNEY, Thomas Lorraine.

- Memoirs, official and personal, with sketches of travels among the northern and southern Indians. 2v. in 1.
 1846.r970.1 M17m
 Title-page of v.2 reads "On the origin, history, character and the wrongs and rights of the Indians."
 "McKenney was appointed, in 1816, superintendent of United States trade with the Indian tribes, and, in 1824, head of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, where he served until forced to retire by Jackson. He had great faith in the fundamental worth of the Indian, and has much to say in regard to the 'abominable abuse of power' of the government with the Indians...The author's observations and anecdotes are entertaining, although the volume is fragmentary. Stories are told in regard to political life at Washington...which strikingly illustrate the corruption in governmental contracts and the workings of the spoils system under Jackson." Larned's Literature of American history.

McKENNEY, Thomas Lorraine, & Hall, James.

- History of the Indian tribes of North America, with biographical sketches of the principal chiefs. 3v.
 1848-50.qr970.1 M17
 "The principal value of this work...lies in the colored lithographic reproductions of many Indian portraits collected between 1825 and 1849 by the War Department, of which the Indian Office then formed a part...The various biographies...are derived from authentic sources or from personal association with the living subjects. The 'History of the North American Indians' occupying part of the third volume, is unscientific and untrustworthy, although it contains many extracts from worthier publications." Larned's Literature of American history.

Pokagon (1830-99) was a Pottawottomi chief who had the distinction of being the best educated full-blooded Indian in America.

"The 'Queen of the Woods' is a real romance of Indian life by Chief Pokagon...His greatest desire in publishing [this] historical sketch of his life has been that the white man and the red man might be brought into closer sympathy with each other." Preface.

Personal memoirs of a residence of thirty years with the Indian tribes on the American frontiers, with brief notices of passing events, facts and opinions, 1812-1842. 1851.r970.1 S37p

The many writings of Schoolcraft may be regarded as of greater value to the advanced student of ethnology and archaeology than to the general reader. He has written much that will prove of permanent value, but weakened many of his observations by false reasoning. Adapted from Larned's Literature of American history.

 "Col. Stone has connected, in a very happy manner, with the life of Red-Jacket, a number of anecdotes and sketches, particularly of our war of 1812...which add greatly to the interest and value of his work. His narration of many facts and movements on the northern frontier, during that war...of the principles and conduct of the Indians in our contest with Great Britain; of several Indian treaties, and sales of their land; and of a number of interviews of Red-Jacket with distinguished men...render his volume as entertaining as a novel." Princeton review, 1842.

 Careful and elaborate history, chiefly compiled from original documents, correcting the misapprehensions which had long served to associate Brant's name with everything ferocious and hateful. Many quotations from Brant's speeches and letters add to the value of the book.

almost every turn dishonorable. The author shows in a series of sketches based on treaties and official reports what our treatment of the various tribes has been. An appendix tells of outrages committed on the Indians by the whites, and gives a variety of letters and reports showing the best side of the Indian character. Only one side of the case is presented, but it is the side little known. Mrs.
Jackson was heart and soul in sympathy with the Indian." *Lar-

This report forms part of the Report of the secretary of the interior.
For Indian affairs before 1825 see American state papers, Indian affairs, v.1. The supervision of Indian affairs was originally committed to the secretary of war. Under him was appointed first a superintendent of Indian tribes, who subsequently became superintendent of Indian affairs. By act of Congress approved July 9, 1832, provision was made for the appointment of a commissioner of Indian affairs, to be an officer of the War department. On the organization of the Department of the interior in 1849, his office was made one of the bureaus of said department, with which it has since been con-

- "Under the efficient direction of the Dominion Archivist, Douglas Brymner, a large number of documents relating to Canada have been copied at the Record Office in London, and in other European collections. Great care has been taken to secure verbal accuracy, and the copies now accumulated at Ottawa can be used with the same confidence as their originals. The Archivist's Reports...remained till 1884 of a preliminary character. Since the latter date they have possessed decided value for historians, both American and Canadian. As an instance of their bearing upon the United States the case of the Haldimand Papers may be cited. In 1884 a calendar of these important sources began to appear in Mr. Brymner's reports, and for the Revolutionary War they are indispensable. Nowhere else can the attempt to disconnect Vermont from the colonial cause be so clearly traced." Larned's Literature of American history.

CHARLEVOIX, Pierre François Xavier de.

History and general description of New France; tr. by

J. G. Shea. 6v. 1866-72.....qr971 C37

"The author, a Jesuit, reached Canada in 1720 with a special charge to inspect the missions of the country, and was the first who wrote a general history of consequence. His standpoint is naturally that of a churchman and a Jesuit, but Parkman (though often finding him careless) advises students who would regard the Old Régime from the French side to consult his work. He had command of invaluable sources and shows undoubted cleverness. Among his limitations is a prejudice against Montreal which is revealed, among other ways, by his silence concerning Dollard's magnificent exploit at the Long Sault." Larned's Literature of American history.

"The extent and value of Dr. Shea's work in annotating his translation of this history can only be appreciated by careful study. Through this means the translation is more valuable for many purposes of research than the original work." Winsor's Narrative and critical history of America.

DENT, John Charles.

The last forty years; Canada since the union of 1841. 2v.

1881.971 D43

"Almost wholly an abstract of political occurrences. The second volume contains a concluding chapter on Literature and journalism, but the social and economic development of the country is quite neglected. One noticeable feature of the book is the biographical element which pervades it. Numerous character sketches of public men are interspersed through the text, and the attempt to make each chapter an entertaining essay is very apparent. The illustrations which accompany it are poorly executed." Larned's Literature of American history.

GARNEAU, François Xavier.

History of Canada, to 1841. 2v. 1862.....r971 G18

"A work of much force and spirit, besides being well grounded in knowledge. The French Canadians consider it their most distinctively 'national' history, and though readers of scientific temper may find it at times too 'patriotic,' it contains the best general sketch of New France which has appeared from a Canadian pen during the present century." Larned's Literature of American history.

HART, Gerald E.

Fall of New France, 1755-1760. 1888.....r971 H31

"This is the work of a man who, though greatly interested in his subject, was unable to devote the time necessary for original research or even for a careful examination of printed authorities—and in consequence it is unreliable. The prints are excellent and many of them rare." Larned's Literature of American history.

HOPKINS, John Castell, ed.

Canada; an encyclopædia of the country. 7v. 1898-1900...qr971 H78 v.7 is an index volume.

"Not an orderly arranged encyclopædia; but a collection of articles of unequal merit upon Canadian history, commerce, education, and other important topics. There is much padding, and what is of value is obscured by the mere bulk of the work...Many of the articles are by writers of recognized authority in their chosen subjects. There are many inaccuracies." Larned's Literature of American history.

KENNEDY, Howard Angus.

Story of Canada. [1897.] (Story of the empire series.)..971 K18

"The author, though not a dweller, has seen service in Canada. This is a readable short narrative based upon secondary sources. It is accurate, and, while enthusiastic about Canada, is on the whole discriminating. The style is good." Larned's Literature of American history.

"Based upon original documents and carefully sifted testimony; a trustworthy and thoroughly interesting work. The Canadian reader or student who has time for more than a one volume history of his country should certainly be familiar with this work. The American reader will find it contains informing sidelights on the relations of Louisiana and Canada, the causes of the Revolution, and much else of importance to him." Leypoldt & Iles's Books for girls and women.

LE CLERCQ, Chrétien.

First establishment of the faith in New France; tr. by
J. G. Shea. 2v. 1881.....qr97I L49

Sketch of Le Clercq, v.1, p.5-36.

The first English translation of an exceedingly rare work. Soon after its publication the original was suppressed by the French government and very few copies were circulated. It is peculiarly valuable as containing the first original account of La Salle's discoveries, by two missionaries who accompanied him. From this book also Hennepin drew the account of his pretended discovery of the Mississippi river.

LESCARBOT, Marc.

Histoire de la Nouvelle-France, avec Les muses de la
Nouvelle-France. 3v. 1866.....r97I L63

A reprint of the edition of 1612.

"This man, who represents in France the position occupied by Hakluyt in the history of English geography, was Marc Lescarbot of Vervins ...The work is divided into three books. In the first are described the voyages of Verrazano, Villegagnon, Ribaut, Laudonnière and Gourgues. The accounts of the expeditions of Cartier, Roberval, de la Roche and de Monts occupy the second book, while in the third...he gives a description of the manners and customs of the savages of the New World...In contrast with the aridity of the Jesuit Relations and with the prolific geographical details given by Champlain, Lescarbot's bright and pleasant manner of recounting his adventures in the New World give even the reader of the present day a keen pleasure."

"The present volume will show how valiantly, and for a time how successfully, New France battled against a fate which her own organic fault made inevitable." Preface.

"Count Frontenac himself, who died in 1698 in his seventy-eighth year, after being governor for eighteen years, [the author] declares 'The most remarkable man who ever represented the Crown of France in the New World,' and adds that it was he alone who made possible 'the grand scheme of military occupation by which France strove to envelop and hold in check the industrial populations of the English colonies.'" Nation, 1877.

The same. 2v. 1897.....r97I P24

"Mr. Parkman has been himself inspired by his theme...he treats his subject as one who knows it in a personal as well as in a literary way, and is evidently no less at home among the Northern woods and lakes than among the archives of the French Marine...His Jesuits and trappers are excellent, but his Indians are even better, and he has plainly ventured to look at the squalid savage de près and for himself." Nation, 1874.

"A much truer impression of the hardships of the Canadian settler than will be found in most descriptions of Canada. The grim reality of farming in Manitoba—the sinking of every available dollar of capital and the hailstorm that wipes out crops and cattle—is put before the reader in a few short chapters. The story is then transferred to the British Columbia coast, and the various shifts to which the wandering friends are put are typical cases for the intending emigrant to ponder over." Spectator, 1900.

"Everywhere the writing approves itself as realistic and reliable as the notorious annals of Pepys, naked and not ashamed...No page is valueless in this work, which was elaborated not so much to be read as to be referred to." Nation, 1897.

"Dr. Coues...has not printed [the journals] in full, but has used his judgment in abridgment and selection. While much of the action lies on our side of the northwestern boundary, the work is perhaps most valuable for the light that it throws on exploration and adventure north of that line and beyond the head of the Great Lakes." Larned's Literature of American history.

Newfoundland in 1897. 1897.....971.8 H33

"The Rev. M. Harvey in this small volume attempts two difficult things: to whitewash Sebastian Cabot, and to show that Britain's oldest colony is one of the most virtuous communities under the British flag. He writes for those who know little or nothing of the Cabots, or of the history of English colonization, or of the peculiar practices of Newfoundland in the last few years. For such his book will be of great interest, notwithstanding certain redundancies and certain shortcomings from the literary standpoint. For the student it is of the smallest value possible...Mr. Harvey is at his best in dealing with the earliest efforts to colonize Newfoundland... [His] description of the times of the Fishing Admirals...is capital."

Clavigero was employed about 30 years as a Jesuit missionary among the Indians of Mexico. In consequence of the suppression of the Jesuit order about 1767, he left Mexico and in 1780 published his history. It is a very complete account of the history, religion, customs, arts and natural history of ancient Mexico.

PRESCOTT, William Hickling.

History of the conquest of Mexico, with a preliminary view of the ancient Mexican civilization and the life of the conqueror, Hernando Cortez. 3v. 1861.r972 P92

The same; ed. by J. F. Kirk. 3v. 1873.972 P92H1

"A masterpiece of clear, well-arranged historical narration, based upon careful and diligent study of all available sources of information. The chapters which relate the history of Mexico previous to the Spanish conquest contain little more than a skilful adaptation of Clavigero. For a safe appreciation of the account of the conquest, the reader must bear constantly in mind...that Prescott, perhaps unwittingly, was a devoted hero-worshipper. He desired, most sincerely, to describe events and characters as they really were, but he found it impossible to believe statements which contradicted those of Cortés, or to credit opinions disparaging to the heroic figure whose great achievement had fascinated him. The unfairness of many of Prescott's critical comments, and the frequent injustice of his attitude towards the natives who were opposed to Cortés, are alike directly traceable to this concentration of his imagination on the figure of the conqueror." Larned's Literature of American history.

 To most Americans this book will be a revelation of what the Mexico of to-day really is, and of the part she is beginning to play in the world. Mr Lummis writes very interestingly and with full knowledge of the development of the natural resources of the country, of the great enterprises undertaken, of the present condition of the ancient cities, but perhaps the best chapters are those on President Diaz, the man to whom is chiefly due all this marvellous change from the Mexico of 20 years ago. "Is not, and indeed was not in its own day, of any substantive value as a book of reference on its nominal subject; but it exercised considerable influence: it was exceedingly characteristic of the period and society which produced it, and passages of it are still worth reading... Raynal himself wrote but a small part of it...He borrowed from books and he begged from his own friends all manner of diatribes against superstition and tyranny, often illustrated by lively anecdotes and eloquent tirades. FROUDE, James Anthony.

English in the West Indies. 1892.....917.29 F97

"Its tone is wholesome and its main conclusion indisputable...that England should take over the government of the West Indies to administer it after the East Indian manner, doing away with the farce of local representative assemblies." Saturday review, 1888.

HALLIDAY, Sir Andrew.

The West Indies; the natural and physical history of the Windward and Leeward colonies. 1837.....917.29 H18

Contents: Barbados.—British Guiana.—Tobago.—Trinidad.

HEARN, Lafcadio.

Two years in the French West Indies. 1890.....917.29 H38

"Deals almost wholly with the colony of Martinique...He has caught the brilliance of tropical coloring and has impressed its hues upon his own pages. The chapters in which he paints for us the scenery of Martinique are the most successful attempt yet made to give word pictures of nature arranged in the luxuriance of tropical splendor. At the same time we have, with all the freshness of lifelike portraiture, a succession of vignettes of the work-a-day life of the laboring classes of Martinique." Nation, 1890.

HILL, Robert Thomas.

Cuba and Porto Rico, with the other islands of the West Indies. 1898.....917.29 H55

Geological formation and natural history of the West Indies is set forth with ample knowledge. The historical and political matter is frankly compiled and not from very extensive sources. Adapted from Nation, 1898.

JAY, E. A. Hastings.

Glimpse of the tropics; or, Four months cruising in the West Indies. 1900.....917.29 J22

KINGSLEY, Charles.

At last; a Christmas in the West Indies. 1892.....917.29 K27

Gives pleasant pictures of the scenery of the islands. The greater part of the book is devoted to Trinidad.

MADDEN, Richard Robert.

Twelvemonth's residence in the West Indies, during the transition from slavery to apprenticeship. 2v.

1835.917.29 M23

Author went to Jamaica in 1834 as one of the magistrates to administer the statute abolishing slavery in the plantations. The book, written in the form of letters, gives much general information and discusses at length the problem of the planters and the condition of the negroes at that time.

MORRIS, Charles.

Our island empire; a hand-book of Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippine islands. 1899.....917.29 M915

Each of the four sections into which the book is divided is opened with a historical sketch; afterward follow chapters on physical conditions, natural productions, civil and political relations, centres of population, manners and customs, agricultural productions, manufactures and commerce.

MORRIS, Ira Nelson.

With the trade-winds; a jaunt in Venezuela and the West Indies. 1897.....917.29 M91

"He sticks throughout to description, and we find him a pleasant if somewhat immature, travelling companion." Nation, 1897.

NEWTON, Margaret.

Glimpses of life in Bermuda and the tropics. 1897.....917.29 N29

"This describes the salient features of the different islands, giving on the whole the palm to Jamaica, though Trinidad runs Jamaica very hard. Her descriptions may, at all events, have the further result she desires of inducing others to go and see for themselves." Athenæum, 1897.

OBER, Frederick Albion.

In the wake of Columbus; adventures of the special commissioner sent by the World's Columbian exposition to the West Indies. 1893.....917.29 O12i

"Seems to be a farrago of personal experiences in visiting the various places connected with the career of Columbus, combined with a certain amount of historical misinformation, the whole written in a slipshod style, and illustrated with a large number of woodcuts of very various degrees of intelligibility." Nation, 1893.

SPANISH-AMERICAN DIRECTORIES CO. comp.

Four centuries of Spanish rule in Cuba; or, Why we went to war with Spain; a historical sketch. 1898.....972.91 C17

Written to show what the policy and the feeling of the people of the United States have been with regard to Cuba, and that the United States entered into war with just motives.

DAVIS, Richard Harding.

Cuba in war time. 1897.....972.91 D32

Contents: Cuba in war time.—Fate of the pacificos.—Death of Rodriguez.—Along the trocha.—Question of atrocities.—Right of search of American vessels.

FLINT, Grover.

Marching with Gomez; a war correspondent's field notebook, kept during four months with the Cuban army.

1898.972.91 F64

"A vivid picture of the aspects of the Cuban insurrection that appeared to a war correspondent in the spring of 1896, who was with Gomez for four months. The author's previous service in the regular army of the United States gave him special qualifications for comment on military matters." Larned's Literature of American history.

HALSTEAD, Murat.

Story of Cuba. 1896.....972.91 H18

The same; revised to date. 1898.....972.91 H18s

Voluminous and uncritical work.

MUSGRAVE, George Clarke.

Under three flags in Cuba; a personal account of the Cuban insurrection and Spanish-American war.

1899.972.91 M98

"Mr. Musgrave was an Englishman holding Spain in high favor when he went to the island as a correspondent for a British journal, and the knowledge gained on the ground saw him within a few months fighting in the insurgent ranks. He bears the testimony of an eye-witness to the disinterested valor of the Cuban patriots, but he makes little prophecy for the future." Dial, 1900.

NOA, Frederic M.

The pearl of the Antilles [Cuba]; a view of the past and a glance at the future. 1898.....972.91 N38

Bibliography, p.83-84.

"Brief concise statement of some of the Spanish movements which aroused and justified the Cuban struggle for independence. His access to sources and state papers not mentioned by other writers gives his book a kind of permanent value to students of Cuban history." Dial, 1899.

PEPPER, Charles Melville.

To-morrow in Cuba. 1899.....972.91 P41

Bibliography, p.352-355.

Presents the facts of the history and of the social, economic and political condition of Cuba, as necessary data for a just solution of the present problems (1900).

"While his book has admittedly cost him but a couple of years, the author has none the less brought to its composition an impartiality, industry and sympathy that are most creditable." Nation, 1899.

REA, George Bronson.

Facts and fakes about Cuba; a review of stories circulated in the United States concerning the present insurrection. 1897.....972.91 R24 Author was field correspondent of the "New York herald" at the time of the Cuban insurrection. Criticises Gomez severely.

ROWAN, Andrew Summers, & Ramsey, M. M.

Bibliography, p.261-273.

"Useful introduction to the study of Cuba, treating of its geography, history, political condition and resources. The historical sketch is slight in texture and not free from errors." Larned's Literature of American history.

BALLOU, Maturin Murray.

Due south; or, Cuba, past and present. 1898.....917.291 B21
First published in 1885.

"Original observation, hearsay, gleanings from the author's readings, all mixed pell-mell...The author, however, evidently possesses a quick and observant eye, and some of his remarks on the social and economic condition of Cuba show that he has derived his information from persons intimately acquainted with the island." Nation, 1885.

History of Cuba; or, Notes of a traveller in the tropics; a political, historical and statistical account of the island from its first discovery. 1854.....r917.291 B21
"Desultory but delightful records of traveller's gossip." Larned's Literature of American history.

BLOOMFIELD, J. H.

A Cuban expedition. 1896.....917.291 B56
Account of the expedition in 1858, on the barque Darthula, the object of which was to assist the Cubans in their struggle for independence.

BONSAL, Stephen.

Real condition of Cuba to-day. 1897.....917.291 B62
"A picture of western Cuba in the spring of 1897 under the 'Concentration' system established by Gen. Weyler. The diplomatic experience of the author in Spain and his work as a correspondent in Macedonia and in the Bulgarian-Servian war gave him some special qualifications for observing the conditions in Cuba. His sympathy for the Cubans is marked." Larned's Literature of American history.

CABRERA, Raimundo.

Cuba and the Cubans; tr. by Laura Guiteras, revised and ed. by L. E. Levy. 1896.....917.291 C11
"A work, frequently reprinted in the original Spanish, which is said to have been accepted by Spanish public opinion as a fair presentation of the liberal ideas current among the more intelligent Cubans of property and social standing twenty years ago, representing the ideas of those who organized the Autonomist Party." Larned's Literature of American history.

occupations of Haitian life are graphically presented." Nation, 1901.

ST. JOHN, Sir Spenser.

Hayti; or, The black republic. 1889.....917.294 S14

"Important and interesting work, by one who was located on the island during the twenty years in which its decadence from the more civilized times of the middle century was beginning to be increasingly noticeable. The bitter hostility which continues to be expressed by native Haytians whenever the author of this book is mentioned furnishes excellent proof of the accuracy of his observations and the justness of his opinions." *Larned's Literature

"Intended to provide a more detailed treatment of the history of the United States...than can be given in the ordinary school or college compendium...Cannot be recommended as entirely satisfactory. The first part of the work treating of settlement and colonial life is better than the long chapters on the wars and later political administrations. Particularly in the last part of the book there is not sufficient generalization, and topics are treated indiscriminately without due regard to their importance or perspective...Many illustrations, but many of them are badly executed." Larned's Literature of American history.

"The essential characteristic of Judge Chamberlain's historical method is his reliance upon primary sources of information. His conclusions are invariably the result of exhaustive study of original and contemporary material...Add to this power of intelligent and patient labor, the mental equipment of a trained lawyer and experienced judge, and a clear and forcible style and we have a scholar whose work...combines with singular success industrious search for facts, skill and fairness in weighing evidence, and attractiveness of literary form." Nation, 1899.

CHANNING, Edward.

Short history of the United States for school use, to "Admirably fitted for use as a text-book with advanced secondary classes...Full of suggestions for both teachers and pupils." Larned's Literature of American history.

United States, 1765-1865. 1896. (Cambridge historical series.)973 C36

"Aim...is to trace the steps by which the American people and its peculiar type of federal state have developed...Within the allotted space the work has been excellently done." Larned's Literature of American history.

CHANNING, Edward, & Hart, A. B.

Guide to the study of American history. 1896.....r973 C36

"A most useful manual for readers, students, and teachers of American history; compiled as the result of years of experience in college and university instruction. It contains hints on the reading and teaching of history, a selected bibliography of American history, and a long and well-arranged series of topics on colonial and United States history. The book is also elaborately indexed. It will be especially helpful for those engaged in private reading or who are without the guidance of a teacher." Larned's Literature of American history.

- CHILDREN'S history book; tales of the history of our native land, by famous story-tellers. 1896.....j973 C43
- COFFIN, Charles Carleton.
Building the nation; events in the history of the United States from the Revolution to the war between the states, [1783-1860]. 1882.....j973 C66
- DAVIS, Anna Chase.
Stories of the United States, for youngest readers. 1896..j973 D31
- DOYLE, John Andrew.
History of the United States, [to 1867]. 1876.....973 D77
Contains maps illustrative of the acquisition of territory and of the increase of population, by F. A. Walker.
"Of the small books on the history of the United States, this is one of the best. It forms a part of the historical course for schools edited by E. A. Freeman. Its characteristics are that it is carefully prepared, is very accurate, and is free from those factitious allurements which sometimes constitute the chief merit of a school history." C. K. Adams.
- EGGLESTON, Edward.
First book in American history, [to 1865]. 1889.....j973 E35
History of the United States, [to 1896], for the use of schools.973 E35h
"The author lays special stress upon correctness of statements, clearness, and topical rather than chronological arrangement. Emphasis is laid upon the presentation of democratic and social life. It is strictly a text-book with questions, skeleton outlines, reviews, suggestions for blackboard illustrations, diagrams, etc." Larned's Literature of American history.
- Household history of the United States and its people.
1901.j973 E35ho
Many maps and illustrations.
Stories of American life and adventure. 1895.....j973 E35s

GREG, Percy.

History of the United States, from the foundation of Virginia to the reconstruction of the Union. 2v. 1887.....r973 G86
 v. 1 contains the Articles of confederation, 1779-81, and the constitution of 1787.

"A singularly one-sided history written by an English author who achieved considerable note as a journalist and essayist...Large and comprehensive...scholarly in its proportions and style...The Revolution, Constitution, and Civil War are considered the three central events of American history...Down to 1783, the author declares that his history follows in the main Bancroft and Palfrey. In the treatment of the Civil War...the author, however, writes in full accord with the southern States Rights philosophy...So biased that it is absolutely unsafe for the elementary student." Larned's Literature of American history.

GRIFFIS, William Elliot.

Romance of conquest; the story of American expansion through arms and diplomacy. 1899.....973 G89

"With emphasis upon the original meaning of the word 'conquest,' I have...told the story of our national expansion and of the triumphs of American arms and diplomacy from July 4, 1776...until this first year of Greater America [1899]." Preface.

HILDRETH, Richard.

History of the United States of America, [to 1821]. 6v. 1877-80.973 H54
 "The author's style is free from irrelevant discursiveness, is direct, is devoid of imagination and fancy, is often so bald in its methods as to be dry, and sometimes is even so careless as to be ungrammatical... But these somewhat grave defects are more than counterbalanced by the general accuracy and sterling qualities of the author's judgment. The peculiarities named make the work less a favorite with the general reader than with the serious student." C. K. Adams.

HINTON, John Howard, and others.

History and topography of the United States, from the earliest period. 2v. 1846.....qr973 H57
 Discusses also physical geography, natural history and the state of society. Numerous interesting illustrations are given of well-known places as they appeared at the time the book was written.

Bibliographical note, p.11-13.

A collection for the use of college classes, of 97 documents, mostly of the constitutional period. While the documents are not rare, they are generally accessible only in large libraries, though they are of chief importance in any thorough course in American history.

McGEE, Thomas D'Arcy.

Catholic history of North America, with discourses on the relations of Ireland and America. 1855.....r973 M16

Author aims to prove that the discovery and exploration of America and subsequent attempts to colonize and Christianize the country were made by Catholics, and that the independence of the United States was in a great degree established by Catholic blood and talent.

McLAUGHLIN, Andrew Cunningham.

History of the American nation. 1899.....973 M194

High school text-book. Emphasis is laid on the political development of the 19th century. A very satisfactory account of the reconstruction period is given. The style is always simple and direct and the illustrative material is abundant. Adapted from American historical review, 1899.

MACLAY, Edgar Stanton.

History of American privateers. 1899.....973 M19h

"Mr. Maclay has divided his subject into two parts: 'The War of the Revolution' and 'The War of 1812.' From forgotten monographs, the records of historical societies, from unpublished log-books, and from descendants of noted privateersmen, he has obtained intimate and vivid accounts of the fitting out of the vessels, the incidents of their voyages, and the thrilling adventures of the brave sailors who manned them. His work is accompanied by reproductions of contemporary pictures, portraits and documents, and also by illustrations by George Gibbs." Larned's Literature of American history.

McMASTER, John Bach.

History of the people of the United States from the Revolution to the Civil war. v.1-6. 1895-1906.....973 M21h

"McMaster's method is of the modern kind, which does not ignore the things once deemed below the dignity of history, and his manner is of a sort that aims to hold a reader with the startling groupings and contrasts of the varied and possible interests of the subject...His study has been laborious; but one asks if newspapers were more trustworthy then than now, that so much should be granted to their evidence." Winsor's Narrative and critical history of America.

RIDPATH, John Clark.

Popular history of the United States. 1891.....q973 R44

"A fair specimen of a book made to be sold by solicited subscription. Aims to give leading facts in a simple manner and to 'discuss the philosophy of history' as fully as space will allow. Divides the narrative into five periods: The aborigines, discovery, colonies, Revolution, and the later events by administrations of Presidents. The resulting perspective is bad. The real making of the Union is condensed, and social factors almost wholly omitted." Larned's Literature of American history.

v.6. 1861-1865.

"Though very far from perfection, in many respects the most real history of the United States yet produced for the period which it covers. It is marked by constant and complete recourse to original sources, a competence for accuracy, and a willingness for fair judgment, a judicious observance of proportion, and a very sound historical sense to unite and vivify the whole." Nation, 1885.

SCUDDER, Horace Elisha.

History of the United States, [1492-1893], preceded by a narrative of the discovery and settlement of North

SMITH, Goldwin.

United States; an outline of political history, 1492-1871.

1893.973 S64

"A brilliantly written sketch, well proportioned and marvellously condensed. The author's standpoint, while critical, is distinctly sympathetic. The work is too compact to admit of novelty in the treatment of details; but the recognition of slavery, as almost from the beginning a moulding force, is to be specially noted as giving emphasis and continuity to the exposition." Larned's Literature of American history.

SPARKS, Edwin Erle.

Expansion of the American people, social and territorial.

1900.973 S73c

Account of the extension of the English-speaking people over the continent of North America. In his closing chapters on the present colonial policy of our government the author sees only obedience to the laws which have governed the conduct of nations throughout history.

Men who made the nation; an outline of United States

History of the United States, [to 1904]. 1904.....973 T37

List of works for teachers and readers, apx. p.53-58.

The same, [to 1901]. 1901.....j973 T37

"One of the best recent text-books for high schools and academies. The literary interest is not great, but facts are judiciously chosen and clearly presented, the maps are superior to those found in most similar works and there are...helpful indications for collateral reading." Larned's Literature of American history.

WALKER, Francis Amasa.

Making of the nation, 1783-1817. 1895. (American history series.)973 W16
Bibliography, p.293-298.

"A careful, at times thrilling, story of this important period of national growth...In pure English, he freshly relates the circumstances which led to the constitutional convention, the story of its formation and adoption, the practical difficulties in statesmanship which beset the path of the first President, the early settlement of vexed constitutional questions, and incidents relative to the admission of new States, the Louisiana Purchase and the diplomatic quarrels with England and France, the whole closing with an admirable summary of the War of 1812-15." Leypoldt & Iles's Books for girls and women.

WARDEN, David Baillie.

Statistical, political and historical account of the United

WILSON, Rufus Rockwell.

Washington, the capital city, and its part in the history of the nation. 2v. 1901.....973 W772
A history, not of Washington itself, but of the political growth and development of the United States as centering in its capital city.

WILSON, Woodrow.

Division and reunion, 1829-1889. 1894. (Epochs of American history.)973 W77
With list of references before each chapter.
"As a southerner of the generation since the war who has lived most of his adult life in the North, Prof. Wilson is in an especially favorable position for understanding the temper of the North and the South, and for writing the history of this momentous period with an exceptional degree of fairness and sympathy. As a text-book, it is well supplied with maps and bibliographies, but its literary quality raises it above the ordinary text-book, and makes it at once the best and most readable general history of these sixty years." Larned's Literature of American history.

COOPER, James Fenimore.

History of the navy of the United States. 2v. 1839....r973 C78

"In some respects, relating to the War of 1812, Cooper's views have been called in question; but his story of the Revolutionary navy is the result of investigations that have not, on the whole, been improved upon. Cooper gives a list of the Continental cruisers, with the fate of each." Winsor's Narrative and critical history of America.

MACLAY, Edgar Stanton.

History of the United States navy, 1775-1901. 3v. 1894-1901.973 M19

v.3 is chiefly on the war with Spain, and contains an account of the Schley court of inquiry.

"Taken as a whole, this history of the navy...is the best in print, but the perspective needs correction." Nation, 1898.

Reminiscences of the old navy; from the journals and private papers of Captain Edward Trenchard and Rear-admiral Stephen Decatur Trenchard. 1898.....973 M19r

"The records of the Trenchards...cover eighty years of service in our navy...the journal and notes of a cruise for the suppression of the slave-trade on the African coast...the copious journals kept when on service in the China sea and...throughout the Civil War are well strewn with stirring episodes heretofore unrecorded...The chief value of the book lies...in the fact that it is part and parcel of the inside history of our navy during the period covered." Dial, 1898.

SPEARS, John Randolph.

History of our navy, 1775-1898. 5v. 1897-99.....973 S74

Very readable story of the navy. Deals at length with the part played by our navy, not only in the Revolution, the War of 1812, the Mexican war and the Civil war, but also with the encounters with pirates in the West Indies and the Mediterranean, with the hard life of naval men in times of nominal peace, with Perry's expedition to Japan, and finally with the "new navy." The last volume treats of the Spanish-American war and the events which led to it; this volume is also published separately under the title "Our navy in the war with Spain."

"It is not the purpose of this work to give a connected and complete history of the settlements of Europeans in America, and of subsequent emigration to the west, but rather to delineate some of the events and incidents which illustrate the characteristics of the pioneers, their manner of life, the hardships they endured, and the perils they encountered." Preface.
- DAWSON, Samuel Edward.
Voyages of the Cabots; latest phases of the controversy.

Reprinted from the Transactions of the Royal society of Canada for 1897.

"Dr. Dawson believes that Cape Breton can lay claim to the honor of Cabot's landfall with no less justice than Watling's Island can lay claim to that of Columbus. He has certainly entered the best plea yet made on its behalf, and many professed historians will profit by following his use of evidence." Nation, 1898.

DE COSTA, Benjamin Franklin.

Pre-Columbian discovery of America by the Northmen, with translations from the Icelandic sagas. 1890.r973.I D36

"The design of this volume is to present in an English dress to the historical student every portion of the Icelandic Sagas relating to the Pre-Columbian discovery of America by the Northmen. These Sagas...are translated, with the needful explanations added in regard to persons and places." Nation, 1869.

DE VERE, Maximilian Schele.

FISKE, John.

Discovery of America, with account of ancient America and the Spanish conquest. 2v. 1895.973.I F54

The same. 2v. 1898.r973.I F54

"Fiske performs the useful and honorable office of marshalling the facts deduced by the best and latest monographists, and presenting them to the reading public in a coherent form. He has a keen sense of historical perspective and proportion, takes a large, philosophic view of his subject, and has a charming literary style. The study of American history has been popularized by his books; thousands, heretofore indifferent to it, have first been led by the works of Fiske to see that we have a national history which is highly picturesque and deserves our closest attention. This work is one of the best from his hand, and is important as laying a solid foundation for the study of American history. The introductory chapter is the most satisfactory popular presentation of the characteristics, customs and antecedents of the Indians, which we have in print." Leyboldt & Iles's Books for girls and women.

FORCE, Gen. Manning Ferguson.

Some observations on the letters of Amerigo Vespucci.

1885.r973.I F75

Aims to show that the letters to the duke of Lorraine could not have been written by Vespucci as a narrative of his voyages. A short paper read before the Congrès international des Américanistes at Brussels.

v.2. Gilbert's voyage.—Amadas and Barlow's voyage.—Cavendish's first voyage.—Cavendish's last voyage.—Raleigh's discovery of Guiana.—Cavendish's last letter.

Voyages of the English nation to America before the year 1600; ed. by Edmund Goldsmid. 4v. 1889-90..r973.1 H15

"Hakluyt was an enthusiast with regard to western discoveries, and he spared neither time nor labor to obtain trustworthy information with regard to the voyages...His narratives of the early voyages, so far as we have the means of verifying them, follow with almost entire accuracy the original documents, though in a few instances he has abbreviated his originals...In these instances, however, the republication of the narratives...with the learned annotations of...thoroughly competent editors, places before the reader an exact copy of the originals." Justin Winsor.

HARRISSE, Henry.

Diplomatic history of America; its first chapter, 1452-

1494. 1897.973.1 H31

An account of the negotiations between Spain, Portugal and the pope regarding the division of territory already discovered or yet to be discovered.

Discovery of North America; a critical, documentary and historic investigation, with an essay on the early cartography of the New World, a chronology of voyages westward, 1431-1504, biographical accounts of pilots who first crossed the Atlantic, and a list of the original names of American regions. 2v. 1892..qr973.1 H31

"The first part of this monumental work, the greatest contribution to the history of American geography since Humboldt's Examen, is a concise, critically sifted presentation of the ascertained facts of the discovery and exploration of the coast of North America, down to 1525. The notes give the reader a clue to all the original sources and to the best modern discussions. The second and third parts on the early maps of the New World surpass in range and completeness all other treatises on the subject. In the fourth and fifth parts,—the chronological lists of voyages and the biographies of pilots,—each notice is supplied with notes indicating the sources...An indispensable guide to the student and investigator." Larned's Literature of American history.

HIGGINSON, Thomas Wentworth.

Young folks' book of American explorers. 1894.....j973.1 H53

Contents: Legends of the Northmen.—Columbus and his companions.—Cabot and Verrazano.—Cabeza De Vaca.—The French in Canada.—De Soto.—The French in Florida.—Sir Humphrey Gilbert.—Lost colonies of Virginia.—Unsuccessful New England settlements.—Capt. John Smith.—Champlain on the warpath.—Hudson and the New Netherlands.—Pilgrims at Plymouth.—Massachusetts Bay colony.

LESTER, Charles Edwards, & Foster, Andrew.

Life and voyages of Americus Vesputius, and the discovery of the New World. 1853.....r973.1 L65

"The author...lacked the critical training to produce a work abreast of the scholarship of his day. To-day the work is entirely out of date and would mislead and waste the time of anyone beginning a study of the subject. It may still be serviceable, however, in a measure, from the translations which it contains of Vesputius's letters to one who cannot consult the work of Varnhagen, Markham, or Quaritch's First four voyages. To the more advanced student it is of some value as a compendium of the materials and views in the works of Bandini, Bartolozzi, and Canova, who championed the cause of Vesputius in the last century." Larned's Literature of American history.

LOWERY, Woodbury.

Spanish settlements within the present limits of the United States, 1513-1561. 1901.....973.I L95

"This work...is quite certain to rank as a standard authority and a principal source of popular knowledge concerning a very interesting portion of American history...Mr. Lowery has...gathered all the available information, not only about the better known explorers whose names are in the text-books, but equally about the less important ventures, meaningless each by itself, which become significant when grouped together so that the bearing of each upon the whole movement of colonial development becomes apparent. He has brought together the scattered references to a score of random voyagers; stray wanderers, who survive only in chance allusions to otherwise unheard-of happenings." American historical review, 1901.

Spanish pioneers. 1893.....973.I L97

For young readers; written to inspire them with the same enthusiasm for the Spanish pioneers as the author possesses. Believing that justice had never been rendered these heroes, he, through much labor and research, obtained the true stories of their adventures and discoveries, which he has here related, together with accounts of their first attempts to educate the Indians, and other deeds of heroism and kindness.

Voyage of Verrazano; early history of maritime discovery in America. 1875.973.I M97

"This monograph is an attempt to prove by the process of external and internal criticism that the narrative of Verrazano's voyage of 1524 is a forgery based on the data supplied by the discoveries of Estevan Gomez recorded on the Ribero map of 1529. Mr. Murphy made out a strong case, but the drift of critical opinion has been in recent years in favor of the reality of Verrazano's voyage. The appendix...includes Dr. Cogswell's translation of the Verrazano letter and translations of transcripts of documents about Verrazano as well as a facsimile of the Verrazano map." Larned's Literature of American history.

Discovery of America by the Northmen in the 10th century; comprising translations of all the most important original narratives of this event. 1842.....r973.I S65
 "An attempt to put the materials and discussions published by Rafn in his Antiquitates before the English readers. The author unfortunately adopted the controversial dialogue as his method of presentation, and the average student cannot but be worn out and confused to the last degree by the discussions of Mr. Norset, Dr. Dubital and Mr. Cassall. Beamish's popularization of Rafn [r973.I B34] is every way preferable." Larned's Literature of American history.

STEPHENS, Thomas.

Madoc; an essay on the discovery of America by Madoc ap Owen Gwynedd in the 12th century; ed. by Llywarch Reynolds. 1893.973.I S83
 "At the Eisteddfod of 1858 a prize was offered for an essay on 'The Welsh discovery of America.' Five papers were handed in, of which the present book was one, and it was esteemed much the ablest of all in research and literary skill; but, to save the national pride, it was thrown out, because, taking the ground of a non-discovery, it was held not to be upon the assigned topic."

Border wars of New England, commonly called King

"Samuel G. Drake had collected a mass of materials for the history of these two... wars... but he did not live to arrange them for publication. These materials and others his son has used in the preparation of this volume, and that with a beauty of style and arrangement to which the father could scarcely lay claim. The book is an original contribution to the history of the intercolonial wars, and has, at the same time, the popular charm which belongs to all the writings of this author. The views expressed concerning the essential conditions and issues of the struggle are believed to be sound." Larned's Literature of American history.

1893.973.2 D78m

Contents: The English in Virginia.—The English in Maryland.—The great Iroquois league.—The Dutch on Manhattan.—The Dutch, Swedes and English on the Delaware.

"Possesses much the same character as the author's Making of New England, though it shows a somewhat less intimate acquaintance with the subject than did his earlier volume... In general the external events connected with the founding of Virginia and the middle colonies are correctly given, and the social traits of the settlers spiritedly depicted. The treatment of Long Island and of New York during the Dutch period is especially to be commended. It is a good book for the use of young people." Larned's Literature of American history.

 "Adds little to positive knowledge of the subject, but is distinguished... by a broad and tolerant spirit and by keen criticism. Contents: Mental outfit of the early colonists.—Digression concerning medical notions at the period of settlement.—Mother English, folk-speech, folk-lore and literature.—Weights and measures of conduct.—The tradition of education.—Land and labor in the early colonies.
 "Like its predecessor ['Beginners of a nation'], it is terse and vivid in style and exceedingly compact in treatment...Is in no sense a narrative of colonial beginnings...It is, rather, a series of six brief monographs designed to put vividly before the reader the point of view under which the early settlers of the United States conceived the world in which they lived, and estimated conduct and life."

- Essays in American history. 1894.....973.2 F38
Contents: The Quakers in New England.—The witches.—Sir Edmund Andros.—The loyalists.
 "Professor Ferguson presents a severe indictment of the Puritans for their treatment of the Quakers and the witches, yet treats the subject with calmness and impartiality, as well as with learning. In his defence of Andros and the loyalists he is more argumentative and assumes the attitude of a pleader. He cannot be said in either of these instances to be strictly impartial, though in relieving Andros and the loyalists of the reproach that has hitherto been cast upon them he has served the cause of truth and justice in history."

 Next in sequence to the author's "Beginnings of New England."
 "Marked by the well-known characteristics of its author—wide reading, affluence of interesting facts and ideas, firm grasp of materials, great literary skill, fondness for episodes, keen enjoyment of the picturesque, much ingenuity in hypothesis and explanation, proneness to generalization, ardent Americanism, and greater conformity to truth in the picture than in the single stroke." Dial, 1899.

New France and New England. 1902.....973.2 F54n

Contents: From Cartier to Champlain.—The beginnings of Quebec.—The lords of Acadia; Later history of Champlain.—Wilderness and empire.—Witchcraft in Salem village.—The great awakening.—Norridgewock and Louisburg.—Beginnings of the great war.—Crown Point, Fort William Henry and Ticonderoga.—Louisburg, Fort Duquesne and the fall of Quebec.

Completes the story of the settlement and development of the colonies up to the point where Mr Fiske's "American revolution" (973.3 F54a) has already taken up the narrative. It therefore gives a final unity to the sequence of volumes which he has devoted to American history.

v.1. The sea kings.—A discourse of western planting.—The land of the Powhatans.—The starving time.—Beginnings of a commonwealth.—A seminary of sedition.—The kingdom of Virginia.—The Maryland palatinate.—Leah and Rachel.

v.2. The coming of the cavaliers.—Bacon's rebellion.—William and Mary.—Maryland's vicissitudes.—Society in the Old Dominion.—The Carolina frontier.—The golden age of pirates.—From tide-water to the mountains.

This work is next in sequence to Mr Fiske's "Discovery of America." "Beginning with the movement which led to the colonization of Virginia, the author traces the settlement of the Southern colonies and their history until 1690. Two or three chapters in the second volume contain miscellaneous facts concerning this group of colonies in the 18th century...The author writes in an interesting and popular style, but his treatment of the subject is unsystematic, and the work is not free from errors." Larned's Literature of American history.

"One of the very best histories of our colonial period. Since Grahame wrote, investigation has thrown new light on many questions previously obscure; but the author spared no pains in the investigation of such sources as were then at his command, and he always conducts his researches with great discrimination as well as praiseworthy candor. His work is justly quoted with great respect by all later writers on our early history. In point of style, the work is clear, correct and agreeable." C. K. Adams.

JESUIT RELATIONS.

Jesuit relations and allied documents; travels and explorations of the Jesuit missionaries in New France, 1610-1791; the original French, Latin and Italian texts, with English translations and notes; ed. by Reuben Gold Thwaites. 73v. 1896-1901.....r973.2 T43j

For contents see contents book, p.33; kept at the reference desk.

For a discussion of the historical importance of the "Jesuit relations" themselves, and of the merit of this particular edition, see reviews of the various volumes in the "Nation," v.64 and following.

"The sources of information concerning the early Jesuits of New France are very copious. During a period of forty years the Superior of the mission sent, every summer, long and detailed reports embodying or accompanied by the reports of his subordinates to the Provincial of the Order at Paris, where they were annually published...forming the remarkable series known as the Jesuit Relations. Though the productions of men of scholastic training, they are simple and often crude in style, as might be expected of narratives hastily written in Indian lodges or rude mission-houses in the forest...In respect to the value of their contents, they are exceedingly unequal. Modest records of marvellous adventures and sacrifices, and vivid pictures of forest-life, alternate with prolix and monotonous details of the conversion of individual savages, and the praiseworthy deportment of some exemplary neophyte. With regard to the condition and character of the primitive inhabitants of North America, it is impossible to exaggerate their value as an authority...The original text—whether Latin, French or Italian—is given on the left-hand, and its translation on the right-hand page." Larned's Literature of American history.

Binder's title reads "The old French war."

"Less than half the volume is devoted to the 'Old French War,' 1756-63, the first 200 pages containing a review of early voyages, French exploration, settlement and wars in America prior to the middle of the 18th century. The work is a compilation; with no references to sources or authorities...but it admirably fulfils the purpose for which it was written—to supply a popular narrative. Generally accurate, it well brings out the romantic features of the struggle for French dominion in America, while giving due recognition to the political forces which were operative." Larned's Literature of American history.

"Covers the dealings between the English and French colonists from 1700 to the opening of the war which led to the conquest of Canada... In some respects this volume is, almost inevitably, inferior in interest to its predecessors. There is no central figure of commanding proportions...Mr. Parkman clearly brings out...the difficulties which beset the French colonists in their dealings with the Indians and which finally contributed so largely to the downfall of New France...The chief events described...are Sir Hovenden Walker's unsuccessful expedition against Quebec in 1711, and the capture of Louisburg...in 1745." English historical review, 1893.

"The events described...fall within the...years from 1670 to 1690, and laid the foundation of a scheme of policy pursued with much apparent chance of success until the Seven Years' War put a final stop to French hopes of deciding the future of America...Besides La Salle, Mr. Parkman has to describe several supplementary heroes, especially the amiable and pious Marquette...and the bragging, lying, courageous, and amusing friar Hennepin, who supplies the comic element of the book...Mr. Parkman tells the story with great spirit, and in an excellent style; his own experience amongst the savage descendants of La Salle's Indians enables him to add many characteristic sketches of scenery and manners." Saturday review, 1869.

"The history of the final struggle between France and England for the control of North America...Mr. Parkman has spared no pains to make himself master of his subject. He has worked minutely at documentary evidence both in Europe and in America, and at the same time has succeeded in keeping himself well above his facts; for his story, rich as it is in picturesque details, is never overweighted and never loses its continuity...Mr. Parkman's work ends with a masterly summary of the war in Europe, and a short chapter full of weighty words on the results of the conflict as a whole on the history of the world." Saturday review, 1884.

History of the Indian wars with the first settlers of the United States to the commencement of the late war, with an appendix containing accounts of the battles fought by Gen. Andrew Jackson. 1828.....r973.2 S21

"The mystery which surrounded the authorship, history, and origin of this very rare volume, has been slowly dispelled by successive fragments of information. So few copies have survived...that its very existence was unknown to the most zealous collectors of Indian and Vermont history. Published anonymously without preface, it was known to but few that the author was the Rev. Daniel Clark Sanders, President of the University of Vermont. Immediately after its appearance, some person, evidently a personal enemy of the author, published an acrimonious critique upon the book...Such was the effect of the article...that the work was suppressed...In fact, so nearly complete was the destruction of the book, that it was forgotten by...his biographers." Field's Indian bibliography.

History of the American revolution, with the most important resolutions of the Continental congress and many letters of Washington. 2v. 1819-22.....r973.3 A42
 "This is a work of but slight value, and has not even the merit of being composed throughout by the same 'hack writer' who signs his initials to the preface. The 'associates' whose names he omits to mention were John Neal and Tobias Watkins." Larned's Literature of American history.

AMERICAN archives; a collection of authentick records, state papers, debates and letters, [1774-1776]; a documentary history of the North American colonies; ed. by Peter Force, ser. 4, v.1-6, ser. 5, v.1-3. 9v. 1837-53.qr973.3 A51
 No more published.

"The contents include statutes, legislative and parliamentary proceedings, proceedings of local bodies, speeches, letters, etc. Though ill-arranged, the collection is invaluable for the study of the early Revolutionary period." Larned's Literature of American history.

BOTTA, Carlo Giuseppe Guglielmo.

History of the War of the independence of the United States of America; tr. fr. the Italian by G. A. Otis. 2v.

Biography of the author, v.2, p.465-466; List of works consulted, v.2, p.467-468.

"The most valuable of the earlier histories of the Revolution, and not yet considered antiquated. Military history predominates. The work closes with the retirement of Washington in 1783. The perspective of the history is bad in places, owing to its being based on European sources. It follows classical forms in putting imaginary speeches into the mouths of the chief actors. A lofty style adds to the heroic mold in which the forefathers of the republic are cast." Larned's Literature of American history.

BOUDINOT, Elias.

Journal; or, Historical recollections of American events during the Revolutionary war; copied from his own original manuscript. 1894.....qr973.3 B65

"Literal and exact. Valuable source for Revolutionary history by one who took a prominent part in events, but miscellaneous and not very extensive." Larned's Literature of American history.

BROOKS, Elbridge Streeter.

Century book of the American revolution; the story of the pilgrimage of a party of young people to the battlefields of the American revolution. 1897.....j973.3 B77

BUTTERFIELD, Consul Willshire.

Historical account of the expedition against Sandusky under Col. William Crawford, 1782. 1873.....r973.3 B98

Written largely from manuscript authorities.

"Crawford's campaign was one of the most notable of the distinct military enterprises of the Western Border war of the Revolution." Preface.

CARRINGTON, Henry Beebe.

Battles of the American revolution. 1888.....q973.3 C23

The same. 1876.....qr973.3 C23

"The most important of the military histories of the Revolutionary War...He lays down at the beginning the principles of military science, which he applies to his consideration of the several battles." Winsor's Narrative and critical history of America.

Washington the soldier. 1898.....973.3 C23w

Detailed account of Washington's campaigns and an estimate of his qualities as soldier and commander. Together with the account of Washington's military career is included a brief synopsis of the careers of his generals. Many valuable maps, a glossary of military terms, a chronological and biographical index and appendixes containing special statistics and facts complete the work.

CLARK, Gen. George Rogers.

Sketch of his campaign in the Illinois in 1778-9, with an introduction by Henry Pirtle and an appendix containing the public and private instructions to Col. Clark, and Major Bowman's journal of the taking of Post St. Vincents. 1869. (Ohio valley historical series.)r973.3 C52

"Colonel Clark's campaign was a very brief one, and in fighting not particularly arduous, as would appear from his own showing, but it was full of daring, and heroic endurance; it resulted immediately in the reduction of the British military posts between the Ohio and Mississippi...and it finally secured to us all that vast territory...A little of the romance which belongs to all French colonial history hangs about Colonel Clark's unconscious page...but for the most part it is a plain and summary account of the military operations, and depends for its chief interest upon the view it affords of the character of as brave and shrewd a soldier and as bad a speller as ever lived." Atlantic monthly, 1869.

CLINTON, George.

Public papers, 1777-1795, 1801-1804. v.1-8. 1899-1904..r973.3 C595

Submitted to the legislature as the report of the state historian.

Reprint of certain manuscript volumes at Albany, with notes by Mr Hugh Hastings, state historian. Clinton was the first governor of New York state.

CLINTON, Sir Henry.

Narrative. of the campaign in 1781 in North America.

1865.qr973.3 C59

Large paper edition, reprinted from the edition of 1783.

Clinton defends himself against the charge that the British defeats of 1781 were due to his mismanagement. The appendix contains correspondence in regard to the campaign.

Bunker Hill; the story told in letters from the battle field by British officers engaged. 1875.....r973.3 D78b

"These 11 British narratives are preceded by Mr. Drake's brief introduction, in which Prescott is cited as the American commander, rather than Putnam...His work is...marked by wide knowledge, fair temper, critical judgment, cautious method, and a direct style, yet the book is, on the whole, for the special student, rather than the general reader." Larned's Literature of American history.

DRAKE, Samuel Adams.

Burgoyne's invasion of 1777, with a sketch of the American invasion of Canada, 1775-76. 1896. (Decisive events in American history.).....973.3 D78b

"Useful little book, compiled with intelligence and skill, on the basis of recent knowledge, and marked by judgment and fairness, and a good English style...Its most conspicuous merit lies in its lucid tracing of the military movements. Primarily for young readers, but interesting to the general reader, of any age." Larned's Literature of American history.

Campaign of Trenton, 1776-77. 1895. (Decisive events in American history.).....973.3 D78

EELKING, Max von.

German allied troops in the North American war of independence, 1776-1783; tr. and abridged fr. the German by J. G. Rosengarten. 1893.....r973.3 E32

"Manuscript authorities," p.11-14.

"It remains the best source of information in this field, as regards knowledge and judgment, though parts of it are thought by Mr. E. J. Lowell to require acceptance with caution. The style is straightforward (and is well translated); and, to a reader who cares for the subject, the book is full of interest." Larned's Literature of American history.

ELLET, Mrs Elizabeth Fries (Lummis).

Domestic history of the American revolution. 1879....973.3 E51

"The value of this book is chiefly due to the fact that no other writer has treated the same field with any fulness. The bases for the statements here compiled were, in part, tradition...and, in part, manuscript records. The book is not free from errors, but is marked by fairmindedness and a not unattractive style. It has neither illustrations, maps, nor index. For the general reader." Larned's Literature of American history.

FISKE, John.

The American revolution, [1761-1782]. 2v. 1894.....973.3 F54a

"To an extraordinary degree he has succeeded in his endeavor to make plain the events of the American revolution. His style is so transparent and limpid that it seems to disparage all claims to attention... There is no straining after effect,—nothing but the simplest narrative of events which are expected to be attractive in themselves and not to need the ornament of elaborate dressing-up." Dial, 1891.

- Critical period of American history, 1783-1789. 1894.....973.3 F54
 Bibliographical note, p.351-356.
 "In a narrow compass Mr. Fiske offers us the ripe fruit of careful studies...Mr. Fiske does not overestimate the importance of the epoch of transition when he says that 'the period of five years following the Peace of 1783 was the most critical moment in the history of the American people.'" Nation, 1889.

 Some account of the capture of the ship "Aurora." 1899..r973.3 F92
 Sketch of the author, by Jay Milles, p.7-13.
 "The first publication of a manuscript left by Philip Freneau, the poet of the American Revolution, who was a passenger on the ship at the time it fell in with the British frigate Iris. The account is picturesque, though it shows no trace of the poetical talent that undoubtedly was the author's, and its value is greatly enhanced by the numerous illustrations, and by the admirable introductory memoir." Dial, 1900.
- FROTHINGHAM, Richard.
 History of the 'siege of Boston and of the battles of Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill. 1890.....973.3 F97
 "Author a Charlestown antiquary. Work based on thorough study of materials accessible at the time. Well illustrated with plans. Well written though often dry. Somewhat laudatory and not always sound from a military point of view. The standard work on the subject." Larned's Literature of American history.

 "The most valuable collection of documents in these volumes is the 'Horry papers' which relate to Marion's career. Most of the other papers are of purely local interest, and the collection is less important than its title indicates." Larned's Literature of American history.
- GILMORE, James Roberts.
 Rear-guard of the Revolution, [1760-1782]. 1891.....973.3 G42
 History of the services of the early settlers of eastern Tennessee in acting as the rear-guard of the Revolution by holding in check the savages west of the mountains and by annihilating the left wing of Cornwallis's army in the decisive battle of King's mountain.
- GREENE, George Washington.
 Historical view of the American revolution. 1865....r973.3 G82
 "Twelve lectures, originally delivered before the Lowell Institute in Boston, and designed to present in popular form the most important phases of the Revolution. It is a good book to read in connection with one of the standard histories of the war. Its especial merit is the fact that it presents in striking light the salient points of the Revolution, unencumbered with the details of unimportant affairs."

 Heart (1748-91) served in the Revolutionary war, and in the winter of 1784-85 received a commission as captain in a regiment organized for service on the western frontier. The journal chronicles details of the journey. The correspondence between Gov. Dickinson of Pennsylvania and Lieut. Col. Harmar is chiefly in regard to the organization and march of the troops.
- HEATH, William.

Yorktown campaign and the surrender of Cornwallis, 1781. 1881.973.3 J36y

"Based on careful study of the original sources. Accurate and impartial but not readable. Supplied with good plans. The best single work on the Yorktown campaign." Larned's Literature of American history.

JONES, Thomas.

History of New York during the Revolutionary war, and of the leading events in the other colonies at that period; ed. by E. F. de Lancey. 2v. 1879.qr973.3 J41

Author was one of the judges of the Supreme court of New York just before and during the war, went to England in 1781, and when peace was negotiated was prevented from returning, being one of the 59 persons included in the New York act of attainder, by which their estates were confiscated and their lives threatened. This history was written in England during the closing years of his life and is colored by all the intense feeling of the time as well as by the personal bitterness and vindictiveness of the man himself. The editor's careful notes add much to the value of the work.

"One of the most instructive and judicious histories of the Revolution."
American historical review, 1899.

LEE, Henry, 1787-1837.

Campaign of 1781 in the Carolinas, with remarks, historical and critical, on Johnson's Life of Greene, to which is added an appendix of original documents relating to the history of the Revolution. 1824.r973.3 L52

"The value of the volume consists (1) in the light thrown by these 'remarks' on Greene's career; (2) in the fact that the author had access to papers now lost; and (3) in an appendix of documents most of which can now be found printed in other places. Style turgid and difficult to read continuously." Larned's Literature of American history.

LODGE, Henry Cabot.

Story of the Revolution. 2v. 1898.973.3 L76

Appeared in "Scribner's magazine," v.23-24, 1898.
"May be regarded as one of the latest contributions to the gratification of the prevailing taste in our country for military stories and pictures ...The reader will be charmed with the author's graphic and vigorous, often eloquent language. But he may be influenced by it to pass over unscanned or unquestioned statements of doubtful meaning or correctness...The illustrations are mostly works of the imagination or out of date. No references or authorities are given. Figures and dates are scarce." American historical review, 1900.

LOSSING, Benson John.

Pictorial field-book of the Revolution. 2v. 1850.q973.3 L91
The same. 2v. 1860.qr973.3 L91

"The result of a personal examination of the scenes described. Illustrations made from actual sketches. Replete with anecdotes derived from conversations with veterans or embodying local traditions. The principal drawback to its use is the fact that it is arranged according to the author's journeys and not according to sequence of events. A stimulating and useful book." Larned's Literature of American history.

LOWELL, Edward Jackson.

The Hessians, and the other German auxiliaries of Great Britain in the Revolutionary war. 1884.973.3 L95
List of German authorities, p.293-296.
Author has included much that belongs rather to biography or to anecdote than to history, his object being to give an idea of what sort of people the auxiliaries were, and of what impression America and the Americans made upon them. These passages enliven the narrative without detracting from its historical value.

"He has done his best to present to the public a really trustworthy work, in creditable distinction from those who have treated the same subject in the English language." Nation, 1884.

LUDLOW, John Malcolm.

War of American independence, 1775-1783. 1895.

(Epochs of modern history.).....r973.3 L97

Brief summary of chief causes and events of the war.

"Author is an intelligent Englishman who has written other works on American subjects. In about 250 pages this subject is very intelligently covered...A compilation, but it is skilfully made, and marked by judgment, by exceptional fair-mindedness, by a careful method, and by an attractive style." Larned's Literature of American history.

MACKENZIE, Roderick.

Strictures on Lt. Col. Tarleton's "History of the campaigns of 1780 and 1781 in the southern provinces of North America." 1788.....r973.3 M18

MAPS—New York (city). (1782.)

B. F. Stevens's facsimile of the unpublished British head quarters coloured manuscript map of New York & environs, (1782); reproduced from the original drawing in the War office, London. 1900.....qr973.3 M

Size, 10x4 feet, folded in f° cover; scale, about 6½ inches to 1 mile.

During their successive occupations of New York and its environs in the Revolutionary war, the British commanders-in-chief caused this manuscript map to be kept up. It extends from below Guanab bay to the heights of Spuyten Duyvil, about 19 miles, showing the fortifications, topography, etc. of the whole island of New York, with the harbor, islands, waterways, and river frontages on the Hudson and East rivers, the military works on Long Island, including Brooklyn, and parts of the Jersey shore.

Journal of the expedition to Quebec, 1775, under the command of Benedict Arnold. 1857.....r973.3 M59

MINUTES of a conspiracy against the liberties of America.

1865.qr973.3 M73

Reprint of a very rare publication which originally appeared in 1786. Original title-page reads "Minutes of the trial and examination of certain persons in the province of New York charged with being engaged in a conspiracy against the authority of the Congress and the liberties of America."

Preface states that the Minutes were "discovered (on the late capture of New-York by the British troops) among the papers of a person who appears to have been secretary to the committee." They relate to a conspiracy against Congress, and particularly against Washington, whom the conspirators proposed to carry off.

PITKIN, Timothy.

- Political and civil history of the United States, 1763-1797. 2v. 1828.r973.3 P66
 "The book is exceedingly valuable to investigators...It is a dry record of facts, unrelieved by any spirited narrative, or any attempt at delineation of character. The style is not pure, nor is the manner elevated. The author's knowledge was...extensive; and his judgment impartial; but he showed utter lack of skill in the art of putting his materials together into attractive form." C. K. Adams.

 Observations on the nature of civil liberty, the principles of government, and the justice and policy of the war with America. 1776.r973.3 P94
 "A celebrated tract by a somewhat famous philosopher and economist against the justice and policy of the British government's course toward the colonies. It is said that the encouragement it gave had no inconsiderable share in bringing about the Declaration of Independence, and it gained for its author great repute. There is an appendix on the state of the British national debt and the income and expenditures of the government since the French war." Larned's Literature of American history.

RAMSAY, David.

History of the American revolution. 2v. in 1. 1789....r973.3 R17

"One of the most substantial and worthy accounts of our Revolutionary period. In the light of more modern investigation, it is not difficult to criticise some of the details of the work...Perhaps the author dwells with too much minuteness on military affairs, and has somewhat too little to say of the great causes of the events which he describes." *C. Records of the Revolutionary war; containing the correspondence of officers and names of officers and privates.

1858.r973.3 S12

"Compilation of the names of Revolutionary officers and privates, arranged by regiments or companies; of distinguished prisoners of war; of the officers of the Society of the Cincinnati; of the officers entitled to land pay; of foreign officers; and of officers receiving land warrants. These lists are valuable for genealogical purposes. A number of letters from paymasters and other officers is added, together with legislation on military land warrants. These serve the purpose of those who are tracing Revolutionary claims." Larned's Literature of American history.

ST. CLAIR, Gen. Arthur.

St. Clair papers; life and public services of St. Clair; arranged by W. H. Smith. 2v. 1882.....r973.3 S13

"A well-digested edition of the St. Clair papers, classified chronologically, and provided with a serviceable index. The first volume contains the editor's own study of the 'Life and Public Services of Arthur St. Clair'...and more than one-third of the St. Clair Papers, this portion embracing St. Clair's correspondence during the period of the boundary troubles between Pennsylvania and Virginia, also during Lord Dunmore's war and the entire Revolutionary struggle. The second volume is devoted entirely to papers touching the government and defence of the Northwestern Territory...It is chiefly for his...merits as the pioneer of law and institutions in the Northwest that [St. Clair] ought to be known; and it is perhaps the chief merit of Mr. Smith's work that he has laid special stress upon the above introduction of government by St. Clair under the Ordinance of 1787." Nation, 1882.

SLOANE, William Milligan.

The French war and the Revolution, [1756-1783]. 1893.

(American history series.)r973.3 S63

Bibliography, p.393-396.

"A compendious account, covering the period 1756-83. The conditions do not admit of much new matter or striking originality of treatment; but the state of the French and English colonies at the outbreak of the last French and Indian war, the causes of the Revolution, and the connection between the Revolution and changing American political ideas, are well brought out. The style is agreeable." Larned's Literature of American history.

SPARKS, Jared, ed.

Correspondence of the American revolution; letters to Washington. 4v. 1853.qr973.3 S73

"The collection is not exhaustive, but consists of letters selected by the editor. Especially important and numerous are the letters of Greene, Lafayette, Schuyler, Knox, Lincoln, George Clinton, Rochambeau, Hancock and Jonathan Trumbull. Many by Hamilton, Jefferson, G. Morris and Madison also appear." Larned's Literature of American history.

Diplomatic correspondence of the American revolution, concerning the foreign relations of the United States, with letters from the secret committee of Congress and the secretary of foreign affairs, also the entire correspondence of the French ministers, Gerard and Luzerne, with Congress. 12v. 1829-30.....r973.3 S73d

- v.1. Silas Deane's correspondence.
- v.2. Arthur Lee's correspondence.
- v.3-4. Benjamin Franklin's correspondence.
- v.5-7. John Adams's correspondence.
- v.8. John Jay's correspondence.
- v.9. William Carmichael's correspondence.
- v.10. General Lafayette's correspondence.
- v.11. Luzerne's correspondence.
- v.12. Robert Morris's correspondence.

"Sparks had access to the papers of the Department of State, and made here the first authoritative collection of the Revolutionary diplomatic correspondence...Sparks's method of editing has fallen into disrepute: he printed only such documents as he thought of importance, and he did not hesitate to omit or alter passages containing what he considered irrelevant or objectionable matter. His texts, accordingly, cannot be relied upon. For most purposes, the collection has now been superseded by Wharton's Revolutionary diplomatic correspondence." Larned's Literature of American history.

Campaign in Virginia, 1781; an exact reprint of six rare pamphlets on the Clinton-Cornwallis controversy. 2v. 1888.qr973.3 S84

- v.1. Sir Henry Clinton's Narrative.—Earl Cornwallis's Answer.—Clinton's Observations on some parts of the Answer of Cornwallis to Clinton.—Reply to Clinton's Narrative, by Themistocles.—A parting word; or, A summary view of the controversy between Clinton and Cornwallis.—Chronological correspondence, 17 May 1780-31 May 1781.
- v.2. Chronological correspondence, 4 June 1781-27 Dec. 1781.—Extracts from the journals of the House of lords.—Correspondance du Lord G. Germain.—Additional correspondence of Clinton and Cornwallis, 1780-81.

"Contains practically everything concerning the controversy between Clinton and Cornwallis as to which was responsible for the fortification of Yorktown." Larned's Literature of American history.

STEVENS, Benjamin Franklin, comp.

Facsimiles of manuscripts in European archives relating to America, 1773-1783.. 25v. 1889-98.....qr973.3 S84f

"The inaccessibility of most manuscripts, the general demand to-day for veracious sources...and the stimulation to work caused by examination of originals...were inducements enough to present the best possible substitute—photographic facsimiles on enduring paper, beautifully imitating in 'fibre, texture, color, sizing, and mill-finish' some models of the Revolutionary period...It is our greatest historical monument since Force's 'Archives' and altogether the stateliest in form." Nation, 1898.

STONE, William Leete, b. 1835.

Campaign of Lieut. Gen. John Burgoyne and the expedition of Lieut. Col. Barry St. Leger. 1877.....973.3 S88

"It is frankly a compilation, but it is the work of a historian who has made this field of investigation his own, in a half dozen other historical studies of the Burgoyne campaign, and is usually marked by fair judgment and temper...Intended for the general reader." Larned's Literature of American history.

STRYKER, William Scudder.

The battles of Trenton and Princeton. 1898.....973.3 S92

"Authorities," p.486-492.

"Covers the period from the beginning of the retreat through the Jerseys until after the battle of Princeton...The author uses many documents never before laid under contribution, especially German records of the Hessian soldiers." Larned's Literature of American history.

TARLETON, Sir Banastre.

History of the campaigns of 1780 and 1781 in the southern provinces of North America. 1787.....r973.3 T21

Colonel Tarleton's history gives a minute detail of all the military operations in both Carolinas, and part of Virginia, until the surrender of Lord Cornwallis with his whole army at Yorktown, Oct. 19, 1781.

THACHER, James.

Military journal during the American revolution, with biographical sketches of several general officers.

1827.973.3 T33

The same, to which is added the life of Washington, his farewell address, etc. 1862.r973.3 T33

"Dr. Thacher (1754-1844) served as a surgeon in the American army, and his journal has the great value of first-hand knowledge of the events." Larned's Literature of American history.

THORNTON, John Wingate, ed.

Pulpit of the American revolution; or, The political sermons of the period of 1776. 1860.r973.3 T41

"Collection of nine discourses, ranging from Dr. Mayhew's (Jan. 30, 1750) to Dr. Stiles' Election sermon, 1783, to prove that 'to the Puritan pulpit we owe the moral force which won our independence' ...A good edition of characteristically stirring discourses which have occasionally an astonishingly modern ring to them." Larned's Literature of American history.

TIFFANY, Mrs Nina (Moore).

From colony to commonwealth; stories of the Revolutionary days in Boston. 1897.....j973.3 T45

TOWER, Charlemagne.

Marquis de La Fayette in the American revolution, with some account of the attitude of France toward the War of independence. 2v. 1895.....973.3 T65

"Mr. Tower's account is most inclusive, careful, and satisfactory... It is not too much to say that he has quadrupled the amount of accessible material concerning Lafayette, relating to this period, and it is difficult to recall a biographical work in American history containing such a wealth of original material concerning the subject treated. For its accounts of the battles of Brandywine, Monmouth, and the campaign of 1781 in Virginia, it is unequalled; and scarcely less good is its outline of the French services to the United States during the Revolution. Mr. Tower writes clearly and interestingly, and has the...advantage of being an admirable linguist; so his translations can be absolutely relied upon." Larned's Literature of American history.

TOWLE MANUFACTURING CO.

Georgian; a pattern of spoons, forks and all other pieces of table flat ware, also an account of the chief events of the War of the revolution and the acts of oppression which preceded and provoked it. 1899.....r973.3 T65
The account of the Revolution is entirely distinct from the silverware designs, and is illustrated with pictures scattered through the text, among them a representation of old Fort Pitt.

TREVELYAN, Sir George Otto.

The American revolution. 2v. in 3. 1899-1903.....973.3 T73

v.1. 1766-1776.

v.2, pt.1. 1776.

v.2, pt.2. 1777-1778.

In attempting to write a sequel to his early history of Charles James Fox Mr Trevelyan found the story of Fox from 1774 to 1782 so inextricably interwoven with that of the American revolution that he was finally led into writing this history.

"With Fox as a central figure, the story of the American Revolution is told with freshness, no small knowledge, and in a spirit of generous sympathy with all that was best in the Revolution...Here and there are brilliant sketches of men and manners, and terse epigrammatic sayings recalling pages, and these by no means the least effective, of the author's illustrious uncle." The Times (London), 1899.

Revolutionary diplomatic correspondence of the United States, with preliminary index and notes historical and legal. 6v. 1889. (United States. 50th cong. 1st sess. House. Misc. doc. no.603.).....r973.3 W59

Brief sketch of the life of Francis Wharton, by J. B. Moore, v.1, p.11-27.

"Was authorized by an Act of Congress, August 13, 1888, and was designed to correct, complete, and enlarge the Diplomatic correspondence of the Revolution [r973.3 S73d], by Jared Sparks, 1829-1830...It is a mine of wealth to the student of the diplomatic history of the Revolution, for it contains papers from published memoirs, family archives, and the records of the Department of State, all edited with scrupulous care. The period covered is from 1775 to 1785. Volume first is entirely taken up with an elaborate table of contents, a life of Dr. Wharton (d.1889)...and an introduction, long, discursive and ponderous...on the development of diplomacy and the careers of the diplomats of the United States during the period covered." Larned's Literature of American history.

v.7-9. 1813-1817.

"The most valuable history of this important period, remarkable alike for its research, its penetrating analysis of character and political tendencies, and for the flood of light which it throws upon every phase of the foreign relations of the country...Mr. Adams is at his best in unravelling the complications of diplomacy, and in analyzing the mind and feeling of the different sections of the country." Larned's Literature of American history.

ADAMS, John Quincy.

The jubilee of the constitution; a discourse delivered at the request of the New York historical society, 30th of Apr. 1839, being the 50th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington, with an account of the celebration. 1839.r973 T99
Bound with other pamphlets.

ADAMS, John Quincy, and others.

Correspondence between John Quincy Adams and several citizens of Massachusetts concerning the charge of a design to dissolve the Union, alleged to have existed in that state, to which are added additional papers illustrative of the subject. 1829.r973.4 A21

CONWAY, Moncure Daniel.

Omitted chapters of history disclosed in the life and papers of Edmund Randolph. 1889.973.4 C76
"A significant contribution to our knowledge of the political events in which Edmund Randolph bore a leading part. The services of Randolph in the constitutional development of the United States are clearly set forth....So far as Randolph's integrity is concerned, Mr. Conway has shown, by documents in French, British and American archives, how baseless is the imputation that Randolph sought, in secret collusion with the French minister, to thwart the policy of the administration he served. He has also conclusively disposed of the fiction by which he is made to appear on the books of the United States Treasury as a defaulter. From the fresh materials gathered Mr. Conway has painted a new portrait wholly unlike the traditional one drawn by Jefferson." Political science quarterly, 1889.

GIBBS, George, 1815-75, ed.

Memoirs of the administrations of Washington and John Adams; ed. fr. the papers of Oliver Wolcott. 2v. 1846.r973.4 G36
"A source of primary importance for the history of the Federalist party, consisting mainly of letters to and from Wolcott. The editor's narrative connecting and summarizing the original papers is clear and accurate, but his judgments are strongly biased against the Republicans. Wolcott's correspondence throws a full light on the ideas and purposes of the Federalists, the beginnings of party organization, and upon the practical work of putting the new government under the Constitution into operation." Larned's Literature of American history.

HERMANN, Binger.

Louisiana purchase and our title west of the Rocky mountains, with a review of annexation by the United States. 1898.....q973.4 H47

The same. 1900. (United States. 56th cong. 2d sess.

House. Doc. no.708.).....qr973.4 H47

"Hermann argues the hardly disputed thesis that the Louisiana cession did not include the Oregon territory. He presents a brief history of American expansion and sketches of men prominent in the movement...He explored no unfamiliar sources and gives no evidence of sound scholarship, while he is inaccurate in details. His dull style is occasionally enlivened by cheap rhetorical outbursts." Larned's Literature of American history.

HOSMER, James Kendall.

History of the Louisiana purchase. 1902.....973.4 H82

"Traces rapidly the early history of Louisiana; the subsequent steps in the negotiations between France and the United States being followed in more detail...The novelty of the work is the fuller account than other English writers have given of the negotiations as narrated in the 'Mémoires' of Lucien Bonaparte." Nation, 1902.

Mr Hosmer has approached the subject from the French side, making large use of French authorities and giving at length some important secret history not fully set forth heretofore in English.

MONROE, James, 1758-1831.

View of the conduct of the executive in the foreign affairs of the United States connected with the mission to the French republic, 1794-6. 1797.....r973.4 M83

"An attack on Washington's management of foreign affairs. Gives Monroe's account of his diplomatic mission in France in 1795-6. It reveals the man's mediocrity; and convicts him of the offences charged against him by his enemies. It is an ill-written performance; little skill and less judgment are apparent, and the whole is decidedly unfair and ill tempered. The appendix contains many useful documents, and gives Monroe's letters expressing his opinions of the state of France in 1795-6." Larned's Literature of American history.

"Portrays the struggle between the national and states-rights theories, tracing their growth from the Missouri Compromise. The Mexican cessions and their political consequences are discussed at disproportionate length. Mr. Burgess possesses keen logical power; has written from the sources; holds pronounced views and is not unbiassed, though he usually states both sides fairly and moderately. "The history of the navy during the sail period is in a large degree represented by the record of this great ship...The author has given us a most interesting book, and one which, while very useful for historical reference, is made especially, interesting by...correct and pleasing literary style." American historical review, 1901.
- HOUSTON, David Franklin.
Critical study of nullification in South Carolina. 1896.
(Harvard historical studies.)973.5 H83
"A concise, scholarly work, dealing at first hand with a limited field. The early history of nullification in South Carolina, and its connection with the politics of the state and tariff legislation of the United States have nowhere been so accurately exhibited. Especially important is the discussion of Calhoun's attitude, and his claim to leadership in the movement. An appendix gives a few relevant documents." Larned's Literature of American history.

History of the War of 1812-15. 1882.973.5 J36

"Description of the land and naval battles, with chapters on the causes of the war, and the Hartford convention...The style is easy and the book readable, but shows no evidence of investigation or new matter." Larned's Literature of American history.

LOSSING, Benson John.

Pictorial field-book of the War of 1812; or, Illustrations, by pen and pencil, of the history, biography, scenery, relics and traditions of the last war for American independence. [1868.]973.5 L91

The same. 1896.qr973.5 L91

"Not only is the history of the campaigning of 1812-14 attempted, but also that of the civil administration and leading political events of the period extending from the Revolution to the treaty of Ghent. To these are added personal sketches and biographies not only of prominent public characters, but of officers, soldiers, sailors, and scouts, ambassadors, writers, and editors...Note-book and pencil in hand, the author has travelled more than ten thousand miles between the great Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico, visiting nearly all the scenes of the incidents recorded, receiving accounts from survivors, and sketching scenery, battle-fields, and notable localities. The result is a handsome volume of more than one thousand pages, which one may open anywhere at random and find interesting." Nation, 1869.

PECK, Charles Henry.

The Jacksonian epoch. 1899.973.5 P35

Presents the political history of the United States from the battle of New Orleans to the succession of Tyler to the presidency, and points out the influence of the two men who, more than any others, shaped the events of this epoch—namely, Jackson and Clay.

The author hopes to aid in creating a more generous national sentiment, to convince all sections that no one section has exclusive claim to national righteousness, in short, to recognize the full part of the South in the building of the nation.

ROOSEVELT, Theodore.

Naval war of 1812. 1894.973.5 R68

The author has thoroughly studied preceding histories, the published documents of both the English and American governments, and especially the material in our own Navy department, much of which had never been touched before, and has written an extremely interesting history of the war. Of many of the engagements he gives very complete accounts, carefully considering the comparative skill and power of the opposing forces.

Protest against the histories in which the Civil war is discussed entirely from a Northern point of view. In this connection Goldwin Smith's "United States" is severely criticized. Concludes with a defense of the American Indian.

DAVIS, Jefferson.

Rise and fall of the Confederate government. 2v. 1881..973.7 D31

"Largely a history of the military operations of the Civil War, adding few facts to the controversy. Prefaced by excursive essays to prove on historical authority the right of secession. Probably the most scholarly recital of the 'states rights' arguments, since it was written by the leader of the movement after mature reflection. Concerning the Confederate states it reveals little inside history; no personal reminiscence; controversial rather than descriptive. Closes with the earlier period of Reconstruction." Larned's Literature of American history.

Short history of the Confederate States of America.

1890.....r973.7 D31

"The introductory chapters were written 'to prove by historical authority that the states had the reserved power of seceding.' The larger portion of the book treats of the southern conduct of the war to show 'how thorough was their conviction of the justice of their cause.' Contrasts especially the conduct of the northern and southern troops in the treatment of captives and neutrals. The accuracy of the military details has been challenged by certain Confederate generals. The personality of the writer is kept in the background. He closes the narrative with his capture." Larned's Literature of American history.

DODGE, Theodore Ayrault.

Bird's-eye view of our Civil war. 1884.....973.7 D67

"The style is simple and clear, the tone elevated and fair, the conception of military operations comprehensive, and the criticisms upon them judicious...Evidently...the work of an experienced soldier... Many evidences of haste and inaccuracy...Data seem, in a number of instances, to have been imperfectly used." Nation, 1883.

DRAPER, John William.

History of the American civil war. 3v. 1867-70.....973.7 D79

"This book is pervaded with Dr. Draper's peculiar views of the causes of national development...His beliefs are essentially those of Buckle. At bottom, he has no faith in other causes than those which can be traced directly to Nature. Climate is the great controlling force. He attaches his faith principally to the January isothermal of forty-one degrees...As an attempt to build a history on a philosophical foundation, the work cannot be called a very signal success. Until it can be shown that an isothermal has something to do with such blunders as those at Fredericksburg and Chickamauga, most men will regard Dr. Draper's theories as not proved." C. K. Adams.

FISKE, John.

Mississippi valley in the Civil war. 1900.....973.7 F54

Does not attempt to cover the less important incidents, but treats those dominant movements which prophesied and led to the final result of the war.

Harper's pictorial history of the great Rebellion. 2v.

1866-68.qr973.7 H28

"During the actual progress of the war, Harper's weekly was the leading illustrated paper in bringing its scenes home in pictorial sketches by artists on the spot. When the war ended, the natural sequel was the collecting, selecting, connecting, and...editing this war matter in separate form. This book is the result, and in its way, text and pictures can never be wholly superseded as an authentic current narrative and illustration of the period." Larned's Literature of American history.

HEADLEY, Joel Tyler.

The great Rebellion; a history of the Civil war. 2v. 1863—

66.....r973.7 H38

"A reasonably adequate view of the war, for uncritical readers, as seen by one who is in the midst of the northern Union sentiment. The style is simple, and the defects of the narrative are mainly due to inaccessibility of full documentary evidence, such as later compilations now put at the command of all writers." Larned's Literature of American history.

JOHNSON, Rossiter.

LOGAN, Gen. John Alexander, 1826-86.

The great conspiracy; its origin and history. 1886.....r973.7 L77

"Sketches the growth of the contest between the Union and the States, and...the history of the War of the Rebellion. The author keeps himself entirely in the background and mingles the civic with the military conduct of the war...Too partisan and bitter against the Confederates to rank as history." Larned's Literature of American history.

"The fairness of his spirit has been manifest in every chapter, his military criticism is rarely at fault, his powers of description give his pages great vividness and stirring life, and his sympathy with the national cause for which he fought is sincere and outspoken. No other historian of the Civil War can compare with him in grasp of the subject as a whole and in judicious proportioning of the parts." Nation, 1888.

Lost cause; a Southern history of the war of the Confederates. 1867.....r973.7 P76l

The same. 1867.....r973.7 P76l

"A book struck off at a white heat by a Richmond editor of the most uncompromising secessionist principles, who was utterly unappreciative of northern character and sentiment. Valuable for the southern side of the slavery controversy and the Civil War, though necessarily untrustworthy because of the writer's temper, lack of judgment and inability to get complete information. Pollard is savagely hostile to President Davis. The book is written in an interesting, but turgid and oratorical style." Larned's Literature of American history.

Southern history of the war. 2v. 1866.....r973.7 P76

v.1. To the opening of the campaigns of 1862.

v.2. The campaigns of 1862.

List of works cited, v.1, p.11-14; v.2, p.7-12.

A political and military history. The author's special object is "to write of the subjects treated from the standpoint of each of the contending parties."

"Incontestably the most intelligent as well as the most complete and impartial analysis of the campaigns and battles of the Great Rebellion, so far given to the world. The author has used his abundant materials with all the acumen and skill of a trained lawyer and critic and with unerring certainty, in the singularly clear and succinct narrative, which he has given us." American historical review, 1900.

The author died in 1899, soon after the publication of the second volume, leaving the work only a little more than half finished.

"A monumental work...the most important, by far, of all books concerned with the Civil War period. It is divided into four series. The first contains the strictly military reports and correspondence relating to campaigns in the field, with the statistical returns of the armies, both Union and Confederate. The second gives the records and correspondence relating to prisoners of war and prisoners of state so far as the military authorities dealt with them. The third [embodies] everything relating to calls for national troops, whether militia or volunteers, and the apportionment to the states, the enforcement of drafts, etc.: also the reports, etc., of the administrative bureaus of the War Department, and the correspondence between the national and the state authorities. The fourth [is] the compilation of the Confederate records similar to those of the third series, so far as they have been preserved...The first is much the largest and most essential to the study of the period." Larned's Literature of American history.

Essays on the Civil war and reconstruction. 1898.....973.7 D92
Contents: The constitution of the United States in Civil war.—The constitution of the United States in reconstruction.—Military government during reconstruction.—The process of reconstruction.—The impeachment and trial of President Johnson.—Are the states equal under the constitution?—American political philosophy.

"The military history of the Civil war is familiar or readily accessible; the constitutional and political history is neither. As to the Reconstruction, the term is to most people merely a synonym for bad government, and conveys no idea of the profound problems of statecraft that had to be solved between 1865 and 1870. These essays... have been written with reference to this situation." Preface.

GRANGER, Moses Moorhead.

Washington vs. Jefferson; the case tried by battle in 1861—

65. 1898.....973.7 G78

Brief, plain, popular statement of the opposing doctrines of states' rights, and of the supremacy of the national government, and a narrative of the growth in this vital difference of opinions from Washington and Jefferson down through the Civil war.

GREELEY, Horace.

American conflict; a history of the great Rebellion, intended to exhibit especially its moral and political phases, with the drift and progress of American opinion respecting human slavery from 1776 to [1865]. 2v.

1864-66.973.7 G82

"Distinctively a political rather than a military history of the war... The first half of the first volume is perhaps the best existing portrayal of the causes that led gradually up to the conflict. No man was more familiar with American politics from 1830 to 1860 than Mr. Greeley; and of the vast stores of his knowledge he made good use in the volume before us. The part of slavery is especially well portrayed, and the cumulative power of the story carries the reader forward with irresistible force. The military portion of the history is less fortunate." C. K. Adams.

KING, Horatio.

Turning on the light; dispassionate survey of Buchanan's administration. 1895.....973.7 K26

"Author...was Assistant Postmaster-General under President Buchanan, and Acting Postmaster-General after Mr. Holt's appointment as Secretary of War. About half the contents are an unsuccessful attempt to defend the administrative acts of President Buchanan dealing with secession, during the few months preceding the Civil War."

The same. 1894.....r973.7 L95

POLLARD, Edward Albert.

Rival administrations; Richmond and Washington, Dec.

1863. 1864.....r973.7 P76r

Pollard believed in the Southern cause but disliked Jefferson Davis. He finds evidences of weakness at Richmond, and vigor and decision, although accompanied by brutality, at Washington.

SCOTT, Eben. Greenough.

Reconstruction during the Civil war in the United States.

1895.973.7 S4251

"Consists largely of an introduction which presents the rights of the states against the encroachments of the Federal Union, the lack of coercive power in the latter, and the just demand of the seceding states for restoration unimpaired. Hence true reconstruction history is treated very briefly and largely by extracts from speeches of the radical Republicans in Congress." Larned's Literature of American history.

STEPHENS, Alexander Hamilton.

Constitutional view of the late war between the states. 2v.

1868-70. 1973.7 S83

"These volumes, by one of the ablest as well as one of the most conspicuous champions of the South, might very properly have been called a history of the doctrines of nullification and secession. But they are not simply a history, they are an argument...There has probably been no abler presentation of the argument of the South."
C. K. Adams.

VALLANDIGHAM, Clement Laird.

Record of C. L. Vallandigham on abolition, the Union and the Civil war. 1863. 1973.7 V15

Vallandigham belonged to the extreme states' rights wing of the Democratic party and believed that the South could not be compelled to abolish slavery and that the Union could not be preserved by force of arms.

Diplomatic history

BIGELOW, John.

France and the Confederate navy, 1862-1868; an international episode. 1888. 973.7 B47

"What he playfully terms an 'international episode'...was nothing less than the attempt of the Confederacy, with the active coöperation of the Emperor Napoleon III., to make France play the same part for the Confederates that she played in 1778 for the Revolutionary colonies. The story has up to this time remained buried in the captured Confederate archives." Nation, 1888.

CALLAHAN, James Morton.

Diplomatic history of the Southern confederacy. 1901.

(Albert Shaw lectures on diplomatic history, 1900.) . . . 973.7 C13

"Attempts to give a careful and purely historical presentation of the theories, purposes, policies, diplomatic efforts, and difficulties of the Secessionists, as reflected from their official archives and other original records. It traces the inner working of the diplomatic machine...observes the attitude, motives, and policy of the great nations with whom the Confederate agents sought to negotiate, and throws light upon international questions arising between the United States and foreign powers." Preface.

HARRIS, Thomas Le Grand.

The Trent affair, including a review of English and American relations at the beginning of the Civil war. 1896. . 973.7 H29

"Complete survey of the question; the author being thoroughly informed, and writing from the original sources. The conclusions reached are in all essential particulars favorable to the legal position taken by the English ministry." Larned's Literature of American history.

Oberlin Thursday lectures; addresses and essays. 1897. . 973.7 M83

Contents: The early abolitionists; introductory.—The early abolitionists; personal recollections.—The early abolitionists; Frederick Douglass.—My first legislative experience; work in the legislature.—My first legislative experience; reception by the people.—A journey to Virginia in December 1859.—Special duties of consuls of the United States during the Civil war.—William H. Seward and the foreign affairs of the United States.—The Hayes-Tilden electoral commission.—Leading speakers in Congress from 1871 to 1881.—Joseph as a statesman.

Naval history

AMMEN, Daniel.

The Atlantic coast. 1883. (The navy in the Civil war.) . . 973.7 A51

Account of naval operations from Cape Hatteras to Cape Florida.
"Throughout the book Union and Confederate reports of the same occurrences are joined to support or check each other. The work indicates laborious research and straightforward honesty...Altogether the book is a pleasant and instructive one." Nation, 1883.

MAHAN, Capt. Alfred Thayer.

- The Gulf and inland waters. 1883. (The navy in the Civil war.)973.7 M25
 "Deals principally with the service of the navy at Mobile and on the Mississippi and its tributaries." Nation, 1883.

MATTHEWS, Franklin.

- Our navy in time of war, (1861-1898). 1899.....j973.7 M47 PORTER, Admiral David Dixon.

- Naval history of the Civil war. 1886.....qr973.7 P83
 "Admiral Porter's accuracy of statement has been seriously impeached. His report of conversations and proceedings during President Lincoln's visit to Richmond (the Admiral being present) is said to be untrue to a degree which cannot easily be accounted for." Larned's Literature of American history.

SCHARF, John Thomas.

- History of the Confederate States navy. 1894.....q973.7 S31
The same. 1887.....r973.7 S31

"In writing a book upon this great and attractive subject, Mr. Scharf has been fortunate in having an absolutely unoccupied field. Having been himself one of the pupils of the Naval academy at Richmond, and having borne a creditable part in some of the famous exploits of his service, he has exceptional advantages for the tests of authorship...The most extraordinary feature, however, of Mr. Scharf's otherwise useful book is the undercurrent of political animosity and bitterness which penetrates all his references to the causes of the war and the conduct and motives of the Union leaders." Nation, 1887.

SEMMES, Admiral Raphael.

- Service afloat; or, The career of the cruisers Sumter and Alabama during the war between the states. 1887....r973.7 S47 Running title reads "Memoirs of service afloat."
 "Interesting story of the Sumter and the Alabama, Confederate cruisers, their construction, and their exploits. The cruise of the Alabama in foreign parts is well told. The author commanded each vessel and writes from personal experience. There are a few preliminary chapters justifying the South in trying to secede from the Union." Larned's Literature of American history.

SEMMES, Admiral Raphael, and others.

- Cruise of the Alabama and the Sumter, from private journals. 1864.....r973.7 S47c

SINCLAIR, Arthur.

- Two years on the Alabama. 1896.....973.7 S61
 An account of the Alabama from the time of her escape from the Mersey down to her destruction by the Kearsarge. The author was fifth lieutenant of the Alabama.
 "Good-tempered, though one-sided, and a distinct contribution to civil war literature." Dial, 1896.

SOLEY, James Russell.

- The blockade and the cruisers. 1890. (The navy in the Civil war.).....973.7 S68
 "The first service the navy was called on to perform in the war was to establish the blockade...The experiences of the blockading squadrons are given in detail—in Chesapeake Bay, on the Atlantic coast, and in the Gulf...The principal naval action immediately connected with the blockade and the attempts to break it was that of the Monitor and Merrimac...The book is well arranged, written clearly, without technical terms, and shows great familiarity with the subject." Nation, 1883.

- Sailor boys of '61. 1887.....j973.7 S68s

TAYLOR, Thomas E.

- Running the blockade. 1896.....973.7 T25
 In the interests of English merchants the author ran the Northern blockade many times during the Civil war. He relates his many adventures and narrow escapes.

UNITED STATES—Navy department.

- Official records of the Union and Confederate navies in the War of the rebellion, 1st ser., v.1—date. 1894—date..r973.7 U25
 Authentic contemporaneous records of the war. Includes the reports, orders and correspondence relating to all naval operations, condition of the navy, before and during the war, construction of the Confederate navy, statistics and correspondence relating to naval prisoners, etc.

Special campaigns and battles

BARNARD, John Gross.

- C. S. A. and the battle of Bull Run. 1862.....r973.7 B25
 Barnard was brigadier-general and chief engineer of the Army of the Potomac. Extremely brief history of the secession of the Confederate States is followed by an account of the battle, taken almost entirely from official reports. Five maps of the battle-field are included.

BOYNTON, Henry Van Ness.

- Was General Thomas slow at Nashville? 1896.....r973.7 B67
 Appeared in the New York "Sun," Aug. 9, 1896.
 Thomas was severely criticized for his delay in attacking Hood at Nashville in 1864. The facts are briefly reviewed and Thomas's action defended.

CIST, Gen. Henry Martyn.

- Army of the Cumberland. 1892. (Campaigns of the Civil war.).....r973.7 C49
 "A conscientious and truthful narrative of the operations of the Army of the Cumberland from the date of its organization to the end of the Chattanooga campaign, but it does not deal with the battle of Shiloh, in which that army took such an important part." Nation, 1882.

COLLIS, Charles Henry Tucky.

- [Letters refuting a slander against C. H. T. Collis, colonel, 114th Pennsylvania volunteers.] 1891.....r973.7 S62
 Bound with "Sketch of the 126th regiment Pennsylvania volunteers."

CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA—War department.

- Reports of the operations of the Army of northern Virginia, from June 1862 to and including the battle at Fredericksburg, Dec. 13, 1862. 2v. 1864.....r973.7 C74r

COX, Gen. Jacob Dolson.

- Atlanta. 1882. (Campaigns of the Civil war.).....r973.7 C85
 "General Cox has given us a clear and straightforward account of the memorable campaign of Sherman against Atlanta...The author, himself a distinguished participant in the movements he describes, shows great familiarity with all the details of the campaign, and a minute comprehension of the varied topography of the field of operations. His narrative is careful and painstaking, and his style lucid, though he is likely to become wearisome to other than professional readers, from the particularity with which he describes the positions and movements of the troops." Nation, 1882.

- Battle of Franklin, Tennessee, Nov. 30, 1864. 1897.....r973.7 C85b
 "Author was a volunteer officer of distinction, an experienced literary worker, especially in the history of the Civil War. In this book he makes an important contribution to our acquaintance with a campaign which has been the subject of much discussion, especially in its bearing upon the respective merits of Sherman and Thomas." Larned's Literature of American history.

March to the sea; Franklin and Nashville. 1892. (Campaigns of the Civil war.).....973.7 C85m

"Concise but clear narrative of Thomas's defence of Tennessee against Hood in the fall of 1864, and of Sherman's 'March to the Sea' and his subsequent campaign in the Carolinas down to the close of the war." Nation, 1882.

Second battle of Bull Run, as connected with the Fitz-John

Porter case. 1882.....r973.7 C853

"In this little book General Cox has presented some ingenious arguments in opposition to the conclusion arrived at by the Board of Officers who re-examined the case of General Porter. He seems to have felt it to be his duty to reiterate his belief in Porter's guilt." Nation, 1882.

CRAWFORD, Gen. Samuel Wylie.

Genesis of the Civil war; the story of Sumter. 1887.....973.7 C87

Also published with the title "History of the fall of Fort Sumter."

"The new matter which Gen. Crawford has collected is most of it very valuable...In collating the material he has collected, the author has avoided carefully—too carefully, we think—the expression of his own judgment, preferring to let the principal characters speak through their own documents and recorded conversations." Nation, 1888.

DAVIS, Nicholas A.

Campaign from Texas to Maryland. 1863.....r973.7 D32

Davis was chaplain of the 4th Texas regiment. Gives very brief account of the part Texas played in the war, with muster roll of the regiment.

DOUBLEDAY, Gen. Abner.

Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. 1892. (Campaigns of the Civil war.).....973.7 D75

Interesting though not unbiased record of these important battles.

"Such recollections are very interesting, but they are in no sense history; and the whole tenor of this book is so essentially different from that of the series in which it is placed...that we hardly think it necessary to follow these personal recollections in detail." Nation, 1882.

Gettysburg made plain; a succinct account of the campaign and battles. 1888.....r973.7 D75g

"Gen. Doubleday...was active in high command throughout the battle, and had an active part afterward in the discussion of the controversial questions which arose...His position and means of knowledge make him a weighty factor in the discussion." Larned's Literature of American history.

Reminiscences of Forts Sumter and Moultrie, 1860–61.

1876.r973.7 D75r

Author was a captain in the 1st United States artillery at Fort Moultrie and afterwards at Fort Sumter. His book is a valuable memoir, vigorous and interesting in style.

DRAKE, Samuel Adams.

Battle of Gettysburg, 1863. 1893. (Decisive events in American history.).....973.7 D78

Pictures the field and the surroundings of the fight, Lee's march into Pennsylvania, the points of strategic importance, the battle itself and the retreat. Includes a chapter of entertaining anecdotes and miscellany, and an estimate of the forces of the Army of the Potomac.

DWIGHT, Theodore Frelinghuysen, ed.

Campaigns in Virginia, 1861–1862. 1895. (Military historical society of Massachusetts. Papers.).....973.7 D97

Contents: Patterson's Shenandoah campaign, by Col. T. L. Livermore.—The Peninsular campaign: General McClellan's plans, by J. C. Ropes.—The siege of Yorktown, by Gen. J. C. Palfrey.—After the fall of Yorktown, by Gen. F. W. Palfrey.—The Seven days' battles, to Malvern hill, by Gen. F. W. Palfrey.—The battle of Malvern hill, by Gen. F. W. Palfrey.—Comments on the campaign, by Franklin Haven.—The same subject, by Gen. S. M. Weld.—Review of the reports of Col. Haven and Gen. Weld, by Col. Theodore Lyman.—The conduct of Generals McClellan and Halleck in August 1862; and the case of Fitz-John Porter, by Col. T. L. Livermore.—The hearing in the case of Fitz-John Porter, by J. C. Ropes.—The battle of Cedar Mountain, Aug. 9, 1862, by Gen. G. L. Andrews.

List of books cited, p.11-21.

FORCE, Gen. Manning Ferguson.

From Fort Henry to Corinth. 1889. (Campaigns of the Civil war.).....973.7 F75

"Though every page bears evidence of careful research—of an earnest desire to adhere strictly to truth, to avoid opinions, and steer clear of controversy—yet it must be confessed that the story is tedious." Nation, 1881.

FORSYTH, Gen. George Alexander.

Thrilling days in army life. 1900.....973.7 F78

Contents: A frontier fight.—An Apache raid.—Sheridan's ride.—The closing scene at Appomattox Court-House.

Reprinted from "Harper's magazine" and "Harper's weekly."

GREENE, Francis Vinton.

The Mississippi. 1892. (Campaigns of the Civil war.)....973.7 G83

Carefully prepared history of operations for control of the river from May 1861, till the capture of Vicksburg, July 1863.

GREENE, Jacob Lyman.

Gen. William B. Franklin and the operations of the left wing at the battle of Fredericksburg, Dec. 13, 1862.

1900.973.7 G836

Reviews facts relating to the battle of Fredericksburg, seeking to exonerate Gen. Franklin from the charges of disobedience brought against him by the committee on the conduct of the war.

HUMPHREYS, Gen. Andrew Atkinson.

From Gettysburg to the Rapidan; the Army of the Potomac, July 1863 to April 1864. 1883.....973.7 H92f

The contents of this volume were intended to form the first part of v.12 of the "Campaigns of the Civil war," but owing to the length of that work are published separately.

Virginia campaign of '64 and '65. 1890. (Campaigns of the Civil war.).....973.7 H92

Describes movements of armies under Grant and Lee clearly, concisely and in a fair spirit.

JACOBS, Michael.

Notes on the rebel invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania and the battle of Gettysburg. 1864.....r973.7 J13

JOHNSON, Robert Underwood, and others, ed.

Battles and leaders of the Civil war; contributions by Union and Confederate officers. 4v. 1884-88.q973.7 J36

"The war papers originally published in the Century magazine, carefully edited, beautifully printed and illustrated, and thoroughly indexed, form an extremely interesting and valuable history of the war." Larned's Literature of American history.

"The novel scheme of printing side by side the story of battles and movements as told by men of opposite sides who participated in them, was a delicate experiment, but has proved a great success." Nation, 1888.

McCLELLAN, Gen. George Brinton.

Report on the organization of the Army of the Potomac and of its campaigns in Virginia and Maryland, 1861-1862. 1864. (United States. 38th cong. 1st sess.

House. Ex. doc. no.15.)r973.7 M13

The same, to which is added an account of the campaign in western Virginia. 1864.r973.7 M13r

Title reads "Report on the organization and campaigns of the Army of the Potomac."

"He has omitted many documents essential to the formation of a just opinion, and it is only when we have read these also, in the Report of the Committee on the Conduct of the War, that we feel the full weight of the cumulative evidence going to show the hearty support in men and confidence that he received from the administration, and, when there were no more men to be sent, and confidence began to yield before irresistible facts, the prolonged forbearance with which he was still favored." Lowell's Political essays.

MARKS, James J.

Peninsula campaign in Virginia. 1864.973.7 M39

The same. 1864.r973.7 M39

Author was an army chaplain. He gives some of his experiences in caring for the sick and wounded.

NELSON, Alanson H.

Battles of Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. 1899.973.7 N22

NEW YORK (state)—Monuments commission for the battlefields of Gettysburg and Chattanooga.

Final report on the battlefield of Gettysburg. 3v. 1900. .qr973.7 N26

"New York at Gettysburg," by W. F. Fox, v.1, p.3-109.

Contains itineraries, rosters, casualty lists, roll of honor, etc., followed by orations and addresses at the dedication of monuments, descriptions of monuments, and historical sketches. Excellently illustrated, and furnished with 15 maps.

NICHOLS, George Ward.

Story of the great march; from the diary of a staff officer.

1866.973.7 N31

The volume is compiled from notes taken on the spot, and has, therefore freshness, raciness and vigor. Gives many details and many of the author's sentiments and opinions. Is not, however, a real military narrative and does not show the working out of the great design which underlay the march. Adapted from Nation, 1865.

NICOLAY, John George.

Outbreak of rebellion. 1890. (Campaigns of the Civil war.)973.7 N32

"He narrates those events, and those only, which are worth remembering; his style is never dull, often brilliant, always clear and concise; he speaks directly and to the point; and whether we agree with his opinions or not, he gains and holds our undivided attention." Nation, 1881.

PALFREY, Gen. Francis Winthrop.

Antietam and Fredericksburg. 1890. (Campaigns of the Civil war.)973.7 P18

"The story is one of great interest, both to the generation which took part in it and to that which has grown up since the war. Its manner of treatment and its literary execution are admirable. One battle being a dismal failure, and the other little more than a half-success, the narration of them must involve any author in constant criticism. General Palfrey has not been sparing of this, but we believe his strictures are in general abundantly justified by the facts." Nation, 1882.

PARTON, James.

General Butler in New Orleans, 1862. 1864.....r973.7 P27

"After a preliminary history of the subject's career in civil and military life, he devotes the larger part of the book to a defence, with elaborate discussion, of Butler's administration, in his capacity of Department Commander of the city of New Orleans for eight months in 1862. Vivacious, readable, but one-sided and not settling all the charges against its hero." Larned's Literature of American history.

PATTERSON, Gen. Robert.

Narrative of the campaign in the valley of the Shenandoah,

1861. 1865.....qr973.7 P31

"This is General Patterson's vindication of himself in his conduct of operations collateral to the Bull Run battle, for which he was much criticised." Larned's Literature of American history.

POND, George Edward.

Shenandoah valley in 1864. 1892. (Campaigns of the Civil war.)973.7 P78

"Deals with one of the most exciting and interesting of the subordinate campaigns of the war. It is written with unusual clearness; the arrangement is lucid, the style good, the description simple and straightforward...He is probably unconscious that his field of view is so filled with the deeds of the Federal army and its leaders as to have space for only a distant, imperfect, and sometimes incorrect view of the Confederates." Nation, 1883.

PORTER, Gen. Fitz John.

Proceedings and report of the board of army officers convened Apr. 12, 1878 in the case of Fitz-John Porter, with the proceedings in the original trial and papers relating thereto. 3v. in 2. 1879. (United States. 46th cong. 1st. sess. Senate. Ex. doc. no.37.).....r973.7 P836p

Report of the board of officers in the case of Fitz-John Porter; General Porter's narrative of the services of the fifth army corps in 1862 in northern Virginia; Argument of Anson Maltby, counsel for Porter, before the advisory board of army officers at West Point, Jan. 1879; Argument of John C. Bullitt, counsel for Porter, before the advisory board of army officers at West Point, Jan. 1879; Mr Choate's argument for petitioner, West Point, 1879. 1878-79.....r973.7 P836

POWELL, William Henry.

Fifth army corps, Army of the Potomac; operations during the Civil war. 1896.....r973.7 P87

"For the general reader...it has the defect of being limited to the standpoint of a minor fraction of the army in Virginia. A more serious fault is that the author, in his laudation of McClellan as a commander, pays no attention to the definite criticisms of that general's campaigns which are based on the fuller knowledge gained since 1862." Nation, 1896.

REED, Samuel Rockwell.

Vicksburg campaign and the battles about Chattanooga under the command of Grant. 1882.....r973.7 R28

"Mr. Reed was a brilliant editorial writer on the Cincinnati Gazette, whose style was clear and forcible, and whose role was that of advocatus diaboli, challenging the admission of a great reputation to the list of the immortals. His criticism of Grant (and incidentally of Sherman) is acute, ingenious, and sophistical, bitterly hostile, unrelenting, and armed by whatever a very industrious study of the records could discover." Larned's Literature of American history.

RHODES, Charles Dudley.

History of the cavalry of the Army of the Potomac, including that of the Army of Virginia (Pope's), and the history of the operations of the Federal cavalry in West Virginia. 1900.....973.7 R38
 "Works consulted," p.174.

ROMAN, Alfred.

Military operations of Beauregard, 1861-1865. 2v. 1884..r973.7 R65
 "Not so much a history of General Beauregard's career as it is a fulsome panegyric of him, an overstrained and often disingenuous defence of everything he did, or did not do, during the war, and an unfair and ill-natured critique upon the conduct of his superiors ...Is enriched by a mass of official documents, many of which are published for the first time. The arrangement is clear and the style easy and attractive." Nation, 1884.

ROPES, John Codman.

The army under Pope. 1891. (Campaigns of the Civil war.)973.7 R68
 "The accounts of the battles of Groveton, Second Bull Run or Manassas, and Chantilly show a careful sifting of the reports, and with the maps give any reader a clear and brief compendium of those important combats." Literary world, 1882.

SCHNECK, Benjamin Shroder.

Burning of Chambersburg, Pa. 1864.....r973.7 S35
 Gives in the form of letters details and incidents relative to the burning of the city by the Confederates in 1864.

SMITH, Gen. Gustavus Woodson.

Battle of Seven Pines. 1891.....r973.7 S64
 "General Smith succeeded to the command of the Confederate Army in front of Richmond during the battle of Seven Pines (or Fair Oaks), when General Johnston was disabled...Controversy subsequently arose as to the parts of President Davis, and Generals Lee, Johnston, Smith, Longstreet and Huger on the field. General Smith's views are here presented...His contribution to the discussion is, of course, essential to it." Larned's Literature of American history.

STINE, James Henry.

History of the Army of the Potomac. 1893.....973.7 S85
 "This book grew out of the appointment of the author by the Association of the First Army Corps, to be the historian of that Corps of the Army of the Potomac. It has many of the characteristics of an historical address to such a body of men, such as eulogies of men not widely known, anecdotes of individual bravery, and the opinions of officers of various ranks upon the Union and the Confederate side concerning battles. It is therefore material for the more methodical historian rather than a sifted discussion of the rise and conduct of an army." Larned's Literature of American history.

SWINTON, William.

Campaigns of the Army of the Potomac. 1866.....973.7 S97c
 "The reputation of Mr. Swinton's 'Army of the Potomac' is so well established, that we need do no more than to say here, once for all, that it is a work well-nigh indispensable to the student of the war." Nation, 1882.

Twelve decisive battles of the [Civil] war. 1867.....973.7 S97
Contents: Bull Run.—Donelson.—Shiloh.—Antietam.—Murfreesboro.—The Monitor and Merrimac.—Vicksburg.—Gettysburg.—Wilderness.—Atlanta.—Nashville.—Five Forks.

The same. 1867.....r973.7 S97t
 Readable popular account.

"Testimony taken by Messrs. Wade and Gooch as a sub-committee of the joint select committee on the conduct of the war, together with its report, which was adopted as that of the full committee. The testimony was taken chiefly at the Mound City, Ill. hospital, most of the witnesses being wounded survivors of the Fort-Pillow affair, which occurred April 12, 1864. The operations of Gen. Forrest against Union City, Tenn., and Paducah, Ky., just before the capture of Fort Pillow, are also touched upon." Larned's Literature of American history.

VAN HORNE, Thomas Budd.

History of the Army of the Cumberland. 3v. and atlas.

1875.....r973.7 V19

"Mr. Van Horne does not profess to give us much general criticism of campaigns, wisely limiting himself, in the main, to the narration of events as they passed. In the nature of the case, his work is strongly eulogistic." Nation, 1875.

WALKER, Francis Amasa.

History of the second army corps in the Army of the Potomac. 1891.....973.7 W16

"The narrative is clear, the style vivid, the account of military movements simple, straightforward, and free from the dullness that too often makes narratives of campaigns but a wearisome labor to the general reader." Larned's Literature of American history.

East Tennessee and the Civil war. 1899.....973.7 T28

"Chancellor Temple is one of the very few of the leading loyalists of East Tennessee who still survive...Though himself a slaveholder, he was active in the opposition to secession, and in the canvass which resulted in voting down the calling of a convention to consider it. When secession became dominant in other parts of the State...he declared for unconditional adherence to the Union though emancipation should follow...Probably no other living man is so well fitted to write the inner history of the loyalists of the Holston Valley. Portions of the records which have been preserved could be fully understood only when read with the comments of one who intimately knew the spirit which ruled the people, as well as the reasons which modified the outward form of their action in critical junctures." Nation, 1900.

HIGGINSON, Thomas Wentworth.

Army life in a black regiment. 1890.....973.7 H53

"Series of carefully wrought studies of negro character as a phase of humanity, and of graphically recounted episodes of regimental or personal adventure, all full of the peculiar life and color of southern scenery." Atlantic monthly, 1869.

WILLIAMS, George Washington.

History of the negro troops in the War of the rebellion, 1861-1865. 1888.....973.7 W74

Written by a soldier who gathered his material from the official records of our own and foreign governments, and from the orderly books and personal recollections of officers commanding negro troops. He prefaces his work by chapters on the military services of negro soldiers in ancient and modern times.

WILSON, Joseph Thomas.

The black phalanx; a history of the negro soldiers of the United States in the wars of 1775-1812, 1861-1865. 1888.973.7 W76

Author served in the 54th Massachusetts volunteers, the famous negro regiment. The bulk of the book is concerned with the Civil war. Not much attempt at arrangement, but a good deal of information is given and large use is made of contemporary accounts and official dispatches.

BROWNE, Junius Henri.

Four years in Secessia; adventures within and beyond the Union lines. 1865.....r973.7 B81

Author was war correspondent for the "New York tribune." The book includes an account of experiences in Southern prisons.

BROWNLOW, William Gannaway, (Parson Brownlow).

Sketches of the rise, progress and decline of secession.

1862.r973.7 B82

"'Fighting Parson' Brownlow was editor of a Knoxville, Tennessee, newspaper. Although favoring slavery, he opposed secession and was imprisoned by the Confederate authorities for refusing to take an oath of allegiance to that government. This volume is a reprint of some of his editorials, correspondence, speeches, and experiences during his eventful life in the South." Larned's Literature of American history.

COX, Gen. Jacob Dolson.

Military reminiscences of the Civil war. 2v. 1900.....r973.7 C85mi

"His services covered a wide...field from West Virginia to the Army of the Potomac, during the campaign of South Mountain and Antietam; from East Tennessee to Atlanta; then in the battles before Nashville, which destroyed Hood's army; and, at last, with Schofield, from Wilmington, N. C., in cooperation with Sherman's march, in time to be present at the surrender of Johnston, and to have temporary charge of the department in which the surrendered forces lingered in their sudden transition from war to peace...He brought to these Reminiscences...the philosophic imagination which raises them above a bare chronicle of notable events, or a mere personal record...and entitles them to a place among historic views of the character and conduct of our armies." Nation, 1901.

DANA, Charles Anderson.

Recollections of the Civil war; with the leaders at Washington and in the field in the sixties. 1898.....r973.7 D19

Mr Dana was assistant secretary of war, 1863-65. He was not only practically a member of the Cabinet and in the confidence of the authorities at Washington, but he was also the chosen representative of the War department with General Grant and other military commanders, and was present at many of the councils which preceded movements of the greatest importance. His recollections are mostly based upon his official and unofficial reports from the front, and upon his private letters.

DE FONTAINE, F. G. (pseud. Personne), comp.

Marginalia; or, Gleanings from an army note-book.

a history of the war from the secession of South Carolina to the battle of Malvern hill in 1862.

GILMORE, James Roberts.

Personal recollections of Abraham Lincoln and the Civil war. 1898.....973.7 G42

"As a direct contribution to history...the book will need to be sifted as to every page, and it will be of more use in helping to give 'local color' to incidents of the Civil war than as proof of any important facts." Nation, 1899.

Battles for the Union; comprising descriptions of many of the most stubbornly contested battles in the War of the great rebellion, with incidents and reminiscences of the camp, the march and the skirmish line. 1875.....973.7 G47b

Three years in the Federal cavalry. 1870.....r973.7 G47

Author served in the Army of the Potomac. His description of battles and skirmishes is compiled from a diary kept during the war.

GOSS, Warren Lee.

Recollections of a private; a story of the Army of the Potomac. 1890.....973.7 G69r

"The book is interesting as showing what a man experiences as he develops from a recruit to a veteran under the pressure of active service, and is of value in bringing to view the public opinion of the camp concerning the directing forces, intelligent and otherwise, of campaigns...It is a good book for the average reader, boy or man." Nation, 1890.

GREGG, J. Chandler.

Life in the army in the departments of Virginia and the Gulf, including observations in New Orleans. 1866....r973.7 G86

Author was an army chaplain. His narrative combines autobiography, history and travel.

HALE, Edward Everett, ed.

Stories of war told by soldiers. 1895.....973.7 H15

Contents: Life at Little Crastis.—The first Bull Run.—Fort Henry and Fort Donelson.—Gen. McClellan and the Peninsula; West Virginia.—Antietam.—Pittsburg Landing.—Vicksburg.—Gettysburg.—Chickamauga and Chattanooga.—Grant's advance on Richmond; The Wilderness; Sheridan's ride.—Sherman's great march.—Nashville.—Siege of Richmond; The last week.—The end.

HOOD, Gen. John Bell.

Advance and retreat; personal experiences in the United States and Confederate States armies. 1880.....r973.7 H76

"Chapters are naturally divided into three groups, of which the first and shortest contains a sketch of Hood's service in the United States Army before the late war, and in the Confederate Army from 1861 to 1863; the second is his reply to General Johnston; and the third is his narrative of his own command of the Army of Tennessee after he relieved General Johnston." Nation, 1880.

JOHNSTON, Gen. Joseph Eggleston.

Narrative of military operations, [1861–65]. 1874.....973.7 J369

"General Johnston...has not written a historic memoir to satisfy the demand of the world for information...He has simply written an earnest, almost passionate defence of himself before the Southern people from the charge of having caused or contributed to their defeat...A contribution to controversial polemics rather than to military history, although much light is thrown upon some important phases of the conflict." Nation, 1874.

JONES, John Beauchamp.

A rebel war clerk's diary. 2v. 1866.....r973.7 J41

"Full of most interesting facts bearing on the internal history of the Confederacy, and picturing life at Richmond during the progressive despondency, poverty and suffering in 1864-5." Larned's Literature of American history.

KEIFER, Joseph Warren.

Slavery and four years of war; a political history of slavery in the United States, with a narrative of the campaigns and battles of the Civil war in which the author took part, 1861-1865. 2v. 1900.....973.7 K16
v.1. 1861-1863.
v.2. 1863-1865.
Author was a volunteer officer in the Union army throughout the War of the rebellion, his service being in the field; he was (1881-83) speaker of the House of representatives, and major-general of volunteers in the Spanish-American war of 1898.

KIEFFER, Henry Martyn.

Recollections of a drummer-boy. 1888.....973.7 K24
Appeared in "St. Nicholas," v.9-10, Nov. 1881-Oct. 1883.
Personal experiences of three years of active service during the Civil war.

Camp fires of the Confederacy; anecdotes, reminiscences, poems, etc. 1898.....973.7 L11
"Book of short anecdotes and reminiscences of the Civil war...It is a really remarkable collection of the kind; and if the stories are sometimes, like the illustrations, crudely sketchy, something amusing will be found on almost every page." Nation, 1898.

LEAVES from a trooper's diary. 1869.....973.7 L46

Very brief account of service in the Army of the Cumberland.

LONGSTREET, Gen. James.

From Manassas to Appomattox. 1896.....973.7 L84
"While...General Longstreet's memoirs cover the whole period of his military career, we find, as we might expect, that his vindication from aspersion becomes the most stimulating part of his book... The memoir is a work without which the literature of the war would be incomplete...With Stonewall Jackson he shared the honor of being Lee's principal subordinate, and for energy in field fighting he was brilliantly conspicuous throughout the war." Nation, 1896.

McCLELLAN, Gen. George Brinton.

McClellan's own story, [1861-62]. 1887.....973.7 M13
"In 1863 Gen. McClellan prepared a volume which was entitled 'A Report of the Organization and Campaigns of the Army of the Potomac'...It was his history of his military career, prepared as the justification of his conduct and generalship...The present volume is in substance a revised edition of that Report, with considerable additions, a few omissions, and with some chapters of extracts from his private correspondence." Nation, 1887.

MONTEIRO, A.

War reminiscences, by the surgeon of Mosby's command, 1890.973.7 M85
Slight record of personal experiences.

MOULTON, C. W.

Review of General Sherman's Memoirs examined. 1875..r973.7 M94

Review under discussion is Henry Van Ness Boynton's "Sherman's historical raid," in which Sherman is accused of egotism and injustice and his ability as a commander questioned. Moulton vigorously denies the charges.

PORTER, Gen. Horace.

Campaigning with Grant. 1897.....r973.7 P83

Appeared in the "Century magazine," v.53, Nov. 1896-Apr. 1897.

"To the presswork of the De Vinne press, add an uncommonly tasteful binding, and we have as handsome a specimen of book-making as one often sees. Speaking of the substance of this work, we cannot rate it highly. Not only is it badly diluted, but there is much more of Porter than of Grant in it." Nation, 1897.

paigning and soldiering. — A great quartermaster [Robert Allen]. —

The angel of the third corps [Helen L. Gilson]. — Some army letters.

"Authorities," p.3-4.

"The author was an officer in the Quartermaster's department, both in the field and at supply depots, and has put his recollections of leading men into lively chapters, which must be read as presentations of offhand opinions and predilections rather than critical estimates of historical value." Nation, 1900.

SCHOFIELD, Gen. John McAllister.

Forty-six years in the army. 1897.....r973.7 S36

Chiefly concerned with the Civil war, with Sherman's generalship in the campaigns of Atlanta and the Carolinas, with the campaigns of Franklin and Nashville and the author's relations to General Thomas, etc.

"Not a connected narrative of the author's life. It is rather a collection of notes and comments on events that he had part in." Nation, 1898.

SENOUR, F.

Morgan and his captors. 1865.....r973.7 S478

ISHAM, Asa Brainerd, and others.

Prisoners of war and military prisons. 1890.....973.7 I29

"The fullest compendium of descriptions of southern military prisons and the treatment of the prisoners. The authors were themselves prisoners...and all are men of standing in civil life. Besides personal experience, they have diligently used official documents, and authentic personal narratives by others. The book is an authoritative one. The horrible story is told with calmness and with judgment, discriminating fairly between what is incidental to captivity and what is the result of intentional cruelty and system. It is indispensable to a real study of the subject." Larned's Literature of American history.

JEFFREY, William H. comp.

Richmond prisoners, 1861-1862; comp. fr. records kept by the Confederate government, journals kept by Union prisoners, together with the name, rank, company, regiment and state of the four thousand who were confined there. 1893.....973.7 J23

My story of the war. 1890.....r973.7 L74

"A sharp photograph of a phase of war in which the virtues of patience, faith, hope, charity, and mercy were practically applied. Commencing with the first gun at Sumter, she outlines the progress of events to the assassination of Lincoln, dwelling upon the work of the Sanitary Commission as it came under her notice during a close acquaintanceship with the horrors of war." Nation, 1889.

MOSS, Lemuel.

Annals of the United States Christian commission.

1868.973.7 M93

Organized in 1861.

"Its specific work was to be chiefly for the moral and religious welfare of the soldiers and sailors [in the Civil war]...Its labors were not confined wholly to spiritual and intellectual ministrations, but also to the distribution of a vast amount of food, hospital stores, delicacies, and clothing. It, too, followed the great armies, and was like a twin angel of mercy with the sanitary commission." Harper's Encyclopædia of U. S. history.

STILLÉ, Charles Janeway.

History of the United States sanitary commission; being the general report of its work during the War of the rebellion. 1866.....qr973.7 S85

"Mr. Stillé...has described the whole movement clearly, succinctly, and gracefully...He has given enough figures to make clear the magnitude of the work. His style is...a little stiff, but it is always perspicuous; and there is not in the whole work a line of rhetoric or padding." Nation, 1866.

 Appeared in "Harper's magazine," v.98-99, Feb.-July 1899.
 Based on official reports of the military and naval operations, supplemented by an examination, so far as possible, of all accounts of eye-witnesses having either interest or authority. The political side of the story and the account of events in Washington are written from personal knowledge, Mr Lodge being at the time a member of the committee on foreign relations.
- MARSHALL, Edward, journalist.
 Story of the Rough Riders, 1st U. S. volunteer cavalry; the regiment in camp and on the battlefield. 1899....973.89 M41
 The author, correspondent of the New York journal, was a participant with the "Rough Riders," and was severely wounded by a Mauser bullet while at the extreme front of the firing line at Las Guasimas.

His book is entirely devoted to the Rough Riders, telling with many anecdotes and details of the personalities of its members, and its part in the war in Cuba. The book contains a complete roster of the regiment.

MILEY, John David.

In Cuba with Shafter. 1899.....973.89 M68

Lieutenant Miley was on General Shafter's staff.

"In this volume it is my object to put before my readers a clear and intelligent narrative of the Santiago campaign, showing the orders received and how they were executed; the plans formed and how they were carried out; the obstacles met and how they were overcome. The work is not, in any sense, a criticism of persons or military movements, but a plain statement of facts as the writer knows them." Preface.

MILLET, Francis Davis.

Expedition to the Philippines. 1899.....973.89 M69

An account of soldier life on a troop ship between San Francisco and the Philippines, and of the taking of Manila. Mr Millet is both an artist and author, and accompanied General Merritt as special correspondent of "Harper's weekly" and of the London "Times."

"Both directly and incidentally, Mr. Millet gives us much interesting and useful knowledge of Luzon and its people; and the 50 reproductions of photographs...are full of instruction." Nation, 1900.

 "Presents a brief and forceful argument from the pro-Filipino standpoint. His book is, therefore, naturally a sharp arraignment of the policy of the American administration. The greater portion of the volume consists of a review of the steps which led up to and resulted in the outbreak of February 4, 1899...He states that 'the main purpose of the book is to indict and condemn Imperialism as a political doctrine, inimical to the spirit, not only of American Democracy, but Christianity itself.'" Nation, 1900.

ABDY, Edward Strutt.

Journal of a residence and tour in the United States,

1833-1834. 3v. 1835.....r917.3 A13

The author came to America with a commissioner sent by the English government to investigate the prison system, and devotes especial attention to that and to the subject of slavery.

[ANBUREY, Thomas.]

Travels through the interior parts of America, in a series of letters, by an officer. 2v. 1789.....r917.3 A53

"Anburey was an officer in Burgoyne's army, and many of his letters were written while he was a prisoner of war. 'It is an agreeable surprise to find, with occasional asperity, much candid intelligence and interesting local information.'" Larned's Literature of American history.

BAILY, Francis.

Journal of a tour in unsettled parts of North America in

1796 & 1797. 1856.....r917.3 B16

Memoir of the author, by Sir John Herschel, p.1-74.

"Visit to Pittsburgh," p.143-152.

Mr Baily sailed in 1795 for America, where he spent one or two years.

"Consists of a voyage to and account of Antigua, some slight account of New York, etc., a voyage in an open boat from Pittsburg to New Orleans, down the Ohio and Mississippi, a return by land through the forest to Natchez, from thence to Nashville, and from thence to Knoxville." Augustus De Morgan, in preface.

Pilgrimage in Europe and America, leading to the discovery of the sources of the Mississippi and Bloody river, with a description of the whole course of the former, and of the Ohio. 2v. 1828.....r917.3 B42

"Gives his impressions of the West with much vividness. He had much to say of the aborigines, and expatiates upon the natural history and scenery of the region he visited with intelligence and enthusiasm." Tuckerman's America and her commentators.

"Vol. II is almost entirely devoted to the author's travels among the Northwestern Indians, of whom he gives some novel particulars. The narrations of what he witnessed are tinged with the peculiar glow of the author's temperament. Beltrami must have moved in a gigantic world, if he saw external objects through the same media with which he viewed his own person and accomplishments." Field's Indian bibliography.

BERNARD, John.

Retrospections of America, 1797-1811. 1887.....r917.3 B456

Biographical notice, by Laurence Hutton and Brander Matthews, p.3-7.

"Bernard was an English actor, whose experiences were gained during his professional visits to this country. His travels extended up and down the Atlantic coast from Canada to the Carolinas and westwardly to the Ohio River. The historical investigator will find a mass of anecdotes and incidents of the drama, and scattered through it a few glimpses of Washington, Jefferson, John Adams, and others, although some of the stories must be taken with allowance. Of more value are the glimpses of the life of the people, the cities, dress, and customs." Larned's Literature of American history.

BERNHARD, Karl, herzog von Sachsen-Weimar.

Travels through North America, 1825 and 1826. 2v. in 1.

1828.r917.3 B45

"The kindness and intelligence of the Duke are apparent on every page of these two volumes; but there is little new in the subjects or mode of treatment." Tuckerman's America and her commentators.

BIRKBECK, Morris.

Notes on a journey in America from the coast of Virginia to the territory of Illinois. 1818.....r917.3 B49

"Brief and intelligent account of the journey of an English farmer travelling from Virginia to Illinois Territory, then a frontier settlement. Birkbeck was a radical both in politics and religion, and his judgments show a slight bias. He had a keen eye for a suitable place for future settlement and, in agricultural matters, showed practical knowledge. The book gives a vivid picture of the difficulties attending pioneer settlement." Larned's Literature of American history.

BREMER, Fredrika.

Homes of the New World; impressions of America; tr. by Mary Howitt. 2v. 1853.....r917.3 B72

Series of letters written between 1849 and 1851. During this period the Swedish authoress traveled through a greater part of the United States and in Cuba. The account of her visit to Concord and her meeting with Emerson is especially interesting.

BRISSOT de WARVILLE, Jean Pierre.

Examen critique des Voyages dans l'Amérique septentrionale de M. le marquis de Chatellux; ou, Lettre à M. le marquis de Chatellux, dans laquelle on réfute principalement ses opinions sur les Quakers, sur les negres, sur le peuple & sur l'homme. 1786.....r917.3 B75e

"A spirited writer here attacks the Marquis for having, in the publication of his travels, exposed to ridicule, and grossly misrepresented the principles and manners of the Quakers; he also endeavors to show that the Marquis's reflections on the slavery of the negroes, and his thoughts on the condition of mankind, with respect to the ranks in society, are often unjust. M. de Warville's language is forcible, his arguments are striking, if not always conclusive, and his work is replete with liberal sentiments on religious and political subjects." Quoted in Sabin's Dictionary of books relating to America.

New travels in the United States, performed in 1788; tr.

fr. the French. 1792.....r917.3 B75

"The author, a Frenchman, restlessly interested in politics, afterwards a prominent character in the French Revolution, came to America in 1788 'to study men who had just acquired their liberty.' The work was published in Paris in 1791 as useful in supporting the Revolution. Brissot's journey, covering a period of six months, extended from Boston through the Atlantic states to Virginia. Although many of his observations are naïve and superficial, his sketches of life and manners are entertaining and are frequently quoted by historians." Larned's Literature of American history.

Voyages dans l'Amérique septentrionale, 1780-1782. 2v. 1786.r917.3 C39

"Spontaneous comments and descriptions such as fill the letters and journals of an intelligent traveller...Whoever would compare the present condition of the Southern and most of the New England states with that of eighty years ago, will find few more pleasant authorities than the Marquis de Chastellux...His appreciation of the social virtues of the people and his tolerance of their limited means—his interest in their welfare, and his respect for their cause, are evident on every page. No foreigner has manifested a greater admiration of Washington, or more truly described his bearing and principles." Tuckerman's America and her commentators.

CHEVALIER, Michel.

Society, manners and politics in the United States; a series of letters on North America; tr. fr. the 3d Paris edition. 1839.r917.3 C42

"Chevalier was a Frenchman sent to this country in 1834 under a government appointment to inspect the public works of the United States.

Much interested in political and social organization, he spent two years in further observation. 'His letters give the results of his observations, the impressions made on his mind, the speculations in regard to the future destiny of our institutions, rather than a detailed narrative of facts and even events.' A considerable part of the book is devoted to an account of banking questions. There are chapters on railroads...western steamboats...social reform, middle classes...Chevalier was a trained observer and a careful writer." Larned's Literature of American history.

COBBETT, William.

A year's residence in the United States of America. 3 pts.

in I. 1828.....r917.3 C63

"Journal of Thomas Hulme," p.259-309.

"The year consisted of ten months in Long Island and two in Eastern Pennsylvania, and was spent in farming. Cobbett wrote with the particular object of describing the United States as a country for farmers, giving, however, some space to customs, manners, political and religious institutions...Cobbett was a shrewd observer, and wrote in a far better temper and more judicial mood than was common with him." Larned's Literature of American history.

COOPER, Thomas, 1759-1840.

Some information respecting America. 1794.....r917.3 C78

The author visited America in 1793-94 "to determine," he says, "whether America, and what part of it, was eligible for a person, like myself, with a small fortune and a large family, to settle in." Although he traveled quite widely, with Philadelphia as headquarters, he gives the preference to Pennsylvania. His book is full of practical information as to manners and customs, government, climate, prices, etc., for possible settlers.

COXE, Tench.

View of the United States of America. 1794.....r917.3 C85

 CRÉVECEUR, J. Hector St. John de.

Letters from an American farmer, describing certain provincial situations, manners and customs not generally known, and conveying some idea of the late and present interior circumstances of the British colonies in North America. 1782.....r917.3 C88

"Creveœur was of noble birth, a native of Normandy, born in 1731; he was sent to England when but sixteen years old, which is the cause of his early and complete mastery of our language. In 1754 he came to New York, and settled on a farm in the adjacent region...His 'Letters'...have a winsome flavor, and picture so delectably the independence, the resources, and the peace of an agricultural life, just before and after the Revolution...that the reader of the present day cannot feel surprise that he beguiled many an emigrant from the Old World to the banks of the Ohio and the Delaware." Tuckerman's America and her commentators.

Voyage dans la haute Pensylvanie et dans l'état de New-York, par un membre adoptif de la nation Onéida. 3v.

1801.r917.3 C88v

"Though called a translation, this is believed to be an original work by M. de Creveœur, whose initials only appear at the end of the dedication to Washington. The author spent nearly a quarter of a century in America...His experience, therefore, enables him to give much information and personal gossip not readily found elsewhere...This work is distinguished by its valuable details on the aboriginal tribes, and their gradual disappearance. No other writer has so well described the Indian great councils, or assemblies, where they deliberate on their public interests.'" Sabin's Dictionary of books relating to America.

"American notes" is "a superficial book, written as the result of a residence of six months in the United States. Dickens visited New England, the Middle States and the West, spending a few days also in Washington and Richmond. While sincere and fair, he had little insight into the conditions underlying American society...On the whole favorable to America, though it violently attacks slavery and American manners." Larned's Literature of American history.

"However, amidst Faux's chaff there is some good grain, quite worth the attention of the student of early American life. His very brutality and frankness lead to revelations of conditions which men more delicately-minded would have felt bound to conceal. We may at this date, perhaps, pardon our author's lack of taste and good manners, for the fidelity with which he holds his mirror up to portray American nature at a time when our Middle West was the Far West." R. G. Thwaites, in introduction.

FEARON, Henry Bradshaw.

Sketches of America; narrative of a journey through the eastern and western states of America. 1818.....r917.3 F31

"Fearon came to America on a tour of inspection in the interest of some English farmers who contemplated settling in Illinois. His narrative is interesting and, as he observes with especial care everything of importance to intending settlers, it is especially instructive to the student of social and economic history. The price and quality of land, the conditions of trade, the competition between English and domestic goods, the cost and conditions of travel by sea and over land, types of settlers, and phases of public opinion are the features ... to which Fearon devoted most of his attention." Larned's Literature of American history.

The same; [reprinted]. 1904. (In Thwaites's Early western travels, 1748-1846, v.9.).....r917.8 T43 v.9
 Contains a chapter on Pittsburgh in 1818.
 "A remarkable study of American life in the beginning of its new era, at the close of the second war with England. Charitable, comprehending, thoughtful, he does not slur over national faults nor unduly praise local virtues. Dangers, both financial and political are pointed out; but the basic principles of American society are distinctly and clearly laid bare, and the progress and possibilities of the New West revealed." R. G. Thwaites, in introduction.

FLINT, Timothy.

History and geography of the Mississippi valley, to which is appended a condensed physical geography of the American continent. 2v. in 1. 1833.....r917.3 F647h
 Title-page of v.2 reads "United States and other divisions of the American continent."
 "Timothy Flint was extensively read and widely beloved. A native of Massachusetts, and by profession a clergyman, he entered on a missionary life in the Valley of the Mississippi in 1815...The peculiar value of [his] account of the remarkable region of whose history and aspect he wrote, consists in the fact that it is not the result of a cursory survey or rapid tour, but of years of residence, intimate contact with nature and man, and patient observation... There is one portion of [his] writings that has a permanent charm, and that is the purely descriptive...No one has more graphically revealed to distant readers the shores of the Ohio, or made so real in our language the physical aspects of the Great Valley." Truckerman's America and her commentators.

Recollections of the last ten years passed in the valley of the Mississippi, from Pittsburg and the Missouri to the Gulf of Mexico, and from Florida to the Spanish frontier. 1826.....r917.3 F647

FREEMAN, Edward Augustus.

Some impressions of the United States. 1883.....917.3 F91
 "His desire to be fair has led him to be so cautious that it is really often very difficult to get from his book a distinct idea of what his impressions are...He is also, to a certain extent, the victim of a theory which he was anxious to verify by observation—that of the essential unity of the English nation on both sides of the water."

Americans in their moral, social and political relations.

2v. 1837.....r917.3 G94a

"Author, born in Bohemia (1806), emigrated to the United States and engaged in journalism...This work is a serious discussion of American manners, the attitude of the United States toward foreign immigration, theatre and the arts, literature, journalism, education, religion, [etc.]...The tone is philosophic although the style is labored ...One of the best aids in the study of the fundamental characteristics of the United States in...1830-1840." Larned's Literature of American history.

Aristocracy in America. 2v. 1839.....r917.3 G94

"We assume this work to be written by Mr. Grund, though he is professedly only the editor. He has given two whole volumes of sketches of manners; but the vast majority are caricatures, without point, hint, or even vraisemblance." Athenaeum, 1839.

HALL, Basil.

Forty etchings, from sketches made with the camera lucida in North America in 1827 and 1828. 1829.....qr917.3 H17f

Travels in North America. 2v. in 1. 1829.....r917.3 H17

Hall was an Englishman who traveled in the United States and Canada in the years 1827-28. He criticizes American customs with a good deal of frankness.

HALL, Francis.

Travels in Canada and the United States in 1816 and 1817.

1818.r917.3 H172

His route included New York, Albany, Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, Niagara Falls, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Virginia and Charleston.

"He has good sense enough to think that a country is not to be judged by its tavern-keepers and hostlers, and too much good-humour to rail at a whole people because he meets with occasional instances of fraud and churlishness." North American review, 1819.

HASKELL, Daniel, & Smith, J. C. comp.

Complete descriptive and statistical gazetteer of the United States of America, with an abstract of the census and statistics for 1840. 1843.....r917.3 H33

HAWEIS, Hugh Reginald.

Travel and talk, 1885-1895; America, Canada, Australia.

Ceylon and the Pacific. 2v. 1896.....917.3 H36

"Mr. Haweis was never anything but scrappy, even in 'Music and Morals,' the book which gave him a deserved reputation, and here the touch-and-go of his itinerary makes him scrappier than ever." Nation, 1896.

"The travel is mere globe-trotting and the talk mere chit-chat, and over all is writ an immense I." Dial, 1897.

HODGSON, Adam.

Letters from North America, written during a tour in the United States and Canada. 2v. 1824.....r917.3 H66

"He tells us, that he travelled upwards of seven thousand miles in the United States; that is, he went from Maine to New Orleans, and from New Orleans back again to Maine. He also made an excursion to Canada and the Lakes. His remarks are desultory, sometimes woven into the web of a narrative, and at others wrought up into discussions of deeper interest." North American review, 1824.

HOLE, Samuel Reynolds, dean.

Little tour in America. 1895.....917.3 H71

"The outcome of the author's recent lecturing tour in the States... The Dean writes in his usual chatty, facetious vein, spinning lightly over a variety of subjects...treating us and our ways with unfailing good-humor." Dial, 1896.

HOLMES, Isaac.

Account of the United States of America, derived from actual observation, during a residence of 4 years in that republic. 1823.....r917.3 H73

Chapters on revenues and resources, general state of agriculture, soil and climate, cities and towns, manners and customs, slavery, religion, literature, public characters, etc. Contains a map.

"Is rather a diffuse and inaccurate writer; but he makes no preten-sions to literary excellence, and his object is to present a modest, but true statement of things as they are in the American republic." Monthly review, 1823.

JANSON, Charles William.

The stranger in America; observations on the genius, manners and customs of the people, with facts relative to the arts, sciences, commerce, agriculture, manufactures, emigration and the slave trade. 1807.....r917.3 J18

Author lived in America from 1793 to 1806, engaged in some unfortunate business enterprises, and on his return to England vented his spleen against America in this book.

KALM, Pehr.

Travels into North America, containing its natural history and a circumstantial account of its plantations and agriculture in general, with the civil, ecclesiastical and commercial state of the country; tr. into English by J.

R. Forster. 2v. 1772.....r917.3 K12

"Author was 'Professor of Economy' in the University of Abo, Swedish Finland...He made a tour through the Middle Colonies, going as far west as Niagara...Professor Kalm comments garrulously on all things American, especially in the department of natural history; his observations upon manners and customs are informing, although sometimes amusing. Excellent for the student of American development, material and social." Larned's Literature of American history.

Lafayette in America in 1824–1825. 2v. in 1. 1829.....r917.3 L66

The same. 2v. 1829.....r917.3 L661

Author was secretary to General Lafayette during his journey, which included the principal cities of the country. His visit to Pittsburgh is briefly described on p.182 and 183.

LIEBER, Francis.

The stranger in America; sketches of the manners, society and national peculiarities of the United States. 2v. in

1. 1835.....r917.3 L69

"Give[s] remarkably full statements of judicial and penitentiary systems, and of social traits. Dr. Lieber's ample opportunities of observation, his familiarity with society and life both North and South, and the philosophical tendency of his mind, make him a remarkably apt expositor of the most important questions relating to our country." Tuckerman's America and her commentators.

LYELL, Sir Charles.

Travels in North America in 1841-2, with geological observations on the United States, Canada and Nova Scotia. 2v. in 1. 1845.....r917.3 L98

MACKAY, Alexander.

The western world; or, Travels in the United States, 1846-

47. 3v. 1849.....r917.3 M17w

Author visited the United States for the London "Morning chronicle," to report the debates at Washington in relation to the Oregon question.

"A very able work on the people and institutions of the United States, distinguished for elegance of diction, vigour of style, and liberality of sentiment." Allibone's Dictionary of authors.

MACKAY, Charles.

Life and liberty in America. 1859.....r917.3 M175

"Author visited the United States, for the purpose of lecturing, in 1857, and was correspondent of the London Times at New York 1862-65." Allibone's Dictionary of authors.

MARJORIBANKS, Alexander.

Travels in South and North America. 1854.....r917.3 M39

MARRYAT, Capt. Frederick.

Diary in America, with remarks on its institutions, 1st-2d

ser. 6v. 1839.....r917.3 M41

"Captain Marryat visited the United States in 1837...He travelled quite generally, and his book is made up of numerous anecdotes and not very profound observations in regard to the scenes that he passed through. He is, however, keen in his analysis of human character." Larned's Literature of American history.

MARTINEAU, Harriet.

Retrospect of western travel. 3v. 1838.....r917.3 M43r

Consist of the lighter and more personal portion of her impressions and experiences during her visit to America in 1834-5. She was everywhere received with the greatest respect and enthusiasm, and appreciated the country and the people more justly than any other traveler of that time.

Society in America. 3v. 1837.....r917.3 M43

A discussion of the political and social condition of America from the standpoint of an abolitionist. Miss Martineau made what were for that time very extensive journeyings through the region east of the Mississippi, knew people in every condition of life and had unequalled opportunities for a thorough knowledge of the country and its institutions.

MAXWELL, Archibald Montgomery.

Run through the United States during the autumn of 1840.

2v. 1841.....r917.3 M52

"He sees everything in the broadest sunshine, and every mile of his road is strewn with flowers. All the men are full of intelligence, and all the women unrivalled for beauty...He has, at all events, made a very pretty book; and, if Jonathan is not pleased, he must be a sour fellow indeed." Blackwood's magazine, 1841.

2v. 1839.....r917.3 M976

"He has treated of the manners and institutions of the United States with a very uncommon freedom from the prejudices either of nation or caste." Edinburgh review.

"His juvenile spirits are to be envied; he is evidently not without cleverness; and we have been pleased...with the gayety and good humour of his narrative." London quarterly review.

NEWKIRK, Garrett.

Rhymes of the states. 1896.....j917.3 N28

"A series of rhymes which should assist children in studying the history and geography of the United States."

NICHOLS, Thomas L.

Forty years of American life. 1874.....r917.3 N31

"Author was a northerner who, on the outbreak of the rebellion, took refuge in England. He regarded the action of the government as unconstitutional, and yet he could not fight against the union... The work...includes a survey of the customs, militia system, country schools, state of religion and morals...Clearly and attractively written, and, while not important, is interesting." Larned's Literature of American history.

OFFENBACH, Jacques.

Offenbach in America. 1877.....r917.3 O16

Amusing book of impressions by the popular composer, who came to the United States to conduct some concerts at the Centennial exhibition in Philadelphia in 1876.

Canada, 1817. 1818.....r917.3 P19

"Contains particulars relating to the prices of land and provisions, remarks on the country and the people, an account of the commerce of the principal towns...Sydney Smith...described it as having been written by a 'plain man of good sense and slow judgment.'" Dictionary of national biography.

"Mr. Palmer travelled through all, or the greater part of the country he describes; but he confesses that the outlines of his travels were filled up from other books." Sabin's Dictionary of books relating to America.

PECK, J. K.

Seven wonders of the New World. 1885.....j917.3 P35

Contents: Niagara falls.—Yellowstone park.—Mammoth cave.—The cañons and Garden of the gods, Colorado.—The giant trees, California.—The natural bridge, Virginia.—Yosemite valley.

PERRIN du LAC, François Marie.

Travels through the two Louisianas and among the savage nations of the Missouri, also in the United States, along the Ohio and the adjacent provinces, 1801–1803; tr. fr. the French. 1807.....r917.3 P44
Much abridged from the French original.

Voyage dans les deux Louisianes et chez les nations sauvages du Missouri, par les États-Unis, l'Ohio et les provinces qui le bordent, 1801–1803. 1805.....r917.3 P44v
The "adjacent provinces" include New York, New Jersey, Philadelphia, and Washington. It is interesting to see what the author finds most striking in the manners and customs of that day.

POPE, John.

Tour through the southern and western territories of the United States. 1888.....r917.3 P81
A reprint of the edition of 1792.

POWER, Tyrone.

Impressions of America, 1833–1835. 2v. 1836.....r917.3 P87
Author was a well-known actor who toured the United States in 1833, 1834 and 1835.

POWNALL, Thomas.

Topographical description of such parts of North America as are contained in the (annexed) map of the middle British colonies, &c. in North America. [Ed.2.] 1776.....qr917.3 P877

The map, 19¼x32¼ inches, was first published by Lewis Evans of Philadelphia, in 1755. An appendix to the book contains "Extracts from the journal of Capt. Harry Gordon, chief engineer in the western dep't in North America, who was sent from Fort Pitt on the Ohio, down the said river, etc. to the Illinois, in 1776," and "Journal of Christopher Gist's journey, began from Col. Cresap's, at the old town on the Potomack river, Oct. 30, 1750, continued down the Ohio to Roanoke river in North Carolina, where he arrived May 19, 1751."

PULSZKY, Ferencz Aurel, & Mme Terézia.

White, red, black; sketches of society in the United States during the visit of their guest, [Kossuth]. 3v. 1853..r917.3 P98
Pulszky, a Hungarian patriot, accompanied Kossuth on his tour through the United States in 1851 and 1852.

RAUMER, Friedrich Ludwig Georg von.

America and the American people; tr. fr. the German by W. W. Turner. 1846.....r917.3 R22
"Written by the great German historian from personal observation and material collected during a visit to the United States. It contains a mass of information on historical, political, social, and economic subjects, much of it now without value, though the book is still of service as giving a picture of American life. The author was in sympathy with the country and its people; possessed insight; was unprejudiced and thoroughly equipped for his task. The principal criticism of his work is that he depended too much on material furnished by others. Letters written by him while in America are appended, and constitute perhaps the most valuable part of the book."
Larned's Literature of American history.

ROUSIERS, Paul de.

La vie américaine; l'éducation et la société. [1899.].....917.3 R77
Contents: L'éducation américaine.—Les fiançailles et le mariage.—Les Américains chez eux et hors de chez eux.—La vie journalière.—L'aristocratie en Amérique.—L'esprit d'association et les intérêts généraux.—La vie politique.—La vie intellectuelle aux États-Unis.—La situation religieuse.

ROWELL, (George P.) & CO. comp.

ROYALL, Mrs Anne.

Sketches of history, life and manners in the United States, by a traveller. 1826.....917.3 R81

Mrs Royall, 1769-1854, was a well-known figure in Washington, D. C. John Quincy Adams described her as a going about "like a virago-errant in enchanted armor, redeeming herself from the cramps of indigence by the notoriety of her eccentricities and the forced currency they gave to her publications." She was the terror of politicians, and especially of congressmen. At last she became so unendurable that she was formally indicted by the grand jury as a common scold. Her books are full of cutting remarks about public men who offended her, and from a present-day point of view are very amusing.

RUSSELL, William Howard.

My diary, North and South. 1863.....r917.3 R91

"Author was the well-known war correspondent of the London Times, a man of intellect, of great energy and enterprise, practised in observation. In our Civil War...he visited both sections for the purpose of gathering information bearing upon our affairs. Some of his earlier letters greatly exasperated our people, but, with due allowance for the unfriendly attitude of the great journal he wrote for, his collection of experiences and observations has great historical value." Larned's Literature of American history.

SALA, George Augustus Henry.

America revisited; from the Bay of New York to the Gulf of Mexico, and from Lake Michigan to the Pacific. 2v.

1883.r917.3 S15

"It is quite unnecessary to say that America Revisited is an exceedingly readable and amusing book, because Mr. Sala seems to find it impossible to write anything that is unreadable and dull...Had [he] devoted the numerous pages now filled with amusingly appreciative criticism of meats and drinks to a record of really illuminating and characteristic facts, his book would have been a valuable addition to our knowledge." Spectator, 1883.

SCHULTZ, Christian.

Travels on an inland voyage through the states of New-York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, and through the territories of Indiana, Louisiana, Mississippi and New-Orleans in 1807 and 1808.

2v. in 1. 1810.....r917.3 S38

"Though not intended for the public, his letters are intelligent, and, for the most part accurate. Those referring to the Western Territories must have afforded seasonable and desirable information at that period; and his account of the Middle States is in some respects highly satisfactory." Tuckerman's America and her commentators.

SMYTH, John Ferdinand D.

Tour in the United States of America. 2v. 1784.....r917.3 S66

The author was a Tory scout and spy who more than once narrowly escaped hanging by the Whigs, but lived to make this record of his travels.

"This book, although replete with falsehood and calumny, contains the truest picture of the state of society and manners in Virginia (such as it was a half century ago) that is extant." Larned's Literature of American history.

STANSBURY, Philip.

Pedestrian tour of 2300 miles in North America, to the lakes, the Canadas and the New-England states. 1822..r917.3 S79

"This work, which is exceedingly rare, is characterized by great keenness of observation, and contains one of the best descriptions extant of the important battle-fields included in the conquest of Canada in 1759-'63, its invasion during the war of 1812, the wars with the Indians in the New England states, the Revolutionary contest in Massachusetts, and the disastrous expedition of Gen. Burgoyne. As a comparison between the customs, habits of living, modes of thought and educational interests of New England and New York of eighty years since and to-day, Stansbury's work is valuable." Appletons' cyclopadia of American biography.

STEEVENS, George Warrington.

Land of the dollar. 1897.....917.3 S81

Reprinted from the London "Daily mail."

During the presidential campaign of 1896 the author came to America as correspondent of the London "Daily mail" to report the election and incidentally to study the country. He is a keen observer and reports his observations in a way that makes this book far more interesting and valuable than most newspaper correspondence.

STRONG, Josiah.

Our country; its possible future and its present crisis.

"Not historical either in conception or execution. An alarmist presentation of statistics to prove that the church is in danger of losing 'the West,' unless the Home Missionary Society is provided with funds. Sees perils in immigration, Romanism, the Mormons, intemperance, etc. Pessimistic for a purpose." Larned's Literature of American history.

STUART, James, 1775-1849.

Three years in North America. 2v. 1833.....r917.3 S93

Vivid and faithful picture of life in America in 1830. The author visited New York, New England, the Southern states as far as New Orleans, returning by way of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. He was a keen observer and his book is one of the few unprejudiced accounts of America at that time.

SUTCLIFF, Robert.

"Though some of her strictures are well merited, the book is conceived in bitterness and ill nature; what is truly said is ungraciously said; much is said on hearsay which is not true; much is caricatured and exaggerated." North American review, 1833.

This sixty-year-old classic ought to be read with the greatest avidity, for it is history in its most taking form. Mrs Trollope's reflections have still a salutary lesson for us—her book enables us to learn something about the development of American manners and character in our dark ages. Adapted from Nation, 1894.

TUCKERMAN, Henry Theodore.

America and her commentators, with a critical sketch of travel in the United States. 1864.....r917.3 T81

"Useful and entertaining guide to the literature of description and criticism of the United States. Extensive extracts are given from some of the less accessible sources. Three chapters are given to the French and English travellers, respectively, and one each to the Germans and Swedish, the Italian and American travellers. Of especial value to librarians and to students of social history." Larned's Literature of American history.

Report (1st-2d), 1890-1899. 1892-1901.....r917.3 U25

WARNER, Charles Dudley.

Studies in the South and West, with comments on Canada.

1889.r917.3 W23

A book which will inform Eastern and Northern people...how small a section of the United States they belong to; it will enable them to think rightly of the tendencies of thought and life which make the great West. Adapted from Literary world, 1889.

WELD, Isaac.

Travels through the states of North America and the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, 1795-1797.

1800.r917.3 W47

"We find, in his well-written work, abundance of economical and statistical facts; and the interests and prospects of agriculture and commerce are elaborately considered...His ardent love of nature lent an additional interest to his work; for he expatiates on the beauties of the landscape with the perception of an artist, and is one of the few early travellers who enriched his journal with authentic sketches of picturesque and famous localities...In describing the sanguinary attacks of New Jersey insects, he deals in the marvellous, giving Washington as authority that the mosquitos there bite through the thickest boots." Tuckerman's America and her commentators.

- WESTERN traveler's pocket directory and stranger's guide; exhibiting distances on the principal canal and stage routes in the states of New-York and Ohio, in the territory of Michigan and in the province of Lower Canada, &c. 1834.....r917.3 W56
- WHARTON, Anne Hollingsworth.
Colonial days and dames. 1895.....917.3 W59
Contents: Colonial days.—Women in the early settlement.—A group of early poetesses.—Colonial dames.—Old landmarks.—Weddings and merry-makings.—Legend and romance.
"A chatty picture of colonial home and social life, liberally sprinkled with extracts from letters, journals, etc. of the period." Dial, 1895.
- Salons, colonial and republican. 1900.....917.3 W59s
A further contribution, in the line of the author's earlier works, to the study of American social life during colonial times and the earlier days of the Republic.
- Through colonial doorways. 1893.....917.3 W59t
Contents: Through colonial doorways.—The meschianza.—New York balls and receptions.—The American philosophical society.—The Wistar parties.—A bundle of old love letters.—The Philadelphia dancing assemblies.
Pleasant historical gossip about social, intellectual and home life of prominent people of Revolutionary period. Relates mainly to Philadelphia.
- WILSON, Charles Henry.
The wanderer in America; a statement of observations and facts relative to the United States & Canada. 1822...r917.3 W76
By an Englishman who was not very well impressed by the country and people.
- WINTERBOTHAM, William.
Historical, geographical, commercial and philosophical view of the United States and of the settlements in America and the West Indies. 4v. 1795.....r917.3 W79
"Valuable record of the state of this continent at the end of the last century, selected from all accessible sources." Quoted in Tuckerman's America and her commentators.
- WORTLEY, Lady Emmeline Charlotte Elizabeth (Manners) Stuart.
Travels in the United States, 1849 and 1850. 1851.....r917.3 W91
A brief but lively account of her visit to Pittsburgh on p.88-90. Her trip extended from New England to Mexico, Panama and Peru.
"We cannot fancy a book more popular in the United States than this is likely to prove. Without the fulsomeness of Mrs. Maury, Lady Emmeline Stuart Wortley is nearly as unreserved in her delight and approval of everything American as that lady was." Athenaeum, 1851.

New England

974 History

- BAKER, Charlotte Alice.
True stories of New England captives carried to Canada during the old French and Indian wars. 1897.....974 B17
"No more picturesque stories can be found than those of some of the New England captives carried during King William's and Queen Anne's wars to Canada...With a most sympathetic touch, after having turned over in Canada many a parish and convent record, walking pityingly in tracks which the captives...trod with bare and bleeding feet, [Miss Baker] tells of those by-gone sorrows." Larner's Literature of American history.

BARBER, John Warner, comp.

History and antiquities of New England, New York and

New Jersey. 1856.....r974 B23

BAXTER, James Phinney.

Pioneers of New France in New England, with contemporary letters and documents. 1894. (Munsell's historical series.).....r974 B33

Devoted to an attempt to prove that in their attack on Father Ralé's mission at Norridgewock, Maine, in 1724, the New Englanders "were not murderers and assassins...but were driven to the necessity of subduing their savage neighbors, who were deliberately incited by Ralé and others of his countrymen."

BROWN, John, of Bedford.

Pilgrim Fathers of New England and their Puritan successors. 1895.....974 B79

"A clear, strong account, written with special reference to Gov. Bradford's History of Plymouth plantation and having illustrations of high grade. Two thirds of the book are devoted to the Scrooby Company...It is an English account of a great episode, unbiased and readable, but offering no new material." Larned's Literature of American history.

BYINGTON, Ezra Hoyt.

The Puritan as a colonist and reformer. 1899.....974 B99

Contents: The Pilgrim as a colonist.—The Puritan as a colonist.—John Eliot, the apostle to the Indians.—Jonathan Edwards and the great awakening.—Shakespeare and the Puritans.

"List of authorities referred to," p.23-26.

"Not...a comparative study of the colonizing ideals and methods of the Puritans, or of their peculiarities as reformers...It is rather a somewhat loosely connected group of essays...All are agreeably written, and the essential outlines are skilfully presented; but the concluding paper is hardly germane to the general theme of the rest of the volume, and is its least valuable portion. The book, as a whole, is worthy of cordial commendation." Nation, 1900.

DRAKE, Samuel Adams.

Making of New England, 1580-1643. 1894.....974 D78

"Embodies the results of thorough scholarship, presented in attractive form...The part devoted to Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine is especially satisfactory." Larned's Literature of American history.

FELT, Joseph Barlow.

Ecclesiastical history of New England, comprising not only religious but also moral and other relations, [to

1678]. 2v. 1855-62.....r974 F34

Dr Felt spent 10 years in arranging the old state papers of Massachusetts, engaged in much other antiquarian research and was noted for his thorough knowledge of New England history.

FISKE, John.

Beginnings of New England; or, The Puritan theocracy in its relations to civil and religious liberty. 1894.....974 F54

Bibliographical note, p.279-287.

"As the title indicates, this is not a formal history of New England, but an attempt to indicate the principles at work in its history down to the Revolution of 1689. The whole is considered as an illustration of the English method of nation-making, i. e., by incorporation with representation. The settlement of the Puritan colonies, the formation of the Confederacy and the overthrow of the Andros government are taken as the chief features of the period." Larned's Literature of American history.

HAWKS, Francis Lister.

History of the middle states illustrated by tales, sketches and anecdotes. 1844.....r974 H36

First published in 1833. Intended for "young readers."

MATHER, Cotton.

Magnalia Christi Americana; or, The ecclesiastical history of New-England from its first planting, 1620, unto 1698.

2v. 1820.....r974 M46

"Mather knew a great deal of the history he here essays, and most of the persons whose biographies he writes, and where he does not know he pads it out. He inserts documents of all sorts, and the most miscellaneous information. But he is eminently readable and enjoyable." Larned's Literature of American history.

NEAL, Daniel.

History of New-England, containing an account of the civil and ecclesiastical affairs to 1700, and their charter, ecclesiastical discipline and municipal-laws. 2v. 1720..r974 N17

"[Neal's] chief authorities were Winslow, Morton, Wood, Josselyn, Increase and Cotton Mather, and Hubbard, but he used also contemporary pamphlets and letters, and obtained by inquiry some private information. His work was, therefore, superior to anything of the kind that preceded it. He depended to a large extent on Mather's 'Magnalia,' but his attitude is that of one who wishes to be impartial." Larned's Literature of American history.

NEW England's first fruits, with divers other special matters concerning that country. 1865. (Sabin's reprints.)....r974 N26

Originally published in London in 1643. Divided into two parts: the first, "in respect of the Indians;" the second, "of the progress of learning in the college at Cambridge in Massachusetts bay."

PALFREY, John Gorham.

History of New England. 5v. 1890-92.....r974 P18

v.1-3. During the Stuart dynasty.

v.4-5. From the revolution of the 17th century to the revolution of the 18th.

"Not only the most satisfactory history of New England we have, but one of the most admirable historical works ever produced in America. It shows great learning...comprehensive views...and sound judgment...Written in graceful and agreeable style." C. K. Adams.

"Its only shortcoming is that it deals somewhat too leniently with the faults of the Puritan theocracy and looks at things too exclusively from a Massachusetts point of view." Fiske's Beginnings of New England.

WEEDEN, William Babcock.

Economic and social history of New England, 1620-1789.

2v. 1894.....974 W42

Describes growth of industries and government during colonial period and deals specially with the social life of the people.

"Mr. Weeden deserves the thanks of all who are interested in the history of one of the most remarkable of human societies, for his work will prepare the way for the broader study of this history that is to come." Nation, 1890.

WINTHROP, John, 1587-1649.

Winthrop papers. 6v. 1863-92. (In Massachusetts historical society. Collections, ser.4, v.6-7; ser.5, v.1, v.4, p.287-313; ser.5, v.8; ser.6, v.3, 5.).....qr974.4 M45

"This mass of papers relates to the history of New England from 1630-1727, more particularly to that of Massachusetts and Connecticut. Many other papers from the Winthrop collection are scattered through the Proceedings and the earlier volumes of the Collections." Larned's Literature of American history.

BACON, Edwin Munroe.

Historic pilgrimages in New England among landmarks of Pilgrim and Puritan days and of the provincial and Revolutionary periods. 1898.....j917.4 B12h

 Readable, well-illustrated historical guide-book to Boston and its neighborhood.

BARTRAM, John.

Observations made in his travels from Pensilvania to Onondago, Oswego and the Lake Ontario in Canada, to which is annex'd a curious account of the cataracts at Niagara, by Peter Kalm. 1895.....r917.4 B27
 Reprinted from the edition of 1751.

BOLLES, Frank.

At the north of Bearcamp water; chronicles of a stroller in New England from July to December. 1893.....917.4 B61
 "The scene is the neighborhood of Chocorua, and the papers will be pleasant reminders of old, and possibly guides to new, fields for those acquainted with the region." Nation, 1893.

Land of the lingering snow; chronicles of a stroller in New England from January to June. 1898.....917.4 B61l
 Notes of a lover of nature on his walks and longer excursions radiating from Cambridge, Mass. It is remarkable how much of interest he finds in winter and his description of the reluctant advance of the New England spring is very faithful. As a naturalist he is most interested in the birds.

BURNABY, Andrew.

Travels through the middle settlements in North America in 1759 and 1760. 1798.....qr917.4 B92
 "There is a pleasant tone, a wise and educated spirit in this record, which make ample amends for the obvious influences of the writer's religious and political views upon his impressions of the country and the people. The Rev. Andrew Burnaby was a native of Lancastershire, an élève of Westminster School, and a graduate of Queen's College, Cambridge...His book on America was 'praised and valued' as a fair and agreeable report of 'the state of the colonies' then called the 'Middle Settlements.'" Tuckerman's America and her commentators.

CHILD, Frank Samuel.

The colonial parson of New England. 1896.....917.4 C43
 "Generally similar in matter and treatment to the books of Mrs. Alice Morse Earle...His book is pleasantly written, and affords some amusing and instructive glimpses of Colonial parsons in general...as well as parsons specific." Dial, 1897.

CROWNINSHIELD, Mrs Mary (Bradford).

All among the lighthouses; or, The cruise of the Golden-rod. 1886.....j917.4 C89

CURTIS, George William.

Lotus-eating. 1852.....917.4 C93
Contents: The Hudson and the Rhine.—Catskill.—Catskill falls.—Trenton.—Niagara.—Saratoga.—Lake George.—Nahant.—Newport.
 "We should do the book an injustice...if we failed to recognize...its essential originality, its unapproached success in throwing around beautiful scenes an atmosphere less crude and arid than that of mere fashion, its peculiarly acute and amiable study of certain phases of American society and character in the light of Old-World travel and intelligence." W. D. Howells, in North American review, 1868.

DRAKE, Samuel Adams.

Nooks and corners of the New England coast. 1875.....917.4 D78
 Beginning at Mount Desert the author gives pleasant description and interesting history of well-known points along the whole New England coast, York, the Isles of Shoals, Salem, Plymouth, Provincetown, Nantucket, Newport, Norwich, Saybrook and many other places. Illustrated.

DWIGHT, Theodore, comp.

Northern traveller, containing the route to the Springs,

SMITH, Helen Evertson.

Colonial days & ways [in New York and Connecticut] as gathered from family papers. 1900.....917.4 S64

"She has had access to great ancestral mansions of the colonial period, and gives vivid pictures of Yankee, Dutch, and Huguenot interiors ... Equally fresh and realistic is Miss Smith's report of the persecutions endured by her Huguenot ancestors in their mother country. ... Besides all these personal narratives, Miss Smith relates many interesting incidents connected with the Revolutionary period. The book also abounds in descriptions of old-time customs." Nation, 1900.

SWEETSER, Moses Forster, ed.

HOWE, Daniel Wait.

Puritan republic of the Massachusetts Bay in New England. 1899.....974.4 H85

"Authorities," p.35-38.

"This is an attempt to tell once more the story of the Puritans and the development of the government they established in America. Mr. Howe prejudices his reader against him at the outset by confounding Pilgrims with Puritans and so throwing doubt on his sense of historical accuracy. He has told his story with unnecessary dryness, and without an adequate appreciation of the needs of the general reader on one side or the demands of the student on the other. The book contains much information, but nothing that is either new or original." Larned's Literature of American history.

The heading of the first chapter and the running title is "Wonder-working providence of Sion's Saviour in New England."

"A history of New England the book is not, but rather a history of Massachusetts down to...1651. Among New England histories it has the distinction of being the first to appear in print, for it was printed in London in 1653 (dated 1654). It was printed anonymously, but its author is known to have been Captain Edward Johnson, selectman and town clerk of...Woburn, Massachusetts...The hot zeal, the narrow partisanship, the confident dogmatism, which characterized so much of Puritanism, have in him a striking example...While he gives much valuable information, especially as to the successive planting of new towns and churches in Massachusetts, he is not seldom inaccurate." Jameson's History of historical writing in America.

"A book abounding in solid qualities, but possessing no popular merit.

The author never acquired the art of effective expression, and consequently his readers are likely to be few and select. The work is of great value to the historical student; but those who read for the mere pleasure of the hour will scarcely advance further than the first few chapters." C. K. Adams.

DAWSON, Henry Barton.

Westchester-county, New York, during the American revolution. 1886.....qr974.7 D33

"It is a study of the conditions out of which the Revolution developed in the southern part of the province of New York, and contains a somewhat detailed account of the movement there, from the spring of 1774 till the close of 1776...His spirit and point of view are those of the moderate Loyalist." Larned's Literature of American history.

"Not...of great value now, the documents procured in the archives of Europe having thrown more and frequently different light on many facts." Winsor's Narrative and critical history of America.

FLINT, Martha Bockée.

Early Long Island; a colonial study. 1896.....974.7 F64

List of books consulted, p.530-538.

"A highly creditable production of patient scholarship and of the sympathetic historic spirit tempered by judicial fairness. It is well equipped with an analytical table-of-contents, footnotes, appendices of historical documents, lists of prominent actors in the history of the island, a bibliography and a copious index." Critic, 1896.

HALSEY, Francis Whiting.

Old New York frontier; its wars with Indians and Tories, its missionary schools, pioneers and land titles, 1614-

Covers the period from 1609 to 1780.

ROBERTS, Ellis Henry.

New York. 2v. 1890. (American commonwealths.)....974.7 R53
"That part...recounting the colonial history is written with more care and clearness than the sequel...The portraits of royal governors are done with some touch of individual quality." Nation, 1887.

SCHUYLER, George Washington.

Colonial New York; Philip Schuyler and his family. 2v.
1885.974.7 S39
"A book of genealogy and family memoirs, with an abundant addition of history...The intermarriages give the author an opportunity to sketch the fortunes of the Van Cortlandts, Van Rensselaers, Livingstons and others. So closely were the Schuylers concerned with Indian affairs, that the author considers himself justified in recounting much of the history of relations with the Iroquois and the French during the colonial period. The Schuylers were Dutch, and that occasions a disquisition of nearly 200 pages on the history of New Netherland. But the matter presented is reliable, and the book is a valuable commentary on many phases of social development in provincial New York." Larned's Literature of American history.

SEVERANCE, Frank Hayward.

Old trails on the Niagara frontier. 1899.....974.7 S49
Contents: The cross bearers.—The Paschal of the great pinch.—With Bolton at Fort Niagara.—What befel David Ogden.—A Fort Niagara centennial.—The journals and journeys of an early Buffalo merchant [John Lay].—Misadventures of Robert Marsh.—Underground trails.—Niagara and the poets.

SMITH, William, 1728-93.

History of New-York, to 1732, with a continuation to 1814.
1814.r974.7 S66
"The material of the work throughout is drawn very largely from the journals of the Assembly and of the Legislative Council...It is strictly a political history...The style is simple, concise, dry...Ranks with Stith's Virginia and Hutchinson's Massachusetts as one of the worthiest examples of historical literature produced in later colonial times." Larned's Literature of American history.
Really ends with 1747, in spite of the title-page. A later edition in two volumes brings the history down to 1762.

STILES, Henry Reed.

History of Brooklyn, including Bushwick and Williamsburgh. 3v. 1867-70.....r974.7 S85

"It has evidently been a labor of love on the part of its author and editor, who has not only harvested but gleaned in every field of available information...Is of more than merely local interest...Profusely illustrated with views, maps, plans, autographs, portraits, and other illustrations, all well selected and admirably executed." Nation, 1870.

TURNER, O.

History of the pioneer settlement of Phelps & Gorham's purchase and Morris' reserve, [with] a continuation of the pioneer history of Ontario, Wayne, Livingston, Yates and Allegany. 1852.....r974.7 T86

"Traces the records of the Genesee Valley through the periods of warfare, exploration and settlement. Too diffuse and disconnected for an adequate history, it is an invaluable repository for a vast quantity of pioneer reminiscences." Larned's Literature of American history.

History of the city of New York. 3v. 1877-96.....qr974.71 L17

v.3 title-page reads "History of the city of New York: the externals of modern New York," by Mrs Burton Harrison.

"The result of careful investigation. The first volume gives a faithful and picturesque account of the colony. The later history is 'too large and diversified to be treated otherwise than as a series of sketches.'" Nation, 1881.

"Mrs. Harrison continues the story from 1880, giving a succinct and lively description of events." Larned's Literature of American history.

ROOSEVELT, Theodore.

New York. 1891. (Historic towns.).....974.71 R68

"The chief merit of Mr. Roosevelt's sketch, so far as it relates to the history of the city of New York—for we think his digressions the best part of it—is the clearness with which he brings out the mongrel character of the population...The purely narrative portions of the history are very agreeably written, and leave the reader with the single regret that they are necessarily so much abbreviated." Nation, 1891.

STONE, William Leete, b. 1835.

History of New York city, [1868]. 1868.....r974.71 S87

"More truly an account of events which occurred in the city, than a history of the city itself...Mr. Stone's treatment of the present century constitutes the most valuable part of his book. But in that he dwells on the popular, spectacular and superficial aspects of the subject rather than on the essentials of municipal history." Larned's Literature of American history.

TODD, Charles Burr.

Brief history of the city of New York, [to 1898]. 1899...974.71 T55

Manhattan, historic and artistic; a six-day tour; the greater

New York guide book. 1897.....917.471 A35

"It does not seek to take the place of a directory. Many places of considerable interest are barely mentioned, and some are not mentioned at all...Visitors are told how to follow routes covering 12 half days, with an extra day in Brooklyn, so arranged as to bring them within reach of a larger number of interesting features than any other routes taking the same time would furnish, every foot of the ground having been gone over and the time carefully registered. The hours when visitors are admitted to different institutions are always mentioned, and calculated for in the itinerary." Preface.

"An extended essay—not a study—upon the experiences and qualities of those people who lived, or who persist in living, on the site selected by Penn's Commissioners in 1681 for his city on the Delaware. Her purpose, well fulfilled, is to make a readable volume, and she has applied a light and graceful touch...to her work." *American his-

"One of the chief authorities...Sufficient care has not been taken in all cases to follow the original language of documents quoted...Nevertheless, it is doubtful if any work in America has done more to cultivate a taste for historical study. There is a charm about its gossipy pages which has attracted to it thousands of readers, and provoked more serious investigations. It contains much regarding the domestic life of the first settlers and the building of Philadelphia which has been universally accepted, and many traditions...which there is no reason to question." Justin Winsor.

'Appendix contains the "Hazleton travellers; or, Numerous personal and family sketches of the ancient sufferers;" together with a description of the monument and a ballad on the terrible massacre of 1778, written immediately after the event.

"Miner was a local antiquarian, who gathered his materials from the people of the Valley, from printed sources and from original documents in state and English archives...Especially valuable for its accounts of the controversy between Connecticut and Pennsylvania, and the Wyoming massacre, on which subjects it is accurate and very full. It ends with the settlement of the controversy." Larned's Literature of American history.

DODDRIDGE, Joseph.

Notes on the settlement and Indian wars of the western parts of Virginia and Pennsylvania, from 1763 to 1783. 1876.....r974.88 D66
 With newspaper clippings.
 First published in 1824.

"Joseph Doddridge...was a physician and a missionary of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and in both his professions a man highly esteemed. He was born in Maryland in 1769, and in his fourth year removed with his family to the western border of the line between Pennsylvania and Virginia. With abundant opportunities in his youth of familiarity with the rudest experiences of frontier life near hostile Indians, he was a keen observer, a skilful narrator, and a diligent gatherer-up of historical and traditional lore from the hardy and well-scarred pioneers...He was a keen student of nature as well as of humanity. His pages give us most vivid pictures of life under the stern and perilous conditions; not, however, without their fascinations, of forest haunts, of rude and scattered cabins, of domestic and social relations, of the resources of the heroic whites, and of the qualities of Indian warfare in the desperate struggle with the invaders." Winsor's Narrative and critical history of America.

GIST, Christopher.

Christopher Gist's journals, with notes and biographies of his contemporaries, by W. M. Darlington. 1893..qr974.88 G45
 "In 1750 and 1751 Christopher Gist, the Agent of the Ohio Company of Virginia, explored the greater portion of the region now included within the boundaries of...Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia, and parts of Western Maryland and Southwestern Pennsylvania. These explorations were the earliest made so far west, for the single object of examining the country, as they are the first also of which a regular journal was kept." Introductory memoir.

"This book represents an effort to tell the revolutionary history of the Western Pennsylvania border; to describe the trials, sacrifices, the errors, and heroisms of the frontiersmen, in their conflict with Tories, British partisans and savages, during the years when Washington and his generals were fighting for independence along the Atlantic seaboard." Preface.

Author is a Pittsburgher and his book will be found to be of great local interest.

FINDLEY, William.

History of the insurrection in the four western counties of Pennsylvania, 1794, and an historical review of the previous situation of the country. 1796.....r974.88 F49

"His treatise, on the whole, was written but to give a partial view of the matter, and as an apology for his own share in it, as was Brackenridge's account, who thought it worth while to recount the affair at large to illustrate and explain his own peculiar course. Findley's account was not in all particulars correct, so his contemporaries said, and he himself afterwards acknowledged that in some matters he had been misinformed, and in others he had relied on vague reports...There was only one edition of the 'History' printed, and copies are now scarce. All of his adversaries...admit that in the statement of facts he would not knowingly deviate from truth, but they assert that his prejudices were strong, and that his personal enmity biased his judgment. Findley and Brackenridge were very bitterly opposed to each other. In the matter of substantial gain and advantage, Findley probably had the best of Brackenridge; but now that they and their generation have passed, Brackenridge still gets the ear of the people in his inimitable satire in which Findley is caricatured." Albert's History of the county of Westmoreland.

FORD, David.

Journal of an expedition made in 1794 with troops into western Pennsylvania to aid in suppressing the Whiskey rebellion.r974.88 B67

Speech against the resolution that these elections were unconstitutional and therefore void.

PENNSYLVANIA—General assembly.

Papers relating to the Whiskey insurrection in western Pennsylvania, 1794. (In Pennsylvania archives, 2d ser., v.4, p.3-550.).....r974.8 P399pt v.4
Short historical account of the insurrection, p.5-18.

A large number of documents including those of the government and of the insurgents: official papers, correspondence, acts of Congress relating to excise, the president's proclamations, Hamilton's report, Judge Addison's charge to the grand jury, Gen. Lee's proclamation of pardon, and many other documents. In an appendix are given a few papers which appeared in newspapers and give the humorous side of the matter: an Indian treaty; speeches of Capt. Whiskey, Capt. Alliance and Capt. Pacificus, with the Jersey Blue's answer.

WILSON, Erasmus, ed.

Standard history of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. 1898...qr974.886 W76

"Design of this work was to bring all continuous subjects, with as much detail as space would allow, down to the time of the Rebellion, and to sketch the most important recent events only. So many requests were made for the insertion of individual, business and family sketches that a few of a representative character were accepted and will be found grouped in one chapter at the close of the book. Owing to lack of space it was found impracticable to publish special sketches of many prominent persons and institutions; and accordingly a selection was made covering the entire range of the city's history and embracing those that would well represent many classes and pursuits." Preface.

 of the book is that which deals with the proprietary period, and with the land system as it was when New Jersey became a royal province. In the preparation of this original authorities were used, which cannot always be said of the later parts of the work." Lar-

RAUM, John Otto.

History of New Jersey, [to 1876]. 2v. 1877.....r974.9 R22

"The larger part of the first volume...is an impudent plagiarism. It is for the most part a verbatim reproduction of Smith's 'History of New Jersey,' without, so far as I have noticed, the slightest acknowledgment until, on page 240. Smith is credited with being the authority for a minor detail of local history...The second volume, and that part of the first volume which was prepared without the silent coöperation of Smith, is a hotchpotch of history and statistics and local details, which, if they were well put together, might make a respectable gazetteer of New Jersey. But the character of the first part of the work throws doubt on all the statements made in the latter part." Larned's Literature of American history.

BARTRAM, William.

Travels through North and South Carolina, Georgia, East and West Florida, the Cherokee country, with observations on the manners of the Indians. 1792.....r917.5 B28

"While the author is largely concerned with natural history, the Indians and the white fur-traders interest him greatly, and his journal abounds in graphic descriptions of forest life and aboriginal manners. An appendix...specifically treats of 'The persons, manners, customs and government of the' tribes visited. The work is of high value as an original authority upon our southern Indians, during the period of the Revolutionary War." Larned's Literature of American history.

BUTTERWORTH, Hezekiah.

FIELD, Henry Martyn.

Bright skies and dark shadows. 1890.....917.5 F45

"Literary outcome of a winter tour through the Southern States. The 'shadows' are cast, as may be surmised, by the Race Problem—to the present aspects and future possibilities of which the author devotes the more serious portion of his book...The bulk of the volume is of light texture—anecdote, personal experience, etc.; and mention should be made of a graphic description of the battle of Franklin." Dial, 1890.

Contents: His home.—Sweethearts and wives.—His dress.—News, trade and travel.—His friends and foes.—His amusements.—His man-servants and his maid-servants.—His church.—His education.—Laws, punishments and politics.—Sickness and death.

List of authorities, p.315-316.

"This little volume makes no pretensions to the dignity of a history. It aims only, through local gossip and homely details of life and customs, to open a side-door, through which we may, perchance, gain a sense of fireside intimacy with The Colonial Cavalier." Preface.

HUNDLEY, D. R.

Social relations in our Southern states. 1860.....917.5 H93

Appeared in "Scribner's monthly," v.7-9, 1873-74, with the title "The great South."

The record of an observation tour during 1873-74, undertaken at the instance of the publishers of "Scribner's monthly," who wished to present to the public an account of the material resources and the social and political condition of the people of the former slave states.

LANMAN, Charles.

Letters from the Alleghany mountains. 1849.....r917.5 L27

"An interesting account of visits to the southern Appalachians, mostly in North Carolina, at a time when Dahlonega, Ga., was 'reputed to be the wealthiest gold region in the United States.'" Larned's Literature of American history.

LEDERER, John.

Discoveries of Lederer in three several marches from Virginia to the west of Carolina, 1669-1670; tr. by Sir William Talbot. 1879. (Harpel's antiquarian reprints.)r917.5 L51

The same. 1902.....917.5 L51

Reprint of the edition of 1672.

Lederer came to this country in 1688 from Germany. He offered his services to Sir William Berkeley, governor of Virginia, for the exploration of the Blue Ridge and Alleghany mountains. His three expeditions all failed in their object, the finding of an easy passage across the mountains, but his book is the first to contain a description of the geography of these mountains.

OLMSTED, Frederick Law.

Cotton kingdom; a traveller's observations on cotton and slavery in the American slave states. 2v. 1861-62....r917.5 O23

Journey in the seaboard slave states, with remarks on their economy. 1856.....917.5 O23j

The same. 1856.....r917.5 O23j

"This work, contributed in the form of letters to the New York daily times, deals almost entirely with economic life in the South. The author, an ardent abolitionist, sees everything from that standpoint. He makes slavery responsible for all its ills, and has a remarkable faculty for seeing the worst side of southern society...The work abounds in bitterness, prejudice, misrepresentation and contradictions. Still, the author was a close observer, and there is much in the way of descriptions of country that is reliable." Larned's Literature of American history.

The old South; essays, social and political. 1900.....917.5 P140

Contents: The old South.—Authorship in the South before the war.—Glimpses of life in colonial Virginia.—Social life in old Virginia before the war.—Two old colonial places, old Yorktown and old Rosewell.—The old Virginia lawyer.—The want of a history of the Southern people.—The negro question.

"The book owes its significance to the fact that the author is descended from a distinguished Virginia family, and has had special opportunities to absorb the traditions of southern life. Moreover, he has made a careful study of old records—some unpublished. While he recognizes the faults of the old régime, the author generally presents only the brighter side. Incidentally a strong defence is made of the much-maligned civilization of the South. Mr. Page writes in the best of tempers, and his style is generally marked by the same fine literary touch that is found in his stories." Larned's Literature of American history.

PANGBORN, Joseph Gladding.

BOZMAN, John Leeds.

Sketch of the history of Maryland during the three first years after its settlement, [1632-38]. 1811.....r975.2 B67

"As a literary production the work is dull, but as a source of information for the student it is invaluable. The author in all cases used the original sources, and that with scrupulous care. He refers to all his authorities and prints many important documents in his appendices." Larned's Literature of American history.

BROWNE, William Hand.

Maryland; the history of a palatinate, [to 1777]. 1890.

(American commonwealths.).....975.2 B81

"Well-written and reliable outline of the history of Maryland. It begins with the colonizing experiment of Lord Baltimore in Newfoundland, and closes with the downfall of proprietary government in Maryland during the Revolution. Its author is not only thoroughly acquainted with the subject, but has shown good judgment. The account of events in the 18th century is very brief." Larned's Literature of American history.

v.3. 1812-1880.

"While we appreciate the industry and commendable zeal displayed in this work, we will venture to hint to Mr. Scharf that chronicles are written by heaping together facts, history by building them up into a complete and harmonious whole. Had he more thoroughly digested the material he has collected so laboriously, and condensed his three volumes into two, his history would have been none the worse book to refer to, and much the better book to read." Nation, 1880.

"One of the best historical works on early Virginia, and without equal in its special field. On nearly every phase of the economic life of the colony the information offered is full, and always first-hand; while the general presentation is balanced, and the literary merit considerable. The author is perhaps too trustful of early contemporary writers, and somewhat lavish of incident; and his views regarding the profitableness of slave labor are not those now generally held." Larned's Literature of American history.

Writings of "Colonel William Byrd of Westover in Virginia, Esqr.;" ed. by J. S. Bassett. 1901.....qr917.55 B99

Contents: Introduction [The Byrd family in Virginia], by J. S. Bassett. —History of the dividing line.—A journey to the land of Eden.—A progress to the mines.—Miscellaneous letters.—APPENDIXES: Catalogue of books in the library at Westover; Genealogy; The Byrds in England.

William Byrd (1674-1744) was one of the most prominent members of the Virginia colonial aristocracy, a member of the Council for 37 years, and finally its president. He accumulated great wealth and gathered the most valuable library in the colony. The Westover manuscripts, first printed in 1841, contain an account of his experiences as commissioner of his colony in determining the border line between Virginia and North Carolina in 1728, together with a journey undertaken with a friend to survey a grant of land on which he planned to exploit iron mines, and another frontier journey to mines already in operation.

Of the "History of the dividing line," Prof. Moses Coit Tyler says: "It is almost unique in our colonial age; and it is, without question, one of the most delightful of the literary legacies which that age has handed down to ours. Here we have the off-hand, daily jottings of a very clever Virginia gentleman of the early time, who has traveled much, read much, been long in the best company; and who, with a gayety that will not yield to any hardship or vexation, travels for several weeks through a wilderness...encountering Indians, semi-savage whites, wild beasts, insects, reptiles, every sort of fatigue and discomfort, the horrors and grandeurs of nature in its wildest state."

Like many other early southern historians, he seems unable to get beyond the early colonial period. The book is one of value, however, and contains a luminous description of Florida during the American Revolution. History of Louisiana, particularly of the cession of that colony to the United States, with an essay on the constitution and government of the United States. 1830..r976.3 B23

"As the commissioner appointed by Bonaparte to represent France in the preliminary negotiations with the United States, Barbé-Marbois was well qualified to be the historian of the event; and his book has proved the general source of information about it. Story of Louisiana. 1888.....976.3 T38

"Selection of books touching upon the story of Louisiana," p.330-332.

The history of Louisiana is so full of small incidents and so lacking in great ones that under ordinary conditions a brief story like this would be neither interesting nor valuable, but Mr Thompson has made it both, and has given a truthful and a picturesque account of the history of the state.

UNITED STATES—New Orleans riots, Select committee on.

Report [submitted to the House of representatives, Feb. 11, 1867, with testimony]. 1867. (39th cong. 2d sess. House. Report no.16.).....r976.3 U25

917.63 Description and travel

BRACKENRIDGE, Henry Marie.

Views of Louisiana, with journal of a voyage up the Mississippi in 1811. 1814.....r917.63 B67

Describes the geography, natural history and antiquities of the country with some account of the various Indian tribes which inhabited it.

DARBY, William.

Geographical description of Louisiana. 1816.....r917.63 D24

Not the modern state, but the territory purchased from France in 1803, comprising the entire region between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains, and extending from the north of Texas to the southern boundary of British America.

KING, Grace.

New Orleans; the place and the people. 1896.....917.63 K26

"New Orleans is not a Puritan mother, nor a hardy western pioneeress, if the term be permitted. She is, on the contrary, simply a Parisian, who came two centuries ago to the banks of the Mississippi,—partly out of curiosity for the new world, partly out of ennui for the old—and who, 'Ma foi!' as she would say with a shrug of her shoulders, has never cared to return to her mother country." Introduction.

"The accuracy of the historical part of the book is unimpeachable...the facts are presented in Miss King's usual graceful style and there is nothing dry about them." Nation, 1896.

MARCY, Randolph Barnes, & McClellan, Gen. G. B.

Exploration of the Red river of Louisiana in 1852, with

- reports on the natural history of the country. 2v. 1854.
 (United States. 33d cong. 1st sess. House. Ex. doc. no.54.)r917.63 M37
 v.1. [Text.]
 v.2. Maps.
 v.2 contains also "Map of the country between the frontiers of Arkansas and New Mexico embracing the region explored in 1849, 50, 51 & 52
 by Capt. R. B. Marcy."
 "Narrative report of more than usual value for its geographical descriptions of the upper Red River and the region about the Llano estacado.
 The appendix includes reports on geology by Hitchcock and Shu-mard." Larned's Literature of American history.

Texas. Arkansas

BROWN, John Henry.

- History of Texas, 1685-1892. 2v. 1893.....r976.4 B79
 Treats chiefly of the history from 1685 through the Civil war.

CORNER, William, comp.

- San Antonio de Bexar; a guide and history. 1890.....qr917.64 C82 Includes Sidney Lanier's historical sketch of San Antonio, and a very complete guide to that city, well illustrated with plans and photographs.

DAVIS, Mrs Mollie Evelyn (Moore).

- Under six flags; the story of Texas. 1898.....j976.4 D32

OLMSTED, Frederick Law.

- Journey through Texas; or, A saddle-trip on the southwestern frontier. 1857.....r917.64 O23

WOOTEN, Dudley Goodall, ed.

- Comprehensive history of Texas. 2v. 1898.....qr976.4 W91

v.1. 1685-1845.

v.2. 1845-1897.

v.1 contains Henderson Yoakum's "History of Texas, 1685-1845."

"Reprint of Yoakum's History of Texas without the documentary matter in the appendixes, but with notes relating almost entirely to the Revolution and made up mainly from F. W. Johnson's manuscript History of Texas...with...monographs on various aspects of the life of the republic and the state, bringing the history up to 1895. The chapters concerning the Austins and their work in colonizing Texas are especially rich in documents previously unpublished." Larned's Literature of American history.

GILMORE, James Roberts.

- The advance-guard of western civilization. 1888.....976.8 G42

Sketches of the early Tennessee settlers along the Cumberland and their heroic struggles to extend the frontier.

HAYWOOD, John.

- Civil and political history of Tennessee, to 1796. 1891....976.8 H37

Reprint of the edition of 1823.

Biographical sketch of the author, by A. S. Colyar, p.5-14.

"Original work for the history of Tennessee and the one on which later books are to a greater or less extent based. The author lived near enough to the pioneers to receive reports and memories from them.
 He was also a student and a sound political thinker and is the chief authority for accounts of the Indians; but as he rested his work mainly on the narratives of the pioneers in their old age he has fallen into many blunders." Larned's Literature of American history.

HUMES, Thomas William.

Loyal mountaineers of Tennessee. 1888.....976.8 H92 Concerning the history of eastern Tennessee and the part it played in the Civil war.

"Political history is not expanded to the exclusion of all other subjects, as is so usual in state histories, but the making of the state in all its phases is traced, and its development told in vigorous English, which has called to its aid all the arts of the trained historical investigator...It stops with the outbreak of the Civil War." Larned's pioneer history.

RAMSEY, James Gattys McGregor.

Annals of Tennessee, [to 1800]. 1853.....r976.8 R18

"Covers the history of the Watauga Association and of the other settlements from which came the state of Tennessee, and follows the state itself down to 1800...It is largely documentary, for there are many extracts from original records, but the groundwork is Haywood, whom he follows almost blindly at times." Larned's Literature of American history.

"Result of several years of intelligent study, based on active field investigation, careful inspection of many archæological objects, and thorough acquaintance with what other students have accomplished in solving the problems of prehistoric America. It is an important contribution not only to the archæology of the southern states, but to American archæology in general." Larned's Literature of American history.

 "Valuable contribution to an interesting subject; but written primarily to clear the memory of the author's ancestor, John Brown, one of the foremost men of his time west of the Alleghany Mountains, of the charge of complicity in the plan to separate Kentucky from the Union and unite it with the Spanish government of Louisiana." Larned's Literature of American history.

- GREEN, Thomas Marshall.
 Spanish conspiracy; a review of early Spanish movements in the South-west. 1891.....r976.9 G83
 "Deals with an important but keenly controverted subject in an acutely controversial spirit. Family feeling in Kentucky has entered deeply into the matter, and the author may be said to hold the brief of one side to the quarrel. The book is a reply to John Mason Brown's 'The political beginnings of Kentucky' [qr976.9 B79]...and will be valuable to the student of the general subject." Larned's Literature of American history.
- JOHNSTON, Josiah Stoddard, ed.
 First explorations of Kentucky: Thomas Walker's Journal of an exploration of Kentucky in 1750; being the first record of a white man's visit to the interior of that territory, now first published entire, with notes and bio-

Like other publications of the Filson club, this is an exhaustive monograph on its subject. The appendix contains many extracts from rare books, manuscripts, pamphlets and newspapers. Illustrated.

SHALER, Nathaniel Southgate.

Kentucky. 1888. (American commonwealths.).....976.9 S52

List of Kentucky histories, p.424-427.

Mr Shaler disclaims intention of writing a history but offers a most readable setting forth of the natural advantages and a historical outline.

"Author...was qualified by a long personal knowledge of men and events in Kentucky, to write the history of the state. He fought in the Civil War on the Union side, and presents a vivid picture of the events that marked the great conflict, as well as of the period of 'reconstruction.' Naturally, also, there is a good description of the geology of the state...Author's judgment seems to be occasionally biased by excessive state pride; but he shows an honest effort to be fair towards those who thought differently from him in the Civil War. The style is clear and vigorous." Larned's Literature of American history.

BURNET, Jacob.

- Notes on the early settlement of the North-western territory. 1847.....r977 B93
 With annotations by Judge Veech.
 "Valuable original contribution to the early history of the Northwest and particularly of Ohio. The author, educated at Nassau Hall and bred to the law in New Jersey, made his home in Cincinnati in 1796 and died in that city in 1853. He rode the circuit with the territorial judges; filled numerous important offices; was an active participant in many of the events which he relates...The book is not to be implicitly trusted, although perfectly sincere and aiming to be impartial. The author depended too much upon his memory, which he did not sufficiently refresh by reference to authorities."
Larned's Literature of American history.

BUTTERFIELD, Consul Willshire.

- History of Brulé's discoveries and explorations, 1610-1626; a narrative of the discovery of lakes Huron, Ontario and Superior, and of the explorations of Pennsylvania and western New York, also of the province of Ontario, with a biographical notice of the discoverer. 1898.

(Western reserve historical society. Miscellaneous publications.)r977 B98

Brulé (1592-1632) came to Canada with Champlain in 1608. The geographical details which the author gives are helpful in identifying localities and his extracts from rare authors, as Champlain and Sagard, are gratifying, but he brings forward no new authorities nor newly discovered facts. Adapted from American historical review,

DRAKE, Samuel Adams.

Making of the Ohio valley states, 1660-1837. 1894.....977 D78

Popular history presenting the familiar tales of pioneer life and giving clearly and concisely other matter which is not found in the ordinary history. Excellent illustrations of life in early days.

"By reference to authority, by supplementary foot-note, by illustration from local environment Mr. Drake has stamped his narrative with the certificate of truthfulness." Dial, 1894.

ENGLISH, William Hayden.

Conquest of the country northwest of the Ohio, 1778-

1783, and life of Gen. George Rogers Clark. 2v. 1896..q977 E64

"Noble historical and biographical work of permanent value, which at once takes first rank. The story is told with precision and in great detail; it abounds in contemporaneous documentary material of the highest value, and is enriched with a great many facsimiles of letters and autographs, besides portraits, views, maps, and other illustrations
...The appendix...contains a great variety of interesting matter, including in full Clark's account against the State of Virginia, and the strange history of the bill in chancery over his alleged will, filed May 6, 1835, and not dismissed till November 20, 1865," Nation, 1896.

ESPY, Josiah.

Memorandums of a tour in Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana territory, 1805. 1870. (Ohio valley historical series.)..r977 E84

"Mr. Espy's narrative is that of a man with a 'curiosity of observation' as he himself says, with an acute judgment which led him frequently to conclusions greatly in advance of his time." Thomson's Bibliography of Ohio.

FERNOW, Berthold.

The Ohio valley in colonial days. 1890. (Munsell's his-Small volume of 155 pages originally designed for use in schools.

HILDRETH, Samuel Prescott.

Pioneer history; an account of the first examinations of the Ohio valley and the early settlement of the North-west territory. 1848.....r977 H54

This is v.1 of the Transactions of the Historical society of Cincinnati.

"The work of a man who had lived in the Ohio Valley more than forty years, and who was personally acquainted with a large portion of the early settlers. The chief interest of the volume clusters about the work of the Ohio Company, which made its first settlement at Marietta, and which soon extended its influence over the whole state." C. K. Adams.

HINSDALE, Burke Aaron.

Old Northwest; the beginnings of our colonial system.

1888.r977 H57

Contains a chapter on the Pennsylvania boundary disputes.

"A series of essays rather than a continuous narrative...The story of this territory is told to the time of the admission of the separate states...A closing chapter illustrates the development of the Northwest, up to 1880. A creditable piece of work, mostly based upon secondary sources." Larned's Literature of American history.

"One of the old established standard works on the history of the Mississippi valley, extending in time from the first Spanish discoveries in Florida to the admission of Texas into the Union. Although, as to colonial records, superseded by a younger generation of books... it is yet authoritative over an important field and period in American history; notably of the political and geographical complications following the Treaty of Paris, and the questions arising during the transitional period after the cession of Louisiana. The abundant notes given furnish a good bibliography on these subjects." Larned's Literature of American history.

v.1-2. Text.
v.3. Atlas.

"The journey was undertaken in 1796, at the request of Adet, minister from France to the United States, for the purpose of obtaining 'a minute detail of the political, commercial and military state of the western part of that continent'...The maps and plates are beautifully engraved by Tardieu." Sabin's Dictionary of books relating to America.

"This work is published in sumptuous style and relates largely to Ohio, and almost entirely to the Western States. The maps are the very perfection of fine engraving and of the greatest value to the historian. The charts of the Ohio river are very minute and complete in detail, showing each creek, settlement, farm, etc., along its banks." Thomson's Bibliography of Ohio.

Topographical description of Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and North Carolina, with an appendix containing Patrick Kennedy's Journal up the Illinois river.

1778.r917.7 H96

"Author...was born in New Jersey, 1730, and his whole life after his 16th year was spent in the western country; he was assistant engineer in Bouquet's Expedition, and did efficient service." Thomson's Bibliography of Ohio.

LONG, Stephen Harriman.

Narrative of an expedition to the source of St. Peter's river, Lake Winnepeek, Lake of the Woods, &c. performed in 1823, by order of J. C. Calhoun, secretary of war, under the command of Stephen H. Long; compiled from the notes of Major Long, Messrs Say, Keating & Colhoun, by W. H. Keating. 2v. 1825.....r917.7 L82

"One of the earlier reports on the region of the upper Mississippi, more valuable for its account of the Indians than for its geographical descriptions, long ago superseded." Larned's Literature of American history.

LOOMIS, Chester A.

Journey on horseback through the great west in 1825.

[18—].r917.7 L85

Small pamphlet describing a journey through Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri.

MAY, John.

Journal and letters relative to two journeys to the Ohio country, 1788 and '89, with a biographical sketch by R. S. Edes and notes by W. M. Darlington. 1873. (Historical and philosophical society of Ohio. Publications.).....r917.7 M52

"One of the best of the early journals of travelers on the Ohio, for economic views. May was a Boston merchant." Thwaites's Afloat on the Ohio.

PEYTON, John Lewis.

Over the Alleghanies and across the prairies; personal recollections of the far west. 1869.....r917.7 P47

The journey here described was taken in 1848, and the recollections afford some interesting comparisons between conditions then and now. The travels cover parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Missouri.

PIKE, Zebulon Montgomery.

Expeditions to headwaters of the Mississippi river, through Louisiana territory and in New Spain during 1805-7; ed.

by Elliott Coues. 3v. 1895.....r917.7 P58

v.1. Memoir of the author.—Mississippi river.

v.2. Arkansas journey.—Mexican tour.

v.3. Index.—Maps.

"In historical interest and importance, Pike's reports of his expeditions stand second only to the reports of Lewis and Clark. This new edition, reprinted from the original of 1810, with copious critical commentary, exhaustive memoir of Pike, new map, and other illustrations, and complete index, presents the explorer and his work in far better form than he presented himself in the original edition. The work is edited on the same lines as Dr. Coues' Lewis and Clark, and shows an equal wealth of illustration." Larned's Literature of American history.

POWELL, Lyman Pierson, ed.

Historic towns of the western states. 1901. (American historic towns.).....917.7 P87

SCHOOLCRAFT, Henry Rowe.

Summary narrative of an exploring expedition to the sources of the Mississippi river in 1820; resumed and completed by the discovery of its origin in Itasca lake in 1832. 1855.....917.7 S37
Author was appointed in 1820 geologist to Gen. Lewis Cass's exploring expedition to Lake Superior and the headwaters of the Mississippi.

SHEA, John Gilmary.

Discovery and exploration of the Mississippi valley, with the original narratives of Marquette, Allouez, Membre, Hennepin and Anastase Douay. 1853.....917.7 S53d "Contains a facsimile of the newly discovered map of Marquette. A painstaking study of the above named sources, with introductions and biographical sketches, written with a Roman Catholic bias. Valuable for the translated text, edited with careful notes. The Marquette Relation is also given in French. A fragmentary anticipation of Thwaites' Jesuit relations." Larned's Literature of American history.

SMITH, John Calvin.

Western tourist and emigrant's guide, with a gazetteer of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, and territories of Wisconsin and Iowa. 1839.....917.7 S65 Contains a map showing the lines of the United States surveys.

THOMAS, David.

Travels through the western country in the summer of 1816, including notices of the natural history, antiquities, topography, agriculture, commerce and manufactures. 1819.917.7 T37 Contains a map of "the Wabash country now (1819) settling."
"This journey was undertaken with a view to explore the Wabash Lands in the New Purchase. It is a work of sterling merit. The author (a Quaker) was a practical engineer, and on the whole, the work, although very unpretentious in style, is well worthy of attention. The route of the author was down the Ohio, stopping at all the towns and places of interest on both sides of the river." Thomson's Bibliography of Ohio.

THWAITES, Reuben Gold.

Afloat on the Ohio; an historical pilgrimage of a thousand miles in a skiff, from Redstone to Cairo. 1897.....917.7 T43
Also published with the title "On the storied Ohio."
Selected list of journals of previous travelers down the Ohio, p.320-328.
Having a keen eye for natural beauty, as well as an intimate knowledge of the history of the Ohio valley, Mr Thwaites gives a most interesting account of this pilgrimage in search of "local color" for work on western history.

WHITTLESEY, Charles.

Fugitive essays; a reprint from various periodicals of the day. 1852.....917.7 W66 Contents: Review of the "Historical transactions" of Ohio.—Justice to the memory of John Fitch.—Early discoveries in the Mississippi valley.—Rights of authors outside of copyrights.—Elevation of places in Ohio, with reference to the geological beds.—On the origin of bituminous coal.—Lord Dunmore's expedition to the Scioto towns in 1774.—Antiquities of America, Delafield's enquiry into their origin, Lokey's appendix.—On the natural terraces and ridges of the lake country.—The age of the material universe.—Settlement and progress of the city of Cleveland; Rise and fall of water in Lake Erie.—The coal and iron trade of the Ohio valley.—Boquet's expedition into the Muskingum country, Oct. 1764.—Two months in the copper region.—On the agricultural interest and condition of Ohio; Yield of wheat in Hamilton county, Ohio.—Relation of the Indian tribes to the whites in 1776.—Indian treaties and grants of title for the territory of Ohio.

The book contains a discouraging multitude of public documents, and is furnished with neither table of contents nor index. The documentary nature of the book would give it value as a work of reference if the student could find conveniently what it contains." C. K. Adams.

History of Illinois, 1818-1847, containing an account of the Black Hawk war, the rise and fall of Mormonism, the Alton and Lovejoy riots, and other events. 1854....r977.3 F76

"Ford was active in state affairs during the entire period, being Governor from 1842 to 1846. His history is based on his own experience and facts drawn from original sources. He was a man of moderate temper and moderate intellect, of strict integrity and positive opinions. Writing from the democratic point of view, he is not impartial or always just, against individuals he is frequently unduly severe. His style is uncouth, though at times forcible and direct." Larned's Literature of American history.

In 1874 the author, a brigadier-general in the U. S. army, published a letter in the "New York tribune" pronouncing a large proportion of the lands of the Northern Pacific railroad co. worthless, both for agriculture and as a security for money. This aroused much controversy in which General Custer took a leading part, making a long reply in the newspapers. INMAN, Henry.

The old Santa Fé trail; the story of a great highway.

1897.917.8 I24

A most interesting story of this old trail, which was once the great highway from the Missouri river to New Mexico. Col. Inman tells of the first Spaniards who followed the famous trail, of the traders and hunters who followed them, and of the Mexican war, but has most to say of the many exciting encounters with the Indians which accompanied every stage of its history, from its opening to the day when the railroad invaded the region.

INMAN, Henry, & Cody, W. F.

Great Salt lake trail. 1898.....917.8 I24g

Next to the Santa Fé trail, already described by this author, the Salt lake trail is perhaps the most famous of the historic roads across the plains. This was the route of the famous overland stage, and no less famous pony express, of the expeditions of Fremont, Stansbury, Lander and others, and by this trail the Mormons traveled. "Buffalo Bill," joint author of the book with Col. Inman, began his remarkable career as a boy on this trail.

IRVING, Washington.

Adventures of Capt. Bonneville in the Rocky mountains and the far West. 1868.....917.8 I28ad

"Entertaining narrative of early travel and adventure in the West, but, as might be expected in the digest of an unscientific observer by a literary editor, the geographical features of the region receive scanty attention." Larned's Literature of American history.

Astoria; or, Anecdotes of an enterprise beyond the Rocky mountains. 1893.....917.8 I28

"Irving was put in possession of a large number of original manuscripts relating to Astoria by J. J. Astor. In addition he drew largely from other writers on Oregon. The result is a book indispensable to the student of the early history of Oregon, written in the inimitable style of this master of language. Irving's powerful imagination, however, occasionally led him to embellish the facts;

he was also ignorant in respect to the geography of the West, and is not infrequently in error as to dates." Larned's Literature of American history.

Contents: General report.—Hydrography report.—Geological report, by J. S. Newberry.—Botany, by Professors Gray, Torrey, Thurber and Engelmann.—Zoology, by S. F. Baird.—Appendices.

"Important and interesting report on the lower course of the Colorado River and of its canyon as seen from the plateaus on the south, by a party led by a lieutenant of engineers, U. S. Army. The geologist of the expedition was Newberry, by whom a clear statement was made of the origin of the canyon and of the cliffs on the plateau uplands by ordinary erosion. The steepness of the canyon walls is much exaggerated in the illustrations." Larned's Literature of American history.

"Lewis and Clark's Expedition from the Mississippi river to the Pacific ocean was the first governmental exploration of the 'Great West.' The History of this undertaking is the personal narrative and official report of the first white man who crossed the continent between the British and Spanish possessions...The duration of the journey was from May, 1804, to September, 1806...This is our national epic of exploration, conceived by Thomas Jefferson, wrought out by Lewis and Clark and given to the world by Nicholas Biddle...It...has held its own for nearly a century as a standard work of reference." Preface.

"This edition...is in every respect commensurate with the literature of the subject and the importance of the expedition itself. It is...accompanied by a copious critical commentary, prepared after examination of unpublished official papers, and many other sources of information, including a diligent study of the original manuscript jour-

Two editions of the narrative of the expedition were issued in 1823, the original edition at Philadelphia by Carey and Lea and the second at London by Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme and Brown. The London edition is the one reprinted.

"After a detailed narrative of the expedition...there are several supplementary chapters on scientific subjects, including geology and geography: but the chief interest attaches to the descriptions of the Mississippi valley and western plains and their Indian occupants in early days." Larned's Literature of American history.

LUMMIS, Charles Fletcher.

Some strange corners of our country. 1892.....r917.8 L97s

Describes strange scenery and curious Indian customs of the southwestern United States.

"One of the classics of western narratives. The journey was undertaken in 1846 'with a view of studying the manners and character of Indians in their primitive state.'" Larned's Literature of American history.

POWELL, John Wesley.

Exploration of the Colorado river of the West and its tributaries, explored in 1869-1872 under the direction of the secretary of the Smithsonian institution. 1875....qr917.8 P87

Contents: History of the exploration of the cañons of the Colorado.—On the physical features of the valley of the Colorado.—Abstracts of results of a study of the genera geomys and thomomys, by Elliott Coues.—The cranial and dental characters of geomysidæ, by Elliott Coues.—Notes on the salamander of Florida, by G. B. Goode.

"This report renewed the interest, first awakened by Newberry's account...in the marvels of the Colorado canyon and the lofty plateaus through which it is eroded. The record of adventure during Powell's passage through the canyon in small boats is most thrilling. A more popular account of the expeditions is given by the same author in the Canyons of the Colorado." Larned's Literature of American history.

v.8-10 contain the general report upon the zoölogy of the regions through which the surveys extended.
- "Narrative reports of many officers on various routes, giving much information concerning the western country, but in large part superseded by more recent surveys. The publication of the reports being chiefly in the form of original journals, kept day by day, gives them a certain accuracy that might have been lost had the writers more frequently indulged in general descriptions; yet the want of summaries by the very men best qualified to make them renders it difficult for the reader to gather all the results that these numerous expeditions might have afforded. The illustrations seem to have been elaborated from imperfect drawings, and when compared with photographs, they are often found to give very erroneous impressions. There are many scientific reports upon the collections brought home. Unfortunately there is no general table of contents." *Lar-

The gilded man, and other pictures of the Spanish occupancy of America. 1893.....978.9 B22*Contents:* The gilded man.—Cibola.—The massacre of Cholula (1519).—

The age of the city of Santa Fé.—Jean l'Archêvêque.

"In this succinct work Bandelier covers much ground. He clears away the mystery for centuries enveloping El Dorado, the land of the Amazons, the seven cities of Cibola, and the province of Quivira—all the result of personal familiarity with a vast body of documentary evidence, extensive travel, and careful ethnologic and historical study. From kindred sources he sheds much light on the massacre of Cholula in 1519, settles the question of the approximate date of the founding of Santa Fé, New Mexico, and renders important information regarding the expedition and betrayal of La Salle, thus supplementing Parkman's studies in this direction. Unfortunately the author was absent from the country when the work was passing through press, and the editorial labor was placed in incompetent hands. The result is a series of typographical blunders, many of them serious." Larned's Literature of American history.

- Report of explorations across the great basin of the territory of Utah for a direct wagon-route from Camp Floyd to Genoa, in Carson valley, in 1859. 1876. (United States—Engineer department (army).).....qr917.92 S61
- "Stands side by side in point of importance with the published accounts of Sitgreaves, Frémont, Ives, Emory...and other military explorers in the then almost unknown far west. As a contribution to the knowledge of the geography, ethnology, history, and natural history of the region traversed it is important and for the greater part thoroughly reliable. Simpson's scientific collaborators were of high rank in their respective fields of work." Larned's Literature of American history.

STANSBURY, Howard.

- Expedition to the valley of the Great Salt lake of Utah; including a description of its geography, natural history and minerals, and an analysis of its waters, with an authentic account of the Mormon settlement, also a reconnoissance of a new route through the Rocky mountains. 2v. 1855.....r917.92 S79
- v.1. Text.
- v.2. Maps.
- Report submitted to the War department from the Bureau of topographic engineers, April 1852.
- "As an account of explorations from Fort Leavenworth to Great Salt Lake through a vast territory only vaguely known to the outside world, this report of a noteworthy military expedition is of value from many points of view. Stansbury was a careful observer and a thoroughly honest recorder of the physiographic features and the people of the country through which he passed or in which he sojourned. His liberal views of the Mormons, based on a year's intimate acquaintance and close study of them, but expressed at a time when only contrary opinions of the sect were elsewhere held, resulted in many unjust criticisms...The appendices to the report by various naturalists enhance its scientific value." Larned's Literature of American history.

California

979.4 History

BANCROFT, Hubert Howe.

- California inter pocula. 1888.....q979.4 B22ca
- Describes California from 1848 to 1856. Portrays the life and society in the mining camps and gives exciting tales of the gold discoveries.
- "All this, while not history after any classic models, is extremely interesting and valuable and forms the storehouse from which all future historians in these fields must draw their supplies." Dial, 1888.
- California pastoral, 1769-1848. 1888.....q979.4 B22c
- "We are brought face to face with these people—with their flocks and herds...their domestic life, their amusements, occupations, and industries, their laws, their systems of government and religion. A chapter on 'The Bibliography of Pastoral California' is a striking example of the vast resources at the command of Mr. Bancroft and his immense accumulation of original material." Dial, 1888.

History of California. 7v. 1884-90.....q979.4 B22

"Authorities quoted," v.1, p.25-88.

Covers the period 1542-1890. Made up largely from rare and inaccessible manuscript sources.

Popular tribunals. 2v. 1887.....q979.4 B22p

Deals with the period in the life of the Pacific states from 1849 to 1856. Author defends the right of a government to take the administration of justice into its own hands when the existing laws are not adequate. Much space is devoted to a description of the organization of the San Francisco committee of vigilance in 1851.

v.4. Early state administration.—Later state administration.

"Has done much and faithful work for many years upon his book, which probably represents the largest result yet obtained by any one man's unaided work in historical writing about California...Mr. Hittell's peculiar virtues, which show to better advantage in the later than the earlier volumes of his book...are those of a trained lawyer, unusually well versed in land-matters and in legislative proceedings." Nation, 1899.

ROYCE, Josiah.

California; a study of American character, 1846-[1856].

1891. (American commonwealths.).....979.4 R81

"Is only what it purports to be—a study of American character as shown in California during the ten years after the Conquest. Certainly, then, it cannot be reckoned with as a complete history. But it contains some word-pictures of men and scenes that should live long in California literature; it brings home to the meanest understanding such merciless analyses of motives, such brilliant generalizations, that the whole story is illuminated." Nation, 1897.

"Authorities," p.3-6.

"Utterly unreliable as a history of the Oregon question...In the effort to show how Whitman saved Oregon almost every phase of the history is thrown out of proportion and much of it is grotesquely distorted. Besides its large fictitious element and its perversion of facts, Mr. Barrows's book is bewildering in its repetitions and digressions." Larned's Literature of American history.

McLoughlin and old Oregon; a chronicle. 1900.....979.5 D98

The struggle between Great Britain and the United States for the possession of the vast and valuable territory of which Oregon forms a portion, and the part played by McLoughlin, of the Hudson bay company, are here set forth. The author also gives an account of the picturesque life in the mountains—the trappers, the Indians, the missionaries, etc.

Mr Washburn's term of office as minister-resident at Paraguay (1863-68) included the period of the war between Paraguay and Brazil, and he was implicated in the alleged conspiracy of foreign residents against President Lopez.

"Mr. Washburn's personal recollections are intensely interesting, as descriptive of a people, a struggle, and a despot without a parallel in history. He is embittered and revolted, and but too justly so, by what he has seen, learned, and suffered, and his whole book, though intended to present a continuous narrative of historical facts, intermixed with descriptions and anecdotes, resembles a Congressional report by a 'committee on outrages' much more than a history." Nation, 1871.

The Philippine islands and their people; a record of personal observation and experience, with a short summary of the more important facts in the history of the archipelago. 1898.919.14 W88

The same. 1899.....r919.14 W88

Author, assistant professor of zoölogy in the University of Michigan, spent nearly four years in the Philippines, visiting many of the islands of the archipelago. The expedition was of semi-official character, which gave exceptional opportunities for observation. His experiences, particularly among the savages of some of the islands are most interesting. Illustrated from photographs taken by members of the expedition. The historical facts are drawn chiefly from Foreman's "Philippine islands."

Contents: The Philippine islands.—Aguinaldo.—Singapore to Iloilo.—Manila of to-day.—The "first president of the republic," Aguinaldo.—The naval battle of Cavité, May 1, 1898.—The capture of Manila, Aug. 13, 1898.—Admiral Dewey and the military governor.—The American soldier.—A romance of the war.—Manila cigars.—The future of the Philippines.—Saigon.—A trip to Java.—A chapter of all sorts.

Java

HIGGINSON, Mrs Sarah Jane (Hatfield).

Java, the pearl of the East. 1897.....919.22 H53

Excellent account, for young people, of the country, resources and people, with a brief outline of its history. It is largely the result of personal observation, is compact and yet entertaining.

RAFFLES, Sir Thomas Stamford.

History of Java. 2v. 1817.....qr992.2 R14

Author was lieutenant-governor of Java from 1811 to 1815.

"A somewhat hasty work, diffuse and bulky, and inaccurate in its account of the history and religion of the Javanese, but full of interesting matter with regard to the actual condition and manners of the people." Dictionary of national biography.

SCIDMORE, Eliza Ruhamah.

Java, the garden of the East. 1897.....919.22 S41

"Miss Scidmore's work is primarily a book of travel and is well written. Not only is the style good and the observation keen, but there is plenty of useful information with judicious criticism." Nation, 1898.

CARNEGIE, David Wynford.

Spinifex and sand; a narrative of five years' pioneering and exploration in Western Australia. 1898.....919.41 C21

Gives an interesting account of the author's experiences, the most painful of which was the continual search for water in the desert. There is also some description of mining life. The book contains illustrations and useful route maps.

FROUDE, James Anthony.

Oceana; or, England and her colonies. 1887.....919.4 F97

Visits to Cape Colony, Australia and New Zealand, returning to England via Samoa, the Hawaiian islands, and the United States.

"It seldom happens that a man of genius and a master of English style records his experiences as a traveller. Mr. Froude has no surprising adventures or novel discoveries to relate; but his descriptions are pleasantly vivid, and his reflections are instructive even to those who may sometimes question his conclusions." Saturday review, 1886.

"From Sydney, in April 1890, the Stevensons sailed again in the trading steamer Janet Nicoll. Aboard the Janet Nicoll, Stevenson began the series of letters for Mr. McClure, which were eventually published in the New York Sun, and, in England, in Black and White, selections from them being presented in the Edinburgh Edition in In the South Seas. They exhibit the Scot abroad in a somewhat dreary aspect. They are picturesque and skilfully written, as all of Stevenson's work must be; yet the author seems wilfully to ignore all of Polynesian life which might not have been set forth by a missionary discoursing at a tea-party." Cornford's Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Work undertaken to order seldom prospered with him, and these 'Letters,' having cost him more labour than anything he ever wrote, have less of his characteristic charm, despite the interest and strangeness of the matters of which they tell." Sidney Colvin, in Dictionary of national biography.

WAWN, William T.

South sea islanders and the Queensland labour trade;

Author was secretary of the American board of foreign missions and in that capacity visited the mission stations in the Mediterranean, India and the Sandwich islands.

BATES, G. W. (pseud. A. Haöle).

Sandwich island notes. 1854.....r919.69 B31

In his preface, written in 1854, the author says, "If the present condition of affairs at the Hawaiian Islands augur anything there can not but be a good prospect that they will soon form an integral portion of the United States...I have endeavored to portray the condition of things as they appeared to me in 1853, and my only aim has been impartiality, independent of all party considerations. I have taken especial pains to develop the past and present condition of the people, in their various relations, and have endeavored to specify a few reasons for the 'annexation' of that important group of islands."

With Peary near the pole. [1898.].....919.8 A85
Astrup accompanied Peary on his expedition in the Kite in 1891-92 and on his second expedition in the Falcon.
"Readers desirous of obtaining information on the scientific results of Mr. Peary's persistent work in Northern Greenland will hardly meet with it in this volume; but they will find instead a most ably written narrative of life in this remote quarter of the globe, and more especially a fascinating account of the 243 Eskimo who occupy the eastern shore of Smith Sound." Athenæum, 1898.

First crossing of Spitsbergen. 1897.....919.8 C76
"While the coasts and outlying islands of Spitzbergen have been pretty frequently visited and partially explored, its interior was, up to the date of Sir William's expedition last summer, practically unknown
...While Sir William's adventures in the frozen north were not, comparatively speaking, of a specially thrilling or novel order, this story of them is pleasantly told and affords a clear impression of a considerable tract in the hitherto unknown interior of Spitzbergen."
Dial, 1897.

With ski & sledge over Arctic glaciers. 1898.....919.8 C76w

"During 1897 Sir Martin Conway, accompanied by Mr. E. J. Garwood, continued the exploration of the interior of Spitsbergen, the first season of which was described in his former book, "The first crossing of Spitsbergen." The search for the supposed 'inland ice' was continued in the more northern portion of Spitsbergen, which was also proved to bear merely glacial and mountain areas. The only large part of the archipelago which was found to carry an undifferentiated ice-sheet includes New Friesland and North-East Land. The discovery of this fact is the principal geographical result of the campaign of 1897." Evening post (New York).

DE LONG, George Washington.

Voyage of the Jeannette; the ship and ice journals; ed. by his wife, Emma De Long. 1893.....919.8 D4t

De Long commanded the polar expedition subsidized by James Gordon Bennett, which set out from San Francisco in 1879. The Jeannette was crushed in the ice north of Siberia and the party after traversing the ice on sledges set out for the land in boats, reaching the Lena river. De Long and most of those in his boat died of starvation.

International polar expedition; report on the proceedings of the United States expedition to Lady Franklin bay,

Grinnell Land. 2v. 1888.....qr919.8 G82i

Author commanded the government expedition sent out in 1881. All but seven of the party perished from cold and starvation on the homeward journey, the survivors being rescued at Cape Sabine in June 1884 by a relief expedition under the command of Winfield Scott Schley.

Three years of Arctic service; an account of the Lady

Franklin bay expedition of 1881-84. 2v. 1886.....919.8 G82

"The style of the narrative is excellent, easy and unpretentious...The discussion of the causes which led to the misfortunes of the party is brief, and, in all essentials, is in harmony with the views...generally entertained by Arctic experts who have a knowledge of the facts." Nation, 1886.

JACKSON, Frederick George.

A thousand days in the Arctic. 1899.919.8 J12

Mr Jackson sailed from the Thames in July 1894, in command of an expedition which he successfully conducted for three consecutive years. His object was to make a thorough scientific investigation of the newly discovered Franz-Joseph-Land. The account of his work, carried on under the most difficult conditions amid the perils of three Arctic winters, forms a fascinating narrative of cheerful courage and perseverance. One of the most interesting episodes is the meeting of Jackson and Nansen on the ice-fields of Franz-Joseph-Land. The book is illustrated with original photographs and has an appendix summarizing the scientific results of the expedition.

JOHANSEN, Frederik Hjalmar.

With Nansen in the North; a record of the Fram expedition in 1893-96; tr. fr. the Norwegian by H. L. Brækstad. 1899.919.8 J35

"Johansen was the only companion of Nansen in the attempt to reach the North Pole after leaving the 'Fram,' and his is the only corroborative evidence to the narrative which Nansen gave the world in his great book...He does not possess Dr. Nansen's really great powers of narrative...He is just a simple wayfarer, recording the events from day to day, dwelling very much on trivialities, but always readable and interesting." Saturday review, 1899.

KANE, Elisha Kent.

Arctic explorations; the second Grinnell expedition in search of Sir John Franklin, 1853-55. 1868.919.8 K12a

The same. 2v. 1856.r919.8 K12

"This second voyage of Kane's greatly enlarged the world's knowledge of the Etah Esquimaux, and added to geography the most northern lands of that day, while the scientific observations were more accurate and valuable than those of any preceding polar expedition." Appletons' cyclopædia of American biography.

lin; a personal narrative. 1854.919.8 K12

KEELY, Robert Neff, & Davis, G. G.

In Arctic seas; the voyage of the "Kite" with the Peary expedition. 1892.919.8 K15

"Divided into two parts, of which the first comprises the narrative of the expedition sent in 1891 to convey Lieut. Peary and his party to the Northwestern Coast of Greenland, while the second contains an account of the second voyage of the same vessel in 1892, when she was sent to bring the party home again." Nation, 1892.

LACHAMBRE, Henri, & Machuron, Alexis.

Andrée's balloon expedition in search of the North pole.
1898.919.8 L12

Written by Andrée's assistants in the preparation, equipment and departure of the balloon. It describes the construction of the balloon, the vain attempt made in 1896 to start for the pole, and the successful departure in 1897. This is preceded by a biographical sketch of Andrée. The book is fully illustrated.

Author commanded the expedition which left England in the "Fox" in 1857.

MacCORMICK, Robert.

Voyages of discovery in the Arctic and Antarctic seas and round the world. 2v. 1884.....qr919.8 M14

In 1827 the author accompanied Parry in his attempt to reach the North pole and in 1839 was appointed surgeon and naturalist on the expedition of Sir James Ross to the Antarctic seas. In 1852 he conducted a search for Sir John Franklin.

MELVILLE, George Wallace.

In the Lena delta; a narrative of the search for De Long and his companions, followed by an account of the Greely relief expedition and a proposed method of reaching the North pole. 1892.....919.8 M59

NANSEN, Fridtjof.

Farthest north; the record of a voyage of exploration of the Fram, 1893-1896 and of a 15 months' sleigh journey by Nansen and Johansen, with an appendix by Otto Sverdrup. 2v. 1897.919.8 N12

Went north from Norway, skirting the north coasts of Europe and Asia, put into the polar pack ice near the New Siberia islands and finally reached the latitude 86° 4' over the ice.

"A hasty transcript from the author's journals...but...a faithful, modest, frank and straightforward history of one of the most remarkable arctic explorations ever made." Nation, 1897.

Illustrations and maps.

Wilkes, 1840, and of the locations and objects of the U. S. signal service Arctic observers. 1884.....919.8 N47

Narrative of the second Arctic expedition made by C. F. Hall; his voyage to Repulse bay, sledge journeys to the straits of Fury and Hecla, and to King William's Land and residence among the Eskimos during 1864-65. 1879.qr919.8 N47

PEARSON, Henry J.

"Beyond Petsora eastward;" two summer voyages to Novaya Zemlya and the islands of Barents sea, with appendices on the botany and geology by H. W.

Feilden. 1899.....919.8 P351

"It may be complained that the whole thing is far too 'birdy,' and without doubt birds and their doings occupy the largest portion; but the study of bird-life was the first reason and object of the voyages." Preface. Many excellent photographic illustrations.

PEARY, Mrs Josephine (Diebitsch).

My Arctic journal; a year among ice-fields and Eskimos, with an account of the great white journey across

Greenland, by R. E. Peary. 1897.919.8 P353

"Interesting book of Mrs. Peary's life in [Greenland]...Some of her information is curious, and all that she gives is interesting...Illustrated from...photographs taken by the Pearys." Dial, 1894.

PEARY, Robert Edwin.

Northward over the "great ice;" a narrative of life and work along the shores and upon the interior ice-cap of northern Greenland in 1886 and 1891-1897. 2v. 1898..919.8 P35

"This book may fitly stand beside Nansen's record of the voyage of the 'Fram.' The efforts it describes are no less daring and no less original, and if the results obtained are neither so important nor so striking, the human interest is greater...The whole story is told with manly simplicity and self-restraint." Saturday review, 1898.

Numerous illustrations, statistical tables, etc.

RICHARDSON, Sir John, 1787-1865.

Arctic searching expedition; a journal of a boat-voyage through Rupert's Land and the Arctic sea in search of Sir John Franklin, with an appendix on the physical geography of North America. 1852.....919.8 R41

"Owing to his excellent arrangements for food and conveyance during Franklin's second expedition and this search expedition, not only was there no loss of life, but there was not even any privation such as temporarily to endanger the health of the men. His 'Journal'...was a 'model of the journal of a scientific traveller...abounding in varied information in relation to the geology of the country passed through, its natural productions, and inhabitants.'" Dictionary of national biography.

ROSS, Sir John.

Narrative of a second voyage in search of a north-west passage, and of a residence in the Arctic regions during 1829-1833, including the reports of Capt. J. C. Ross and the discovery of the northern magnetic pole. 2v.

1835.qr919.8 R73

Sir John Ross (1777-1856) was an English rear-admiral and Arctic explorer.

"The results of the voyage, remarkable for the length of time spent in the ice, were the survey of the peninsula since known as Boothia, of a great part of King William Land, of the Gulf of Boothia, and the presumptive determination that the sought-for passage did not lie in that direction; and also the discovery of the magnetic pole by Ross's nephew, Lieutenant James Clark Ross, while carrying out a series of extensive sledge journeys." Dictionary of national biography.

Antarctic regions

BORCHGREVINK, Carsten Ezeberg.

First on the Antarctic continent; an account of the British Antarctic expedition, 1898-1900. 1901.....919.9 B63

"Sir George Newnes's expedition went and returned; and here, from the pen of its Commander, is an account of its faring...Of the results of their work, the location of the magnetic pole is of extreme importance...Also, to the mind of the Commander was proved 'the existence of bi-polarity.'" Academy, 1901.

BULL, H. J.

Cruise of the Antarctic to the South polar regions. 1896..919.9 B87

Primary object of the expedition was to prove whether the right whale or the sperm whale could be successfully hunted off south Victoria Land. Secondly, the author wished to effect a landing on the South polar continent. This he accomplished, although the expedition was commercially a failure. It is a readable tale of adventure. Adapted from Dial, 1896.

COOK, Frederick Albert.

Through the first Antarctic night, 1898-1899; a narrative of the voyage of the "Belgica" among newly discovered lands and over an unknown sea about the South pole. 1900.....919.9 C77

"The Belgian Antarctic expedition had its origin in the interest and energy of Lieut. Adrien de Gerlache...The party under the command of De Gerlache was composed of Belgians, Norwegians, Russians, a Rumanian, and an American, Dr. Cook, the surgeon, anthropologist, and author of this volume, who had had some Arctic experience with Peary...The meteorological, magnetic, and hydrographic results of the expedition will prove of extreme importance in connection with the physics of the globe and the preparations for future exploration...To the Antarctic experiences Dr. Cook adds some interesting references to the aborigines of the Fuegian region, and a multitude of excellent illustrations, chiefly from photographs." Nation, 1900.

"This writer, one of the most celebrated of antiquity, lived in the first century of our era. The work that has immortalized his name, and made him a favorite with wise men and promising youth, is the lives of forty-six Greeks and Romans. These lives he wrote in pairs, portraying one Greek and one Roman, and then drawing a comparison between them...Among the most delightful sketches ever written. As an ultimate and conclusive authority they cannot be accepted. But they are able to inspire, to charm, and to instruct. They take the reader into the heroic stir of Roman and Grecian life." C. K. Adams.

"For thirty-five years Major... Pond has been the foremost lecture manager in this country. During that time he has managed practically all the famous men and women who have spoken from American platforms. Most of these have been his warm personal friends, and have written to him familiarly and charmingly. He has gathered many of their letters together... and we are given glimpses of their idiosyncracies, their foibles, and their virtues, in a series of personal observations and reminiscences." Dial, 1901.

Biographical sketches of loyalists of the American revolution, with an historical essay. 2v. 1864.....920 S11

"The sketches are very short and very numerous, but here and there glimpses are given showing that even the Revolutionary fathers were not all worthy of canonization. The work is introduced by an essay... on the nature of the legislation which brought on the war. The ground is taken that the causes for grievance were not so much the forms of objectionable taxation as the repeated interference with the natural industries of the country." C. K. Adams.

"There are not many families which have produced in three generations three men so distinguished as Sir Henry, Sir Philip, and Algernon Sidney...Mr. Sidney had plenty of material at his hand for a valuable and interesting book. Unfortunately he has not done justice to his material; his Memoirs are compiled without skill, and written without enthusiasm; and though in the main we accept his conclusions...we feel regret for the waste of an excellent opportunity." Spectator, 1899.

SIMPSON, Mrs Mary Charlotte Mair (Senior).

Many memories of many people. 1898.....920 S61

"Full of interest to the lover of gossip and anecdote...To have been tossed as a child in the arms of Archbishop Whately, to have been a pet of Sydney Smith, to have grown up in the brilliant circle which gathered round the great Lord Lansdowne, to have been the friend of De Tocqueville, Ampère, the Grotes, and the Thackerays, to have known Cavour, Guizot, Rogers, Moore, Jenny Lind, Carlyle, and a long list of illustrious men and women...this is a lot given to few indeed. There is a delightful old-world touch about much of the book." Academy, 1898.

SMALLEY, George Washburn.

London letters and some others. 2v. 1891.....920 S631

Author was London correspondent of the "New York tribune."

"Nearly the whole of the first volume [is filled] with notices of eminent personages whom he has met—commencing...with Prince Bismarck and Count Herbert Bismarck, the German Emperor, Léon Gambetta, Louis Blanc, Lord Beaconsfield, and others of similarly varied distinction—and ending with Browning, Lord Lytton, Renan, Gustave Doré, Carlo Pellegrini the caricaturist, and Mr. Watts the painter...About a hundred pages are devoted to two of Mr. Gladstone's 'Midlothian Campaigns,' and to a discussion of his politics. 'Notes on Social Life,' including an elaborate description of the ways of London society...sketches of 'English Talk and Talkers,' and 'The American Girl in England,' are followed by 'Notes on Parliament,' and descriptions of various 'Pageants' (a 'Royal Review,' the Queen's Jubilee, the opening of the 'People's Palace,' etc.) which the author has witnessed; and the whole concludes with miscellaneous sketches, all more or less entertaining." Critic, 1890.

"Might have been called 'A Group of Perfect Worldlings.' It consists of an Introduction and studies of nine men...who devoted themselves, 'with that perfect consistency which marks only the greatest men,' to the unique cultivation of themselves...We need hardly say that, coming from Mr. Whibley, the analysis of the lives of those splendid worldlings is unmoral. They are his choice. In his ironical, detached way he sympathizes with them, but that is his affair. We are only concerned to say that he has done his work with art, with humour, and with a cheerful spirit." Academy, 1900.

Biography of the signers of the Declaration of independence, and of Washington and Patrick Henry. 1839.....r923 J49
- LONGUEVILLE, Thomas.
Falklands. 1897.....923 L84
Throws a strong side-light on the period of the Romanist revival in England under James I and Charles I. The first Viscount Falkland was lord deputy in Ireland and played a part by no means insignificant in the history of his time. His son, an ardent royalist, was a scholar, philosopher and poet. The charm and value of the book lie in its treatment of what might be considered unimportant details. While not a great contribution to historical literature, the volume brings together, in convenient and attractive form, much that has hitherto been scattered and more or less inaccessible.
- ROTHSCHILD, Ferdinand James, baron de.
Personal characteristics from French history. 1896.....923 R76
Contents: The middle ages.—The 16th century.—Henri IV.—Louis XIII and Richelieu.—Mazarin.—The reign of Louis XIV.—The reign of Louis XV.—Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette.—The revolution.
"Anecdotes and personal incidents...arranged for the most part chronologically, but without regard to historical proportion or perspective. The chief fault of the book...lies in the incorrect estimates of men and deeds given by anecdotes chosen with reference to their dramatic interest." Nation, 1896.

- WIEL, Mrs Alethea Jane (Lawley).
 Romance of the house of Savoy, 1003-1519. 2v. 1898....923.I W68
 The history of the present royal family of Italy is full of romantic incidents, and the author has dealt chiefly with these, enlarging on those personages who, by the picturesqueness of their lives, appeal most to the imagination. She tells many interesting anecdotes and altogether much more of the personal experiences than of the political lives of her characters. There is an introductory chapter giving a concise history of the family from the earliest times to the present day. Illustrated with portraits, views of historic buildings, etc.

 "Author writes from the point of view of the political historian, as well as of the general observer and man of letters. Washington, Adams, Jefferson and Madison could have been but shadowy personalities. With the later presidents he was, however, more familiar. His opportunities brought him in contact with many of our noted men, and he was present on occasions of national importance which he is able to describe with the enthusiasm of an eye-witness." Current literature.

CAMPBELL, John, baron.

Lives of the lord chancellors and keepers of the great seal of England, from the earliest times till the reign of

Queen Victoria. 10v. 1875-78.....r923.2 C15

"The defects of the work are nearly allied to its merits. They are to be found chiefly in the strong partialities and animosities of the author; and, while these characteristics impart spirit to his pages, they detract very considerably from their real value. Lord Campbell was an energetic hater, and he never hesitated to give expression to his animosities. The value of his writings, therefore, is in the general impressions and the entertainment they afford, rather than in the correctness of the information they give." C. K. Adams.

DODGE, Theodore Ayrault.

Great captains; lectures showing the influence on the art of war of Alexander, Hannibal, Cæsar, Gustavus Adolphus, Frederick and Napoleon. 1892.....923.5 D67

"Of course, the limits of a single lecture make the treatment of the career of each of the six 'great captains' a mere sketch; but the sketch is given with a freedom of drawing and an eye to perspective which produce a pleasing and vivid picture. The...purpose... has been to show that great warriors have been great in proportion as they have possessed that high form of practical intellect which has enabled them to make a science of their work." Nation.

Wellington's men; some soldier autobiographies. 1900...923.5 F55

Contents: Kincaid's "Adventures in the rifle brigade."—"Rifleman Harris."—Anton's "Military life."—Mercer's "Waterloo."

"History of Wellington's most famous campaigns as told...by the actual fighters...The four autobiographies selected may be familiar to the military student, but are practically inaccessible to the general reader, being old and rare...These narratives present...inside views, and a glimpse of the spirit and feelings of the army not then available through the medium of the press...It must, however, be remembered that the regimental officer or man...can only describe what took place on a very limited area, and that discrepancies between the accounts of two brother officers, standing within a few yards of each other, concerning even regimental operations, are not uncommon." Athenæum, 1901.

Les artistes français à l'étranger. 1876.....q927 D95

Aim of the author is to bring to light the names and the works of French artists, since the 13th century, who have painted in foreign countries. Artists are grouped under the different countries, and the names of the persons for whom they painted, or the places where their works are exhibited, are given. Preceded by a short history of French art.

v.6 is a commentary by J. P. Richter.

"These biographies...are the groundwork of our knowledge of the great Italian artists of the XV. and XVI. centuries...[The book] is extremely interesting, full of anecdote and picturesque narrative, and gives brilliant pictures of life in Italy during the epoch. The author's statements of fact have often been found erroneous, and are frequently corrected in the notes of this translation." Russell Sturgis.

Reprinted from the "Chicago daily news."

Sketches of most of the well-known actors, actresses and opera singers of the day, full of anecdote and gossip. The following quotation is a fair sample of the author's style: "Her voice was soft as chartreuse and had a glisten in it like the shine upon pearls... Youth hung all about her as an infant clings to its mother's skirts. It flecked her strange eyes with depths aglow in brown topaz... She is as yearless as the stars." Many photographic illustrations and facsimile letters.

Maclise portrait gallery of illustrious literary characters, with mémoires. 1898.....928 B31

This admirable series of 81 portraits and groups, mostly full length sketches, originally published in "Fraser's magazine," preserves the familiar aspect of many men still famous, and of others who played a great part 60 years ago, though they are now comparatively forgotten. Of these drawings Dante Gabriel Rossetti says: "I suppose no such series of the portraits of celebrated persons of any epoch, produced by an eye and hand of so much insight and power, and realized with such a view to the actual impression of the sitter exists anywhere, and the period illustrated possessed abundant claims to a worthy personal record. Pre-eminent here, among literary celebrities, are Goethe, Walter Scott, Coleridge, Wordsworth, Charles Lamb and Thomas Carlyle. Each produces the impression of absolute trustworthiness as in a photograph."

 Letters of Abelard & Héloïse, with a particular account of their lives and misfortunes by John Hughes. 1806.....92 A116
 First English translation. Contains besides the five letters of Abailard and Héloïse, one from Abailard to Philintus, a friend, also poems by Pope and Mrs Madan.
 Lettres; tr. par E. Oddoul, précédées d'un essai historique par M. et Mme Guizot. 1839.....qr92 A116
 Illustrated by J. Gigoux.
 Love letters of Abelard and Héloïse. 1901. (Temple classics.)92 A116l
 The love story of the illustrious Abailard and Héloïse is told in these six letters, which were written in Latin about the year 1128, 10 years after the lovers had separated, Abailard to become a monk and Héloïse a nun. Though both were famous in their day, Abailard as a philosopher and logician, Héloïse for her learning, it is by these incomparable letters alone that they live to-day.

ABAILARD, Pierre.

- McCabe, Joseph. Peter Abélard. 1901.....92 A116m
 "It is less with the tragic romance with which Abelard's name is principally associated than with the career of the philosopher, the theologian, and the ascetic that Mr. McCabe is concerned." Academy, 1901.

- Gordon, Sir Arthur Hamilton. Earl of Aberdeen. 1893.
 (Prime ministers of Queen Victoria.)92 A143g
 British statesman of the early 19th century. In 1814, he signed the Treaty of Paris as one of the representatives of Great Britain and was premier in 1852-55, his ministry being formed by a coalition of Whigs and Peelites.
 "There was little in his public career to dazzle the spectator, or to command instant or excessive admiration; and neither his mental powers nor rare personal charm can now be fairly appreciated, except by those who, like the author of this book, lived in close personal intercourse with him, and have had access to the mass of his correspondence, public and private." Dial, 1893.

ABERNETHY, John.

Macilwain, George. Memoirs of John Abernethy, with a view of his lectures, writings and character. 1853. . . . 92 A146m Abernethy (1764-1831) had in his lifetime the highest reputation as a surgeon, anatomist and physiologist, and exercised great influence on his profession.

ABINGTON, Mrs Frances (Barton).

Life of Mrs Abington, celebrated comic actress, with full accounts of her various performances in the theatres of London and Dublin, also notes upon the history of the Irish stage and notices, anecdotes and criticisms of her theatrical contemporaries, by the editor of the "Life of Quin." 1888. 92 A149
 Mrs Abington (1737-1815) was the daughter of a private soldier in the Guards. From the position of a flower-girl she rose to eminence on the stage and enjoyed a successful career of 43 years. She was the original representative of 30 characters, the most famous being her crowning triumph, Lady Teazle.

ADAMS, Mrs Abigail (Smith).

Letters. 2v. 1840. 92 A2112
 Memoir, by C. F. Adams, v.1, p.13-84.
 These letters of Abigail Adams, wife of John Adams, second president of the United States, give a valuable picture of the times, and glimpses of many stirring events. The collection contains letters to her husband during the Revolution and letters to her family, when she was with Mr Adams in Paris, London, Philadelphia and Washington.

Adams, Charles Francis, b. 1835. Charles Francis Adams.
 1900. (American statesmen.) 92 A211a
The same. 1900. (American statesmen.) 92 A211a
 Mr Adams's public life covered a period of only 13 years and was almost entirely connected with events of the Civil war. In this biography by his son we have clearly defined the character and value of his services as minister to England and member of the Geneva tribunal.

ADAMS, John, 1735-1826, & Cunningham, William, of Fitchburg, Mass.

Correspondence, beginning in 1803 and ending in 1812.
 1823. 92 A214
 Written by the ex-president to a relative, shortly after being defeated for re-election. They were under the seal of the strictest confidence and dealt with the chief actors and events in the latter part of his public life. They were vehement, abusive and unjust. Mr C. F. Adams says that an heir of Cunningham gave them to the opponents of John Quincy Adams to be used against him when he was a candidate for the presidency. It was a great mistake upon Adams's part that he wrote them, and a grave misfortune that they were published, even though dishonorably and many years afterward.

ADAMS, John, 1735-1826.

 begun by John Q. Adams. 2v. in 1. 1871. 92 A214a
 John Adams, second president of the United States, was one of the leaders of the patriot party in Massachusetts before the Revolution, signer of the Declaration of independence and prominent in political life till 1801. This biography is a republication of the one first published only in connection with his collected works in 1856, and therefore comparatively inaccessible.

Morse, John Torrey. John Adams. 1893. (American statesmen.) 92 A214m

The same. 1899. (American statesmen.).....r92 A214m

"We have John Adams the man and patriot, in all his rugged honesty, full of courage in great emergencies when others fell away, pugnacious, wise, when his judgment was not clouded by passion, a statesman without tact, vain and conceited, yet always a patriot, possessing the traits found in most of the world's great heroes, yet not reaching the stature of a hero. It is a truthful portrait." Dial, 1885.

ADAMS, John, 1772-1863.

Brown, Mrs Mary Elizabeth (Adams), & Mrs Helen Gilman (Noyes). Story of John Adams, a New England schoolmaster. 1900.....92 A2143b

ADAMS, John Quincy.

Memoirs; comprising portions of his diary from 1795 to 1848; ed. by C. F. Adams. 12v. 1874-77.....r92 A2142

"Volumes of surpassing interest on the personal and political life of one of the noblest and most accomplished of our public men. The most striking and interesting peculiarity of the diary is the fulness of the author's reflections and comments on the men and on the events among which he lived." C. K. Adams.

Morse, John Torrey. John Quincy Adams. 1895. (American statesmen.).....92 A2142m

The same. 1899. (American statesmen.).....r92 A2142m

"That Mr. Morse's conclusions will be those of posterity, we have very little doubt, and he has set an admirable example to his coadjutors in respect of interesting narrative, just proportion and judicial candor. If entire patriotism, incorruptibility, political fairness, prescience, initiative and high physical and moral courage are the marks of statesmanship it would be difficult to point to any of his contemporaries or successors who possessed them in an equal degree with Mr. Adams." Nation, 1882.

Quincy, Josiah, 1772-1864. Memoir of the life of John

Quincy Adams. 1859.....92 A2142q

"The light attempted to be thrown on his course has been derived from personal acquaintance, from his public works, and from authentic unpublished materials. The chief endeavor has been to render him the expositor of his own motives, principles, and character, without fear or favor,—in the spirit neither of criticism or eulogy." Prefatory note.

ADAMS, Samuel.

Hosmer, James Kendall. Samuel Adams. 1893. (American statesmen.).....92 A217h

The same. 1899. (American statesmen.).....r92 A217hi

A study of the New England town meeting with Adams in the foreground.

"He was possessed with the instinct of agitation: led the people, not the leaders; cared not for place, but only for power; showed a mastery of means, a self containment, a capacity for timely and telling speech, that marked him a statesman, though he loved the rough ways of a people's government, and preferred the fierce democracy of the town meeting to the sober dignity of senates." Woodrow Wilson's George Washington.

"Interesting and appreciative Life of Adams—one which fairly sets forth the man, his work, and his times." Nation, 1885.

Wells, William Vincent. Life and public services of Samuel Adams, with extracts from his correspondence, state papers and political essays. 3v. 1865.....r92 A217w

"One of the most valuable contributions to our knowledge of the Revolutionary period. It was not written so much for the purpose of constructing a fascinating narrative as to give a sober account of the great events in which Samuel Adams took so conspicuous a part. The early years of his life are therefore rapidly passed over, and the principal part of the work is devoted to his Revolutionary services." C. K. Adams.

ADDISON, Joseph.

Courthope, William John. Addison. [1884.] (English men of letters.).....92 A225c

"It is praise enough to say of a writer, that in a high department of literature, in which many eminent writers have distinguished themselves he has had no equal; and this may, with strict justice, be said of Addison...He is entitled to be considered not only as the greatest of the English essayists, but as the forerunner of the great English novelists...His best essays approach near to absolute perfection; nor is their excellence more wonderful than their variety." Macaulay's Essay on Addison.

AGASSIZ, Louis.

Agassiz, Mrs Elizabeth (Cary). Louis Agassiz; his life and correspondence. 1893.....92 A262a

This biography by his wife gives pictures of Agassiz's early life in Switzerland, tells of his friendships with Cuvier, Humboldt and other distinguished scientists, of his scientific work, particularly in geology and ichthyology, of his work at Harvard including the founding of the Agassiz museum. The enthusiasm which he always kindled in others and his rare personal charm are felt throughout the book.

AIRY, Sir George Biddell.

Autobiography; ed. by Wilfrid Airy. 1896.....92 A298

List of printed papers and books by Sir G. B. Airy, p.369-404.

Airy (1801-92) was astronomer royal for 46 years, and this autobiography deals less with his private life than with his scientific work, which was varied and extensive.

AKBAR, emperor of India.

Malleson, George Bruce. Akbar and the rise of the Mughal empire. 1896. (Rulers of India.).....92 A313m

Akbar, the real founder of the Mughal, or Mogul, empire in India, was a contemporary of Queen Elizabeth of England. He was specially famed as a civil administrator, striving to reconcile the various races under his rule and bringing about many reforms. He seems to have been in some ways distinctly modern, particularly in regard to religious toleration.

ALBANY, Louise Marie Caroline von Stolberg-Gedern, countess of.

Paget, Violet, (pseud. Vernon Lee). Countess of Albany.

1897. (Famous women.).....92 A326p

"List of authorities consulted," in the preface.

"The great figure of her book is...Alfieri...By this figure, so strange yet so grand even in its contradictions, stands another more perfect as a contrast, a foil to it, than any novelist could have imagined. If there be in history one man more than another for whom friends should mourn that the privilege of an early death was denied to him, that man is the Young Pretender, Charles Edward. Vernon Lee...does not spare the adjectives to describe him in the days when he had 'let himself become a disgrace to the very memory of the men who had died for him.' Such he was when married by French intrigues to Louise of Stolberg... We have named her the last of the three because her place in the book is least, though as Countess of Albany she gives her name to it." Nation, 1884.

ALBERT, prince consort of England.

Grey, Charles, 1804-70. Early years of the prince consort; comp. under the direction of the queen. 1867.....92 A333g

Author was for some years Prince Albert's private secretary.

This memoir extends to 1840 only.

Binder's title reads "Queen Victoria's memoirs of the prince consort; his early years."

Martin, Sir Theodore. Life of the prince consort. 1882..92 A333m

Written at the request of Queen Victoria.

"Throughout the work courtly reticence has been reconciled with independent judgment, and sincere appreciation has never expressed itself in the language of flattery." Saturday review, 1880.

Alcott; her life, letters and journals. 1892.....92 A355c

The same. 1902.....92 A355c

Daughter of A. Bronson Alcott and author of "Little women" and other popular books for young people.

"It is an unstudied, almost fragmentary memoir which Mrs. Cheney has edited with wise reserve and good taste." Atlantic monthly, 1890.

ALCUIN.

West, Andrew Fleming. Alcuin and the rise of the Christian schools. 1892. (Great educators.).....92 A356w

"Books on Alcuin," p.197-198.

Alcuin was educated at York, and settled on the continent in 782, on the invitation and under the protection of Charlemagne. He was master of the school of the palace and served as general superintendent of Charlemagne's schemes of ecclesiastical and educational reform.

"Combines careful scholarly investigation with popularity." George Trumbull Ladd.

ALEXANDER I, czar of Russia.

Choiseul-Gouffier, comtesse de. Historical memoirs of Alexander I and the court of Russia; tr. fr. the original

French by M. B. Patterson. 1900.....92 A3743c

"Translation...of the book...produced in 1828, three years after the Czar's death...The comtesse...had the advantage of knowing the Czar well, but her writing is frothy and vain where her own contact with the Russian court is to be described, and her moralizing is of the most vapid kind." Nation, 1900.

ALEXANDER II, czar of Russia.

[Joyneville, C.] Life of Alexander II, emperor of all the Russias. 1883.....92 A3741j

Author lived for a long time in Russia and on the personal history of the czar he is well informed and his account is interesting. His narrative of the political history of the reign is written from the strongly Russian standpoint.

ALEXANDER III, czar of Russia.

Lowe, Charles. Alexander III of Russia. 1895.....92 A3742l

Clear, interesting and fairly impartial memoir, though it is written rather from the British standpoint, and the author's sympathies are plainly not with Russia. The first chapter contains an excellent summary of the history of Alexander's ancestors from Catharine II, and there are interesting accounts of certain great ceremonies which the author witnessed.

ALEXANDER THE GREAT.

Abbott, Jacob. History of Alexander the Great. 1876....92 A374a

This history of the famous Macedonian king and conqueror was written 50 years ago and in its style is quite different from the present approved manner of writing biography for the young, but, in common with the other biographies and histories by the same author, it was exceedingly popular in its day, and is still much read.

Dodge, Theodore Ayrault. Alexander; a history of the origin and growth of the art of war, to the battle of Ipsus, B. C. 301, with a detailed account of the campaigns of the great Macedonian. 1890. (Great captains.).....92 A374d

The best ancient and modern authorities have been consulted to make up a complete history of Alexander's wars, and the author has taken great pains to explain and describe the equipments and tactics of the Greeks and Persians. Illustrated with many charts, maps, topographical sketches and woodcuts of armor.

Hogarth, David George. Philip and Alexander of Macedonia; two essays in biography. 1897.....92 P4951h

"Author speaks to the cultivated public rather than to the scholar...He mentions only the telling facts, pursues only the main line of events; and, thus avoiding detail, gives us a remarkably perspicuous narrative of the rise of Philip's kingdom and Alexander's empire." Nation, 1897.

Wheeler, Benjamin Ide. Alexander the Great; the merging of East and West in universal history. 1900. (Heroes of the nations.).....92 A374w

"A history of the period as well as of the man...Tells the story of Alexander's aims and achievements with considerable detail and admirable clearness." Nation, 1900.

ALFIERI, Vittorio, conte.

Autobiography, with an essay by W. D. Howells. 1877. (Autobiographic series.).....92 A387

Famous Italian tragic poet and dramatist of the 18th century.

"Work of intense interest, and perhaps the most thoroughly sincere among celebrated books of its order of literature. It depicts a man continually under the influence of pride and discontent, but whom pride and discontent stimulate to lofty endeavour and noble actions... This psychological interest is relieved and enhanced by the details of his numerous adventures, his extensive travels, and his love affairs, three of which were memorable." Garnett's Italian literature.

Abbott, Jacob. History of King Alfred. 1877.....92 A392a

Besant, Sir Walter. Story of King Alfred. 1901. (Library of useful stories.).....92 A392be

Good short history of the career of Alfred and the position of England in the 9th century.

Bowker, Alfred, ed. Alfred the Great. 1899.....92 A392b

Contents: Introduction, by Sir Walter Besant.—Alfred as king, by Frederic Harrison.—Alfred as a religious man and an educationalist, by G. F. Browne.—Alfred as a warrior, by Charles Oman.—Alfred as a geographer, by Sir Clements Markham.—Alfred as a writer, by John Earle.—English law before the Norman conquest, by Sir Frederick Pollock.—Alfred and the arts, by W. J. Loftie.

Conybeare, Edward. Alfred in the chronicles. 1900....92 A392c

"Purpose is to put before unlearned readers in their own language all those passages of our early historians which can possibly rank as sources for either the real or the legendary history of King Alfred...An introduction, giving an account of Alfred's life and work, is prefixed, and the book is accompanied by a map of England in the 9th century...Unfortunately the workmanship is far from being altogether scholarly...Considering the popular object of the book, its defects are not likely to do much harm, and for many readers it may be both instructive and entertaining." Athenæum, 1900.

 "Grant Allen's life was charged with tragic interest...He had to live by his pen, and he soon learned that living by his pen, in the regions he was specially equipped for—namely, science and philosophy—meant starvation. Then he tried his hand at every branch of literature, and displayed versatility which was truly marvellous. He achieved success...But success came too late...He had been constantly thinking, planning and scheming to produce wares to catch the literary market, and this ceaseless mental activity and worry wore him out, and cut short his life at a comparatively early age." Academy, 1900.

Ricordi d'infanzia e di scuola; seguiti da Bambole e marionette, Gente minima, Piccoli studenti, Adolescenti, Due di spade e due di cuori. 1901.....92 A5162

"Signor de Amicis is the most candid of autobiographers—he writes with an irony that subtly tells against himself, of his ambitions, his frequent discomfitures, his love of praise, his susceptibilities, his impetuosity, and finally of all the circumstances that decided his career as a man of letters." Saturday review, 1901.

Short stories and sketches fill the last half of the volume.

AMIEL, Henri Frédéric.

Fragments d'un journal intime. 2v. in 1. 1897.....92 A516f

Journal intime; tr. by Mrs Humphry Ward. 1893.....92 A516

"Amiel has been much compared with Obermann and Maurice de Guérin, but he is far nearer to us than either...There was in Amiel that deeper seriousness which we characterize by the word Puritan. It is for that type of religious mind, of which there are very many among English speaking peoples, even though they disavow the name, that the book will have the strongest attraction." Nation, 1886.

AMMEN, Daniel.

The old navy and the new; memoirs. 1898.....92 A518

Life in the United States navy from the time the author entered the service as a midshipman of 16 to his resignation as admiral in 1877. Contains much of interest concerning the evolution of war-ships, and the naval contests of the Civil war.

ANDERSEN, Hans Christian.

Story of my life. 1871.....92 A544

"The absolute candor with which Andersen lays bare his soul, the complete intentional or unintentional self-revelation, gives a psychological value to the book which no mere literary graces could bestow...

Andersen remained, until the day of his death, a child. His innocence was more than virginal; his unworldliness simply inconceivable...He conceived of his life as a fairy-tale...The feeling of the marvellous pervades the book from beginning to end." Boyesen's Essays on Scandinavian literature.

The autobiography brings the narrative down to 1867. An account of his later years will be found in Bain's "Hans Christian Andersen," 92 A544b.

Bain, Robert Nisbet. Hans Christian Andersen. 1895....92 A544b

"He retells the story, soberly, carefully, critically, perhaps with a little less than full fellow-feeling for the wayward, daemonic, half-irrational, half-inspired element in Andersen's character, but certainly with great fulness of knowledge not only as regards the facts of Andersen's own life, and the books by him and about him, but also as regards Danish literature generally." Academy, 1896.

A few memories. 1896.....92 A548

Mary Anderson played with much success such parts as Juliet, Perdita, Galatea, Rosalind, etc. from 1875 to 1889, when she retired from the stage.

"As a contribution to theatrical literature her volume is of very small importance, but as a bit of autobiography it is exceedingly interesting...From first to last...there is not one note of affectation or insincerity...The real interest and charm lie in the story of her life outside the theatre...of the friendship of many of the most distinguished men and women of the day." Nation, 1896.

Wood, Lady Mary Susan 'Felicie. Story of a saintly bishop's life; Lancelot Andrewes, bishop of Winchester, 1555-1626. 1898.....92 A564w Andrewes was eminent as a prelate of the Church of England, as a preacher and as a writer. His "Manual of private devotion" is especially well known and widely used. In this short memoir the object has been to give a picture of his personal life and character rather than to enter on doctrinal questions.

tory, 1527-1536. 2v. 1884.....92 A613f

Author has not only studied all the English state papers bearing on the subject, but has made exhaustive investigations on the continent.

"Result is that he has been able to tell the tale of Anne Boleyn's ascendancy with a fulness, a clearness, and a graphic minuteness of detail with which it has not yet been treated in any English history." Academy, 1884.

Canterbury. 2v. 1883.....92 A618ru

"Contains a good deal of useful matter, the fruit of long and careful labour, but marred by irrelevant digressions and a cumbrous style." Dictionary of national biography.

"St. Anselm [archbishop 1093-1109] is the most universally attractive figure in the history of mediæval Christendom...That which distinguishes St. Anselm above all his contemporaries is that he still retains, and must permanently retain, a hold upon the respect and attention of men. This is the result of the unique many-sidedness of his character and work." Saturday review, 1883.

AQUINAS, Thomas, St. See THOMAS AQUINAS, St.

ARBLAY, Mme Frances (Burney) d'.

Diary and letters, with notes by W. C. Ward. 7v. 1854....92 A665

Fanny Burney's social advantages were great and the years of intercourse with brilliant people gave her unusual knowledge of the world. Not long after the publication of "Cecilia" she accepted a position at the court as keeper of the robes to Queen Charlotte. Her "Diary and letters" gives us one of the best historical pictures of that time, the everyday life at court, King George III's increasing insanity, and her own story of discomfort in uncongenial companionship.

 "As a diarist Miss Burney is with Pepys and Evelyn, as a letter-writer with Walpole and Chesterfield. And unlike all of these, except Horace, she is a novelist as well." Saintsbury's Essays in English literature.

ARNDT, Ernst Moritz.

Life and adventures; comp. fr. the German, with a preface by J. R. Seeley. 1879.....92 A747

"These memoirs...may serve as a sort of Erckmann-Chatrian novel for Germany, showing us the side of the Napoleonic age which history for the most part overlooks, and at the same time they have the advantage over every novel that they are true, and also that they make us acquainted with an interesting and a celebrated man." J. R. Seeley, in preface.

ARNOLD, Benedict.

Arnold, Isaac Newton. Life of Benedict Arnold; his patriotism and his treason. 1880.....92 A752a

"Life of the celebrated general of the 18th century (1741-1801), whose treason is one of the Revolutionary episodes...The sources of information...are, in part, family papers. As the book is frankly an attempt to overcome the 'universal prejudice' against Arnold, it loses somewhat in impartial treatment, though the desire of the author to be just and fair is everywhere evident." Larned's Literature of American history.

ARNOLD, Matthew.

Letters, 1848-1888. 2v. 1896.....92 A757

Stanley, Arthur Penrhyn, dean. Life and correspondence of Thomas Arnold. 2v. in 1. 1892.....92 A759s

There is only so much narrative as will enable the reader to take up the letters with a right understanding of the writer's opinions at different periods, and so far as possible his plans and opinions are given in his own words. Dean Stanley was chosen by Dr Arnold's family for the work, and has availed himself of the contributions of others who might have had better opportunities of knowing Dr Arnold, especially in early life. His own acquaintance with his subject began when Stanley was a pupil at Rugby, and extended with increasing intimacy until Dr Arnold's death in 1842, and it is to the latter's work as master of Rugby, with which his name is most closely associated in the general mind, that most space is given.

ARNOLD, Thomas, 1823-1900.

Passages in a wandering life. 1900.....92 A7592

"Account of his mental and spiritual wanderings is much more interesting than that of his corporeal ones. When he goes back to a generation of great men now dead—when he tells us how he went into the Catholic church—and out and in again—we are delighted, but his journeyings in New Zealand, Tasmania, and Sweden and Italy are hardly worth writing about. Of his father, Dr. Arnold, he tells us little that is new—there cannot be much left to tell—but his friends at Fox How, and his boyish recollections of Wordsworth, Southey, Professor Wilson, and Hartley Coleridge, are well worth reading." Spectator, 1900.

 New York. He was the author of various books on philosophy, literature and education.
- AZEGLIO, Massimo Tapparelli, marchese d'.
 I miei ricordi. 1895.....92 A993
 "The life of a man who was soldier, artist, diplomatist, novelist, and statesman; whose earliest reminiscences were of Alfieri and the Countess of Albany, and who lived to be introduced to the present heir-apparent of the British throne; who, born in the highest social circle, mingled by choice and by profession with members of every class, and who exercised no small influence upon the destinies of his native Italy, can hardly fail to present some points of interest."
Quarterly review, 1867.
 "This character of individuality, which impressed its stamp on his whole life, is charmingly revealed in every sentence of the memoirs which he has left behind him; so that, more than any of his previous writings, their homeliness and wit and wisdom justify the epithet which I once before ventured to give him when I described him as 'the Giusti of Italian prose.'"

BABBAGE, Charles.

Passages from the life of a philosopher. 1864.....r92 B114

English mathematician, chiefly known as the inventor of a calculating machine which, after years of toil, he failed to perfect. The book is more concerned with his experiments than with the personal details of his life, and is marred by a certain bitterness of tone.

troduction into this country [England] of the works of

Bach; ed. by Eliza Wesley. 1875.....r92 B125w

List of the musical works of Samuel Wesley, p.51-60.

Samuel Wesley, the son of Charles, was a distinguished musician, the greatest organist of his day.

"The great event of Wesley's life was his vigorous propaganda of the works of John Sebastian Bach in this country [England]...During 1808 and 1809 he addressed a series of characteristic letters on the subject to Benjamin Jacob, then organist of Surrey Chapel. These letters, edited by his daughter Eliza Wesley were published in 1875."

Bache, Constance. Brother musicians; reminiscences of

Edward and Walter Bache. 1901.....r92 B126b

"The older of the brothers, who died forty-three years ago [1858], ilillustrates musical affairs in London in the period of Mendelssohn worship, when no other god was acknowledged except Handel; whereas Walter Bache, who died thirteen years ago [1888], was one of the leading apostles of the new German school...and...spent a great part of his life and a third of his income in making propaganda for the 'music of the future,' especially that of...Franz Liszt." Nation, 1901.

BACON, Francis.

Church, Richard William. Bacon. [1884.] (English men of letters.).....92 B131c
Short biography highly praised for its fair and thoughtful delineation of Bacon's character.

Dixon, William Hepworth. Personal history of Lord Bacon. 1861.....r92 B131d

"Dixon's books upon Bacon obtained wide popularity, both at home and abroad, but have not been highly valued by subsequent investigators." Dictionary of national biography.

BADEN-POWELL, Robert Stephenson Smyth.

Begbie, Harold. Story of Baden-Powell; "the wolf that never sleeps." 1900.....92 B144b

BALFE, Michael William.

Barrett, William Alexander. Balfe; his life and work. 1882.....92 B196b Irish violinist and operatic composer (1808-70).
"There is in the book so much that is curious and interesting to people interested in musical matters, so much that is eminently readable by people that have no special interest in such matters...that the author may be excused for his shortcomings, odd as some of them are." Saturday review, 1882.

Kenney, Charles Lamb. Memoir of Michael William

Balfe. 1875.....q92 B196k
"The book is full of anecdote, and we find no fault with the writer's enthusiasm for his subject." Spectator, 1875.

BALLANTINE, William.

Some experiences of a barrister's life. 1883.....92 B213
English barrister, counsel for the claimant in the original suit of the famous Tichborne case.
"The first judgment of most readers must be unfavourable; but as they go along the author's frankness and easy good nature will please them and help to atone for the great defects of arrangement and of style... There are plenty of good anecdotes scattered about the book."

Athenæum, 1883.

BALTIMORE, George Calvert, baron.

Browne, William Hand. George Calvert and Cecilius Calvert, barons Baltimore of Baltimore. 1890. (Makers of America.).....92 B217b
"Altogether this is a solid and scholarly performance, well planned and adapted to its subject, with little attempt at description of manners, with few moving accidents, never exciting, but excellently written and readable. It is worth the attention of people interested in the early history of Maryland and of the United States. It has, moreover, the great merit of brevity, containing less than 200 small pages."
Nation, 1890.

Letters to Mme Hanska, born Countess Rzewuska, afterwards Mme Honoré de Balzac, 1833-1846; tr. by K. P. Wormeley. 1900.....92 B2181
"The simple story of these letters is as follows. In February, 1833, Balzac received a letter, posted in Russia, from a lady who signed herself 'l'Étrangère' ('Foreigner'). This letter is not known to exist, nor is there any authentic knowledge of its contents; but it began a correspondence between its writer and Balzac which ended in their marriage in 1850." Translator's preface.

Personal opinions, taken from his correspondence and his miscellaneous writings; comp. and tr. by K. P. Wormeley. 1899.....92 B218

Concerning history, politics, literature, art and some of his own works.
Wedmore, Frederick. Life of Honoré de Balzac. 1890.
(Great writers.).....92 B218we
Bibliography, apx. p.1-15.

"The best part of Mr. Wedmore's book is the biographical. It is accurate in matters of detail, and on the whole judiciously discriminative... Written with sufficient ease, grace, and spirit to deserve more than one reading." Nation, 1890.

Wormeley, Katharine Prescott. Memoir of Honoré de Balzac. 1892.....92 B218w
List of Balzac's writings, p.357-364.

Literary industries; a memoir. 1890.....92 B223
In 1852 Mr Bancroft established an extensive book business in San Francisco and began to collect books and documents relating to the Pacific states, acquiring 60,000 volumes, tracts and mss. Upon this library, which was elaborately indexed, he founded his "History of the Pacific states" in 39 volumes. This book tells the story of his great undertaking.

BARLOW, Joel.

Todd, Charles Burr. Life and letters of Joel Barlow, with extracts from his works. 1886.....92 B248t Joel Barlow (1755-1812) was a prominent figure in early American literature. His verse for the most part is stilted and declamatory, but his "Hasty pudding," a poetical reminiscence of New England among Italian scenes, still affords pleasant reading, and is genuinely humorous.

BARNATO, Barnett Isaacs.

 "Barriana," p.255-257; bibliography of Barrie's works, p.258-264. Does not pretend to be a formal biography, nor a comprehensive critical study, but aims to supply biographical and bibliographical data.
- BARRIE, Mrs Margaret (Ogilvy).
 Barrie, James Matthew. Margaret Ogilvy. 1896.....92 B266b
 This memoir of Barrie's mother is eloquent of family love and filial devotion and respect. It deals most delicately with the tender and intimate relations between a mother and her son, and reveals an individual character, shrewd, mirthful, pious and intensely human. It necessarily includes much that relates to her son's life and work.

 Barton (1748-1831) is famous for the surprise and capture of the British general, Robert Prescott, who had made himself offensive to the Rhode Island Whigs. Olney (1755-1832) was an officer in the Revolutionary army.
- BASHKIRTSEFF, Marie.
 Journal of a young artist, 1860-1884; tr. by M. J. Serrano. 1889.92 B291
 "It is not alone the outspoken wit, longing, and opinions of a girl writing for her own heart, and poising for her public at the same moment, but the self-revelation of a gifted and forceful nature, working itself out through successive phases of a life which, concentrated into a few short years, leaves an impression almost complete in its distinctness." Atlantic monthly, 1889.
- Last confessions, and Correspondence with Guy de Maupassant. 1901.....92 B291l
 "Interest is the same as that which gave the first diaries their popularity; but the present volume is more painful, covering as it does the last year of that brilliant, ambitious and restless creature... We see Marie making fashions, but no friends; criticizing society, pining for real expert praise of her pictures, flirting with Guy de Maupassant in a series of letters under a mask of anonymity; and over all... the restless energy, so soon faded, of the consumptive." Athenaum, 1901.

BASS, Edward, bp.

Addison, Daniel Dulany. Life and times of Edward Bass, first bishop of Massachusetts. 1897.....92 B295a

BATCHELOR, Charles William.

Incidents in my life, with a family genealogy. 1887.....92 B311

Mr Batchelor (1823-96) was born in Steubenville, Ohio, but lived much of his life in Pittsburgh. He was at one time captain of the "Allegheny" on the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati steamboat line, held interests in other steamboat lines, and from 1861 to 1865 was surveyor of the port at Pittsburgh. He was a prominent Mason and received the highest degree that can be conferred by that order.

BAUER, Karoline Philippine Auguste.

Posthumous memoirs; fr. the German. 2v. 1884.....92 B325

The author, a German actress, gives us a strange picture of court life and intrigues in the middle of the 19th century.

BAYARD, Pierre du Terrail, chevalier de.

Mailles, Jacques de, called Le loyal serviteur. History of Bayard, the good chevalier sans peur et sans reproche;

tr. into English from the French of Loredan Larchey.

1883.92 B333m

Author was Bayard's secretary. His account, published in 1527, is the source of much of the information concerning Bayard. Illustrated with drawings and reproductions of old prints.

"Chivalry, deprived of fantastic extravagance, is perfectly mirrored in the character of Bayard, (1476-1524). He combined the merits of a skilful tactician with the romantic heroism, piety and magnanimity of the ideal knight-errant."

BEACONSFIELD, Benjamin Disraeli, earl of.

Froude, James Anthony. Lord Beaconsfield. 1893.

(Prime ministers of Queen Victoria.).....92 B342f

"Three fifths of it are occupied with the early history and struggles of Mr. Disraeli down to the fall of Sir Robert Peel... The romantic interest attaching to the beginning of his marvellous career is so great that we should not blame his biographer for devoting only the lesser of the two portions of the book to the succeeding thirty-five years had that remainder been entirely given to the life and actions of the leader and reconstructor of the Tory party." Athenaum, 1890.

Gorst, Harold Edward. Earl of Beaconsfield. 1900. (Victorian era series.).....92 B342g

"An excellent life... from the public point of view." Athenaum, 1900.

- naissance. 1899.....92 B3453c
 "Authorities," p.9-11.
 "Not restricted to the incidents of family relations and court society.
 It shows in a hundred ways how thoroughly Renaissance life was steeped in classicism, it investigates the political aims of Ludovico, it enters upon the relations of Venice with the northern states of Italy and it brings the French across the Alps...Her knowledge of documents and skilful use of detail could be used to advantage on the same line for a long time to come." Nation, 1900.
- BEAUHARNAIS, Eugène de, prince.
 Pulitzer, Albert. Romance of Prince Eugène. 2v. 1895..92 B348p

BENSON, Edward White, abp. of Canterbury.

Benson, Arthur Christopher. Life of Edward White Benson, archbishop of Canterbury. 1901.....92 B443b

Abridged from the first two-volume issue.

"Many circumstances combined to invest the fourteen years of his Primacy [1882-96] with exceptional importance...The...book is an important contribution to the ecclesiastical history of this century...It is also extremely good reading, and contains more than the ordinary proportion of racy and humorous anecdotes...We lay down these volumes...with a greatly enhanced opinion of the late Primate's ability, a juster estimate of his great work for the Church of England, and a warm affection for his interesting and complex personality." Saturday review, 1900.

The same. 1899. (American statesmen.).....r92 B4453ri

"Benton [1782-1858] is worth studying both as a type and individual. Mr. Roosevelt has most correctly shown that he is a representative of the West in its early generation, as distinguished at once from the East and the South...In his account of the strife of parties during the administrations of Jackson, Van Buren, and Tyler, the author has aimed to combine a reasonable regard for the demands, motives and passions of the time with the coolness of a philosophic historian." Nation, 1888.

BÉRANGER, Pierre Jean de.

Memoirs, written by himself. 1858.....92 B448

Gives the principal events of his poetic and political life.

"In all his works, in lyrics of levity, of politics, of worldly reflection,—Béranger...has given us an idea of the essential French character, such as we fancy it must be, but can never for ourselves hope to see that it is." Bagehot's Literary studies.

BERKELEY, George.

Fraser, Alexander Campbell. Berkeley. 1894.....92 B455f

Berkeley (1684-1753) was one of the most profound and original of English philosophers. He lived for several years near Newport, R. I. and gave a strong stimulus to philosophical and classical studies in America. This small biography presents Berkeley's philosophy in connection with his personal history.

Fraser, Alexander Campbell. Life and letters of George Berkeley. 1871.....92 B455fi

BERNARD, St. abbot of Clairvaux.

Morison, James Cotter. Life and times of St. Bernard, abbot of Clairvaux. 1889.....92 B456m

Bernard exercised great influence on the intellectual and spiritual life of his time and was one of the controlling forces of ecclesiastical politics of Europe. His was the strongest influence in prevailing upon France and England to recognize Innocent II as pope in opposition to the rival claimant, and his preaching is largely responsible for the second crusade.

"A book which was praised by Mark Pattison, Matthew Arnold, and Cardinal Manning. It shows great historical knowledge and a keen interest in the mediæval church." Dictionary of national biography.

BERNARD, Claude.

Foster, Sir Michael. Claude Bernard. 1899. (Masters of medicine.).....92 B4562f

"No one, perhaps, is better fitted to give an account of the French master of modern physiology than Sir Michael Foster, himself the representative physiologist of England, and the founder of the Cambridge school. But Sir Michael has hardly done justice to himself or his subject...The early chapters are hastily and rather carelessly written ...There is a good portrait of Claude Bernard...and a sufficient index." Literature, 1899.

BERNHARDT, Sarah.

Huret, Jules. Sarah Bernhardt; tr. by G. A. Raper. 1899..92 B457h

Chiefly an accumulation of dates, facts and events purporting to have been taken from the actress's own lips.

"The best things in this book are the illustrations and two pages and a half of the preface by M. Rostand." Spectator, 1899.

Imbert de Saint-Amand, Arthur Léon, baron. Duchess of Berry and the court of Charles X. 1894.....92 B459s

Second volume of the series. Presents a picture of the intrigues of the French court and the causes which finally led to the revolution of 1830.

Imbert de Saint-Amand, Arthur Léon, baron. Duchess of Berry and the court of Louis XVIII. 1892.....92 B459sa

The duchess of Berry (1798-1870) was the wife of Charles Ferdinand, duke of Berry and mother to the comte de Chambord. This, the first of a series of three volumes on the duchess of Berry, covers her girlhood and brief married life.

Imbert de Saint-Amand, Arthur Léon, baron. Duchess of Berry and the revolution of 1830. 1893.....92 B459sai Third and final volume on the duchess of Berry. Describes abdication and flight of Charles X and accession of Louis Philippe.

BERRY, Mary.

Extracts of her journals and correspondence, from 1783 to 1852. 3v. 1865.....92 B459I

Biographical sketch of Miss Berry, v.1, p.13-41.

For over 70 years Mary Berry and her sister Agnes were constantly in society both at home and abroad and, having peculiar social talents and literary tastes and pursuits, they knew well the most distinguished people of that long period. Horace Walpole was an intimate friend and Miss Berry's first literary task was editing his works.

BERZELIUS, Johan Jakob, baron, & Schönbein, C. F.

Letters, 1836-1847; ed. by G. W. A. Kahlbaum, tr. by F. V.

Darbshire and N. V. Sidgwick. 1900.....92 B465

Berzelius (1779-1847) enriched and developed chemistry to an extent not exceeded by any other man. Perhaps his greatest contributions to chemistry were his development of the atomic theory, his electrochemical theory, and his dualistic system. Schönbein (1799-1868) is chiefly known as the discoverer of ozone and gun-cotton. The letters are chiefly devoted to ozone, gun-cotton and theoretical subjects.

BESANT, Sir Walter.

Autobiography. 1902.....r92 B466

,"Interesting just as Sir Walter's novels were interesting...not thrilling, not great in any way, but full of the interest that went with his personality." Critic, 1902.

BETHAM-EDWARDS, Matilda. See EDWARDS, Matilda

Betham-.

BETTERTON, Thomas.

Life and times of Thomas Betterton. [Anonymous.]

1888.r92 B468

Distinguished actor of the latter half of the 17th century, who was intimate with Dryden and with others of the most intellectual men of his time.

BEUST, Friedrich Ferdinand, graf von.

Memoirs. 2v. 1887.....r92 B469

Statesman and diplomatist of Saxony and Austria who was Bismarck's chief political opponent during the decade preceding the Austro-Prussian war.

BEWICK, Thomas.

Dobson, Austin. Thomas Bewick and his pupils. 1884...r92 B4692d

Appeared, in an abridged form, in the "Century magazine," v.24, 1882. "Besides being an engraver, he was, in his own way, an artist of remarkable capacity as a faithful interpreter of animal life, and a genuine humourist of a sub-Hogarthian type...As an engraver Bewick has been justly styled the restorer of wood engraving in England. It is to the impulse which it received from his individual genius that its revival as an art must be ascribed." Dictionary of national biography.

BÈZE, Théodore de.

Baird, Henry Martyn. Theodore Beza, counsellor of the French reformation, 1519-1605. 1899.....r92 B469b

Bibliography, p.17-21.

"Of the heroes of the Reformation Theodore Beza is by no means the least attractive. His course of activity was long and brilliant. He presided over the Reformed Church in the French-speaking countries through a protracted series of years, its recognized counsellor and leader in times of peril both to Church and to State. The friend of Calvin, he was also the friend and adviser of Henry IV until within five years of that monarch's end." Preface.

BIDDLE, Charles.

Autobiography, 1745-1821. 1883.....r92 B475

Born in Philadelphia in 1745, he followed the sea in early life, later he was vice-president of the Supreme executive council of Pennsylvania and held other offices. He was a friend of Franklin and Burr, and the book contains hitherto unpublished letters from Burr and others. He was the father of Nicholas Biddle, the financier, of Richard Biddle of Pittsburgh, and of James Biddle, the distinguished naval officer.

BIENVILLE, Jean Baptiste Lemoine, sieur de.

King, Grace. Jean Baptiste le Moyne, sieur de Bienville,

[in English]. 1893. (Makers of America.).....r92 B476k

"Among the makers of America, Bienville was by no means the least. He was one of the party who first discovered the mouth of the Mississippi from the south in 1699, 17 years after La Salle had reached that point from the north...19 years after he first saw the Mississippi, Bienville founded New Orleans...Found faithful in many trusts and equal to every emergency, he rose step by step to the Governorship of Louisiana, and continued in public service there for 25 years before returning to France." Nation, 1893.

BIRNEY, James Gillespie.

Birney, William. James G. Birney and his times; the genesis of the Republican party, with some account of abolition movements in the South before 1828. 1890..r92 B491b

"Anti-slavery books before 1831," p.382-388.

Although Birney (1792-1857) was born in Kentucky and lived half his life in the South, he was always in favor of the emancipation of the slaves, and for years devoted himself entirely to that work. He was the candidate of the "Liberty" party for president in 1840 and 1844.

BISMARCK-SCHÖNHAUSEN, Otto Eduard Leopold, first von.

Bismarck, the man & the statesman; reflections and reminiscences written after his retirement from office. 2v.

1899.92 B497bi

Valuable for sidelight, particularly to students of political history, who care little for the lighter matters of personality and anecdote.

Love letters of Bismarck; letters to his fiancée and wife,

1846-1889. 1901.92 B497lv

"Reveals Bismarck in an entirely new light. The self-portraiture shows a forcible tenderness that will surprise such as associate only shrewd insight and bull-dog tenacity with the statesman...This volume is a part of history." Saturday review, 1901.

Table-talk. 1895.92 B497

Based on Herr von Poschinger's five volumes of Bismarck's table-talk, compiled from a great variety of sources, private communications, etc., and covering his life from boyhood to his retirement in 1890.

Andler, Charles. Le prince de Bismarck. 1899.92 B497a

"Sources," p.395-400.

General sketch of Bismarck, his character and policy.

"Author knows the history of the period, is familiar with German life, and evidently has read all the voluminous Bismarck literature that is worth reading. He writes with creditable control of his national bias." Nation, 1899.

Busch, Moritz. Bismarck; some secret pages of his history. 2v. 1898.92 B497bus

The author entered the German foreign office in 1870 and from that time was a special follower and great admirer of Bismarck. After the latter's retirement, Dr Busch was still his frequent and intimate guest. The foundation of this book is a diary covering 25 years of official and private intercourse with the great chancellor. Its publication was authorized by Bismarck. It is a most complete and frank record of a great man's career written by a devoted adherent.

Busch, Moritz. Bismarck und sein werk; beiträge zur inneren geschichte der letzten jahre bis 1896, nach tagebuchsblättern. 1898.92 B497bu

Small collection of extracts from Busch's diary and from public and private papers to which Bismarck gave him access.

Busch, Moritz. Our chancellor. 2v. in 1. 1884.92 B497b

Not in any sense a biography of Bismarck, but a series of essays on his character and statesmanship, beginning with "the chancellor's profession of faith and moral code of statesmanship" and going on to discuss separate aspects of his public work, especially his relations with Austria, Russia and France. Comes down to 1883.

Görlach, Wilhelm. Fürst Bismarck; eine lebensbeschreibung. 1885.92 B497g

Short sketch for younger readers showing the influence he exerted on the formation of the Germany of to-day.

Headlam, James Wycliffe. Bismarck and the foundation of the German empire. 1899. (Heroes of the nations.)92 B497he Popular general view of his life and character.

"The novelty of Mr. Headlam's work lies in his treatment of the career of Bismarck in his later labors as chancellor of the German Empire." Dial, 1900.

Hoche, Jules. The real Bismarck. 1898.92 B497h

Also published with the title "Bismarck at home."

The real Bismarck, according to M. Hoche, is first of all a humorist, which explains his apparent inconsistencies and exaggerations, also the "chameleon-like" charm of his personality. The book is largely a compilation of anecdotes from newspapers and the older Bismarck literature.

BISMARCK-SCHÖNHAUSEN, Otto Eduard Leopold, fürst von—continued.

- Jácks, William. Life of Prince Bismarck. 1899.....92 B497j Popular, somewhat superficial and very enthusiastic biography.
- Jahnke, Hermann. Fürst Bismarck; sein leben und wirken.
 [1899.]92 B497ja
 Comes down to his retirement in 1890. Many portraits and other illustrations.
- Klaczko, Julian. Two chancellors; Gortchakof and Bismarck. 1876.....92 G689k Reviews the diplomatic history of Europe, 1855-71, and sketches the careers of Gortchakof and Bismarck then (1873) chancellors respectively of Russia and the German empire and the most friendly allies.
- Kohl, Horst. Fürst Bismarck; regesten zu einer wissenschaftlichen biographie des ersten deutschen reichskanzlers. 2v. 1891-92.....qr92 B497k
 v.1. 1815-1871.
 v.2. 1871-1890.
 Valuable storehouse of the necessary data for a biography, arranged by years.
- Lord, John. Two German giants: Frederic the Great and Bismarck, with a character sketch of Bismarck by Bayard Taylor, and Bismarck's great speech on the enlargement of the German army in 1888. 1894.....92 F895l Short character sketches. Also included in his "Beacon lights of history."
- Lowe, Charles. Prince Bismarck. 1896.....92 B497lo
 "Since the appearance of my large two-volume work, 'Prince Bismarck: An Historical Biography,' ten years ago, much fresh material on my subject has come to light; and the substance of this up-to-date material—sometimes corrective, sometimes supplementary—I have incorporated in the present sketch." Preface.
- Lowe, Charles. Prince Bismarck; a historical biography.
 2v. 1895.....92 B497l
 "Mr. Lowe has studied the sources of information at present available with great care; has arranged and presented the results of his investigation with no little art and skill; and has written not merely a very readable book, but a very creditable history of Bismarck and his times." Nation, 1886.
- Poschinger, Heinrich von, comp. Conversations with Prince Bismarck; English edition ed. by Sidney Whitman. 1900.....92 B497p
 "Herr von Poschinger's official position afforded him unique opportunities for collecting authentic details and many entertaining anecdotes about the Iron Chancellor. Mr. Whitman has made selections for English purposes from five bulky volumes." Saturday review, 1900.
- Smith, Munroe. Bismarck and German unity; a historical outline. 1898.....92 B497s
 "Bismarck literature," p.95-99.
 Covers the entire ground of Bismarck's career and the political influences which surrounded him. As a companion volume to Dr Busch's larger work, it will be found not only useful, but very entertaining, and one who has not the time for the larger work will find the present volume sufficient to give a clear and rational view of the career of the great statesman. Originally published in the New York "Evening post" immediately after Bismarck's death.
- Stearns, Frank Preston. Life of Prince Otto von Bismarck. 1899.....92 B497st Study of his life and character and of his place in history.
- BLACKIE, John Stuart.
 Stoddart, Anna M. John Stuart Blackie; a biography. 2v. 1895.92 B515s
 The author is a warm admirer of the famous Scotchman whom she had special facilities for knowing in all moods and under all circumstances; but this biography is an impartial one, doing full justice to him and at the same time not concealing his limitations and inconsistencies.

BLACKWOOD, William.

Oliphant, Mrs Margaret Oliphant (Wilson). Annals of a publishing house; William Blackwood and his sons, their magazine and friends. 3v. 1897-98.....92 B5170

v.1 and 2, which are all that Mrs Oliphant lived to complete, bring the history of the Blackwood firm down to 1861 and are valuable for the sidelights they throw on the literary history of the period. Of them the London "Athenæum" says: "They form a most interesting record of the doings of a famous publishing house, which has always stood high, not only for the many notable books it has produced, but for the integrity and liberality which have distinguished its dealings with author and public." v.3, "John Blackwood," is by his daughter, Mrs Porter.

BLAINE, James Gillespie.

Hamilton, Gail, (pseud. of Mary Abigail Dodge). Biography of James G. Blaine. 1895.....92 B522h

"This is not in reality a biography at all; it is the history of a family, written by a kinswoman who was practically an inmate of the household...Mr. Blaine has often been compared with Henry Clay, but this biography shows how small was the likeness between them. Both were energetic, magnetic leaders, speakers of the House, secretaries of state, repeatedly disappointed candidates for the presidency. But Clay was a great figure, and filled a great place; while of Blaine the best-intentioned biographer makes out a man genial, kindly, eager, shrewd, renowned, but not extraordinary." A. B. Hart, in American historical review, 1897.

BLAKE, Admiral Robert.

Dixon, William Hepworth. Robert Blake, admiral and general at sea; based on family and state papers. 1852...92 B527d

Blake was among the first to join the parliamentary forces in 1642 and after a notable career on shore was appointed one of the commanders of the fleet, and it was at sea that his greatest reputation was gained. "More even than by his glory and by his success the memory of Blake is dear to the English people by the traditions of his chivalrous character and of his unselfish patriotism." Dictionary of national biography.

Hannay, David. Admiral Blake. 1886. (English worthies.)92 B527h

"He does not unduly glorify his hero. The sea fights are made intelligible to the non-professional reader and there is also an interesting chapter on the navy of the commonwealth." English historical review, 1888.

BLAKE, William.

Garnett, Richard. William Blake, painter and poet. 1895. (Portfolio monographs.).....qr92 B528g

William Blake (1757-1827) must always be one of the most interesting figures in art. His position is exceptional, for his fame as a poet has fully rivaled his fame as a painter. The present volume considers both his literary and artistic work.

Swinburne, Algernon Charles. William Blake, with illustrations from Blake's designs in facsimile. 1868.....r92 B528s

The same. 1906.....92 B528s

Does not contain illustrations.

"Mr. Swinburne shows himself master of his purpose, which is to set forth the ideas of Blake in religion, morality and design." Athenæum, 1868.

BLANCHARD, Claude.

Journal, 1780-1783; tr. by William Duane and ed. by

Thomas Balch. 1876.....r92 B532

Blanchard was sent to America in 1780 as commissary-in-chief of the French forces under Gen. Rochambeau. While his Journal gives but few military details it contains much that is interesting concerning the organization and discipline of the French forces, and some glimpses of American society.

BLESSINGTON, Margaret (Power) Gardiner, countess of.

Molloy, Joseph Fitzgerald. Most gorgeous Lady Blessing-

ton. 2v. 1896.....92 B548m

Lady Blessington was a noted English beauty and wit, a writer and a leader of fashion.

"A curious, sad and interesting life, a picture of literary society...and a collection of anecdotes about its members...Lord Byron especially is a wonderful portrait in a few pages...Poor Lady Blessington is throughout more natural than any of her courtiers; she remains the beautiful, charming, sensitive, clever, good-natured, unaffected and unlucky Margaret Power to the end." Nation, 1896.

BLISS, Philip Paul.

Whittle, D. W. Memoirs of Philip P. Bliss. 1877.....92 B553w and author. 1895.....92 B576s

"The literature of modern as distinguished from mediæval Europe began with three Italian poets—Dante, Petrarch and Boccaccio [1313-75]... We have to estimate Boccaccio, not only as the author of the 'Decameron,' not only as the poet who controlled the course of Italian literature in its main currents for three hundred years, but also as the founder of Greek studies and Petrarch's ablest lieutenant in the pioneering work of the Revival." Symonds's Boccaccio.

Grossmann, Mrs Edwina (Booth). Edwin Booth; recollections by his daughter and letters to her and to his friends. 1894.....92 B632g

These recollections of the great actor by his only child are most interesting, bringing out the side of Mr Booth which was seen only by his family and friends.

Winter, William. Life and art of Edwin Booth. 1893.....92 B632

Appreciative biography, somewhat lacking in details but valuable for its studies of the actor's chief impersonations; many interesting portraits.

BOOTHBY, Charles.

A prisoner of France; the memoirs, diary and correspondence of Charles Boothby, during his last campaign, [1809-1810]. 1898.....92 B633

Charles Boothby (1786-1846), captain in the Royal British engineers, while recovering from a serious wound received during the campaign in the Peninsula in 1809, fell into the hands of the French and was detained as prisoner of war. His memoirs tell the story of his captivity and of the treatment accorded him by a courteous enemy.

Under England's flag, 1804-1809; memoirs, diary and correspondence; comp. by M. S. B. & C. E. B. 1900.....92 B633u complished great reforms in the church in his large diocese, taking special interest in the education of persons intended for holy orders. This account was first published in 1858.

BORROW, George.

Knapp, William Ireland. Life, writings and correspondence of George Borrow, (1803-1881); based on official and other authentic sources. 2v. 1899.....92 B639k Chronological bibliography of the writings of George Borrow, v.2, p.343-375.

The author of "The Bible in Spain" and "Lavengro" has for the first time a full and authentic biography. After his death in 1881 Professor Knapp, late of Yale, made a collection of his printed books, the magazines that contained his early fugitive pieces, and the articles that discussed him and his works. Eventually he also secured his papers, the correspondence of half a century and more, his manuscripts, and the scattered remains of his library. From this mass of authentic records it now became possible for the first time, to give a full and reliable account of his origin, his early struggles and employments, his later triumphs, his withdrawal from the "trumpety society of London," and also to explain his disinclination to furnish correct data for his personal history.

"Professor Dietrich...was on most intimate terms with Brahms during the years immediately following the latter's introduction to the public. The letters carry us...from the year 1853 up to 1874; whereas Dr. J. V. Widmann, an eminent Swiss littérateur, is enabled to give us some details of the later years of the musician's life (1886-97)." Translator's preface.

BRAINERD, David.

Memoirs of David Brainerd, missionary to the Indians on the borders of New-York, New-Jersey and Pennsylvania; chiefly taken from his own diary, by Jonathan Edwards; including his journal, now for the first time incorporated with the rest of his diary in a regular chronological series by S. E. Dwight. 1822.....r92 B689 BRAMSTON, Sir John.

Autobiography. 1845. (Camden society. Publications, v.32.)92 B6943 Bramston (1611-1700) was an English lawyer and member of Parliament.

"Although it [the Autobiography] casts no important light on historical events, it is of great interest as a record of the social and domestic life of the period." Dictionary of national biography.

BRECK, Samuel.

Recollections, with passages from his note-books (1771-

- 1862); ed. by H. E. Scudder. 1877.....92 B722
 Samuel Breck (1771-1862) was a merchant in Philadelphia, a member of the Pennsylvania legislature and of Congress.
 "Mr. Breck made no pretensions to literary power, but he was a man of catholic tastes and general interests. In this book the reader hears his chat, and will be helped by it to get that contemporaneous position which is so needful if one would see American life and manners from time to time during the first century of the Republic." Preface.
- BREITMANN, Hans, pseud. See LELAND, Charles Godfrey.
- BRETON, Jules.
 Life of an artist; an autobiography; tr. by M. J. Serrano.
 1892.92 B734
 A large part of this autobiography of the great French painter is given to impressions of his childhood; much more to reminiscences of the famous artists with whom he was brought in contact, and criticisms of their work; but the most valuable part of the book consists of extracts from his notebooks, giving his art doctrines and opinions.
- BRIGHT, John.
 Robertson, William, of Rochdale. Life and times of John Bright. 1889.....92 B749r Gives an interesting account of the condition of the English people under the corn laws and of Mr Bright's share in bringing about their repeal.
- Smith, George Barnett. Life and speeches of John Bright.
 2v. 1881.....92 B749s
 Very full account of the public career and speeches of the well-known British statesman, whom the author considers "the greatest Liberal orator of the 19th century."
- Vince, Charles Anthony. John Bright. 1898. (Victorian era series.).....92 B749v
 A study of Mr Bright's political life rather than a general biography. Being himself in active political life in Birmingham, Mr Vince can well estimate the effect of Bright's influence and example in that city.
- BRINKERHOFF, Roeliff.
 Recollections of a lifetime. 1900.....92 B752
 During the eventful years of the last half-century the author was active and prominent in many ways, as educator, lawyer, editor, soldier, statesman and philanthropist. In 1861, when the war broke out, he entered the army, and for five years was an officer in the Quartermaster's department, at the front, and at important stations west and east, and when the war closed he was on duty at Washington. Among his close friends were Salmon P. Chase, James G. Blaine, General Garfield and General R. B. Hayes, all of whom occupy a prominent place in these recollections.

- BROGLIE, Achille Léonce Victor Charles, duc de.
 Personal recollections. 2v. 1887.....92 B765
 "This life of his was so mixed up with public affairs from beginning to end that it is in fact part of the history of France, and from the early years of the century to 1832, the point reached by the Recollections, one could hardly read any book giving a better idea of the course of public events...To many people the most interesting part of the Duc de Broglie's book will be his wonderfully spirited account of the Revolution of 1830 of which he was an eyewitness." Spectator, 1887.

BRONTË, Charlotte, afterward Mrs Nicholls, (pseud. Currer Bell).

Birrell, Augustine. Life of Charlotte Brontë. 1887. (Great writers.).....92 B7712b

"Avoiding the amiable prolixity of Mrs. Gaskell and the sententious dogmatism of Mr. Reid, Mr. Birrell has availed himself of all the material before the public, has brought to light a hitherto unpublished chapter in the career of Patrick Brontë, and has offered upon Charlotte Brontë's novels some critical remarks which are characterized by clearness of perception and sound common sense. The book is small in compass, but it covers the field thoroughly; and for its freshness of observation, admirable perspicacity, and charm of style, it is a contribution to critical biography of no slight importance." Literary world, 1887.

Gaskell, Mrs Elizabeth Cleghorn (Stevenson). Life of Charlotte Brontë. 1895.....92 B7712g

The same, with introduction by C. K. Shorter. 1900.....92 B7712g2 Haworth edition.

"Charlotte Brontë was so far fortunate...that her biography was written by the one woman among her contemporaries who had the most genuine fitness for her task." Clement K. Shorter, in preface.

Harland, Marion, (pseud. of Mrs Mary Virginia (Hawes) Terhune). Charlotte Brontë at home. 1899. (Literary hearthstones.).....92 B7712h

"In compiling her narrative of the domestic life of the eldest of the Brontë sisters, Mrs. Terhune has drawn on Mr. Shorter's work, from which was omitted nothing of material importance concerning the daily life at Haworth parsonage...Dwells minutely on the details of Charlotte Brontë's daily existence."

MacKay, Angus Mason. The Brontës, fact and fiction. 1897.92 B7711m

Consists of two essays, one written to disprove Dr William Wright's theories concerning the Brontës in Ireland. The other is entitled "Fresh light on Brontë biography," and deals mainly with Charlotte Brontë's experience in Brussels and its effect on her character and writings.

Reid, Sir Thomas Wemyss. Charlotte Brontë. 1877.....92 B7712r

One of the first biographies of Charlotte Brontë to be written after Mrs Gaskell's, it contains some material not available earlier, and deals with circumstances with which Mrs Gaskell could not, writing as she did during the lifetime of Miss Brontë's father.

Shorter, Clement King. Charlotte Brontë and her circle. 1896.92 B7712s

"This is not a biography, but a bundle of correspondence," writes Mr. Shorter...The book...owes its value mainly to the material put at the editor's disposal by the Rev. Arthur Bell Nicholls, husband of Charlotte Brontë...by Miss Ellen Nussey, and by the family of the late Mr. W. S. Williams...In these pages Charlotte, and Emily, and Anne appear to live again—more ordinary mortals, perhaps, than those limned by Mrs. Gaskell; not less interesting, perhaps more lovable." Nation, 1896.

Wright, William, D.D. The Brontës in Ireland; or, Facts stranger than fiction. 1894.....92 B7712w

Sister of Charlotte Brontë and author of "Wuthering Heights," etc.

"The story of her short life, and the delineation of her character and writings, are accomplished with admirable skill by her present biographer. The narrative is infinitely pathetic, with few and faint points of brightness to relieve its sombre color. But it adds a new light to our comprehension of the circumstances environing the inmates of Haworth parsonage." Dial, 1883.

BROOKS, Phillips, bp.

Allen, Alexander Viets Griswold. Life and letters of Phillips Brooks. 2v. 1900.....92 B774a

"Dr. Allen sees the soul behind the man, and enables his reader to share something of his sight. It is this power of vision which gives to this life of Phillips Brooks its peculiar value. And if there was ever a man whose inner life was hard to discern, it was Phillips Brooks; he hid it behind an impenetrable reserve...Nevertheless, Dr. Allen has succeeded in piercing behind this reserve...There is no process of vivisection; no abnormal interest excited in a keen dissection of motives...The impression of Phillips Brooks's real personality steals upon you while you read, as the personality of one of the portraits of Chase or Sargent while you look." Lyman Abbott.

- BROWN, Oliver Madox.
 Ingram, John H. Oliver Madox Brown, 1855-1874. 1883..92-B793i
 Oliver Madox Brown was the son of Ford Madox Brown, the eminent artist, but though he painted several notable pictures his gifts were rather in the direction of letters.
 "Leaving Chatterton out of the question, it would be difficult to recall any other English man of letters who, dying at so early an age (he was not yet twenty), left behind him such remarkable, if fragmentary work." Athenæum, 1883.
- BROWN, Thomas Edward.
 Letters; ed. with introductory memoir by S. T. Irwin. 2v.
 1900.92 B797
 "Letters, apart from their original private use, may be of value...as revealing in obscure writers a personality worth knowing, and otherwise missed by the public. Mr. Brown's letters belong to this... class, for he had no renown except in a small way as a minor poet... He was not fond of the serious vein—in these letters. He preferred dash and sparkle, and talk about Flaubert, or Scott, or his friend Hall Caine, or any of a thousand literary topics, or the hills of Man and its peasants, or...the affairs of his friends." Nation, 1900.

Brummell. 1897.92 B834b

George, generally known as "Beau" Brummell was for years the absolute ruler of fashion in London, the prince of Wales (later George IV) being his subject in this domain.

"It is his [d'Aureville's] peculiar glory to have written the epic of Dandyism and of Brummell. This masterpiece is more intimately his own than the best of his romances, the fiercest of his criticisms. For not only in his life, but in his art dandyism was a constant obsession ...and this immortal treatise is the best commentary on his works as on his career." Whibley's Pageantry of life.

BRUNO, Giordano.

"Litteraturnachweis," p.137-143.

Eminent Italian philosopher, 1548-1600. His teachings were opposed to the current philosophic tenets and religious dogmas. From his writings a mass of testimony was collected sufficient to convict him of heresy, and he was burned at the stake by order of the Roman Inquisition.

"Dr. Louis' pamphlet was timed for the tercentenary of that event. It is extremely well written and well arranged, giving in a moderate compass all the essential facts of Bruno's life and thought, as well as a brief review of his influence on posterity and of the bibliography connected with his name." Saturday review, 1900.

- BURTON, Sir Richard Francis.
 Burton, Isabel (Arundell), lady. Life of Captain Sir Richard F. Burton. 1898.....92 B953b
 Burton was a traveler, orientalist, and writer of bold and original personality, whose life was full of picturesque incident. One of his most interesting adventures was a pilgrimage in disguise to Mecca, described by him in his "Personal narrative of a pilgrimage to Al-Madinah and Meccah."
 "Fault of Lady Burton's presentment is that it is adulatory to the point of absurdity... Full of characteristic anecdotes and opinions about every variety of subject, political, social, religious, spiritualistic, linguistic, and what not... Had they been well written they would have formed one of the most remarkable biographies of the day." Athenaeum, 1893.
- Stisted, Georgiana M. True life of Sir Richard F. Burton. 1897.92 B953s
 Author was a niece of Burton and wrote this to supply a popular biography, but she has little literary skill and she makes an unnecessary attack on Lady Burton.

 v.6 contains an index to the set.
 Contains much new biographical detail and many letters inaccessible to previous biographers and editors.
 "Byron's letters appeal on three special grounds to all lovers of English literature. They offer the most suggestive commentary on his poetry; they give the truest portrait of the man; they possess, at their best, in their ease, freshness and racy vigour, a very high literary value."
Preface.

Letters, 1804-1813; ed. by W. E. Henley. 1897.....92 B998

- v.1 of an edition of Byron's works which was to have been completed in 12 volumes, but was left unfinished at the time of the editor's death in 1903.
 "These Letters Mr. Henley has annotated as never, surely, were letters annotated before. The Notes provide simply a complete series of little biographies of everyone mentioned in the letters; miniature biographies with such vital selection, such concise completion without dryasdustness, such interest in little, as no other writer but Mr. Henley could compass." Academy, 1896.

With annotations by Isaac Craig.

"One of the earliest American works of serious historical scholarship, and important in the history of historical study and writing in America. A powerful argument advocating the achievements of the son as more important than those of the father; the source from which nearly every article upon Cabot, during the succeeding forty years derived both its inspiration and facts. Calhoun was in public life from 1811 to his death in 1850 and as member of Congress, secretary of state, vice-president and United States senator he played an important part in the history of the country.

Deals chiefly with public relations; valuable as history of the slavery question rather than as personal biography.

Jenkins, John Stilwell. Life of Calhoun. 1851.....92 C132j

Style is rhetorical, and the author is warm in his praise of Calhoun.

Some extracts of speeches and letters are given, and there is a clear statement of Calhoun's position in regard to nullification.

v.2. Essay on the Lusiad of Camoens; translated from the Portuguese of Dom Jozé Maria de Souza.—Some account of the translations of the Lusiad, with notices concerning the translators.—Some account concerning the editions of the works of Camoens.

The most celebrated of Portuguese poets, whose greatest work, the "Lusiad," first printed in 1572, commemorates the exploits of Vasco da Gama and other Portuguese heroes. Of his poems Madame de Staël says, "The national glory of the Portuguese is there illustrated under all the forms that imagination can devise. The versification is so charming and stately that even the common people know them by heart and sing them with delight."

2v. 1881.....92 C157s

Author was for a long time in Lord Clyde's regiment and on his staff and, while one might wish to hear more of Lord Clyde's early life, the book is always interesting and valuable.

CAMPBELL, Thomas.

Hadden, James Cuthbert. Thomas Campbell. 1899.

(Famous Scots series).....92 C161h

"His remarks, taken separately, are just, but he dwells overmuch on Campbell's weaknesses, and the criticism of his poetry, although sensible, is not particularly acute...As we have demurred to much that Mr. Hadden says, it is only fair to add that his monograph is painstaking and accurate." Athenæum, 1900.

CANNING, Charlotte (Stuart), countess.

Hare, Augustus John Cuthbert. Story of two noble lives; being memorials of Charlotte, countess Canning and Louisa, marchioness of Waterford. 3v. 1893.....92 C173h

"The work begins in the third quarter of the eighteenth century...Lady Hardwicke and Lady Stuart de Rothesay, the grandmother and mother of the two beautiful women designated by the title, contribute two...collections of prefatory letters. Lady Hardwicke's husband was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1801 to 1806, and she gives some amusing sketches of Dublin society of that time. Lady Stuart de Rothesay's letters are dated from the English Embassy at Paris, and are rich in reminiscences of men and events...Her daughters, Lady Canning and Lady Waterford, belonged to the second quarter of the century. Mr. Hare gives interesting details of their childhood in France and England and of their marriages. Lady Canning's married life was spent in India during the eventful period of the mutiny, her journal being full of the thrilling scenes there enacted...Lady Waterford spent her long widowhood among her husband's tenants in Ireland. With many domestic details are anecdotes and recollections of some famous people."

Letters and memorials; ed. by J. A. Froude. 2v. in 1. 1894..92 C214I
The same. 2v. 1883.....r92 C214I

"A pathetic and instructive record of the private history of a woman who will henceforth be remembered and honoured, not only or chiefly because she was the wife of a man of genius, but on account of her own virtues and talents...The humour and the pungent wit, the delicious naïveté, and the power of expressing spontaneous thoughts, grave and gay, in choice language...make at least a hundred...letters worth preserving as choice specimens of letter-writing apart altogether from their personal interest." Athenæum, 1883.

CARLYLE, Thomas.

Early letters, 1814-1826; ed. by C. E. Norton. 1886.....92 C214e
"Mr. Norton is one of the many outsiders to whom 'the view of Mr. Carlyle's character presented in Mr. Froude's biography has not approved itself,' and he endeavors to correct that view by printing selections from the letters written by Carlyle himself." Athenæum, 1886.

Letters of Carlyle to his youngest sister; ed. by C. T. Copeland. 1899.....92 C214I

The letters printed in this volume were mainly written by Thomas Carlyle to his youngest sister, Mrs Robert Hanning, who died in Toronto Dec. 13, 1897. Other members of the family are represented in the correspondence; there are a few letters—these perhaps the most interesting—from Carlyle to his mother; a few, also, from the mother to her oldest and to her youngest child. The collection extends from 1832 to 1890. Mr Copeland's introductory essay is on "Carlyle as a letter-writer."

CARLYLE, Thomas, & Emerson, R. W.

Correspondence. 2v. 1888.....92 C214

"Not so much a correspondence in any true intellectual sense as a deliberate exchange of monologues...Emerson's nature, on the whole, comes out of this correspondence the more disinterested, saner, and wiser, though not the stronger and grander of the two." Spectator, 1883.

Mary Carpenter (1807-77) was one of the founders of reformatory and industrial schools in England. She was also much interested in the education of the women of India.

"The book might have had a keener interest if it had been more varied in its treatment; but in Mary Carpenter herself we shall look in vain for variety. Her strength lay in a single purpose, carried out through a long life with single-minded persistence." Saturday review, 1880.

"Although associated with almost every public event from 1770 to 1800 Carroll habitually destroyed his correspondence. Hence this, his only worthy biography [1902], finds its material largely in official records, publications of the Maryland Historical Society, the journal of William Maclay, and a few unpublished family letters. It is a mixture of his public and private life, but especially a Carroll family book." Larned's Literature of American history.

CELLINI, Benvenuto.

Life; newly tr. into English by J. A. Symonds. 1899.....92 C315l

Contains an introduction by Symonds which gives a good character sketch of Cellini.

"Those who have made themselves thoroughly familiar with Cellini's Memoirs possess the substance of that many-sided epoch [the 16th century] in the form of an epitome. It is the first book which a student of the Italian Renaissance should handle in order to obtain the right direction for his more minute researches... From the pages of this book the Genius of the Renaissance, incarnate in a single personality, leans forth and speaks to us. He was the first goldsmith of his time, an adequate sculptor, a restless traveller, an indefatigable workman, a Bohemian of the purest water, a turbulent bravo, a courtier and companion of princes; finally, a Florentine who used his native idiom with incomparable vivacity of style." J. A. Symonds.

"One of the most interesting and valuable autobiographies ever written. The author was contemporaneous with Raphael and Michael Angelo, and was the most skilful worker in metals in that age of artists. It was while he was engaged in the varied labors of his craft that he dictated this fascinating work. The variety of its incidents, the minuteness of its descriptions, the pictures of the people, and of the manners of the time, and, above all, the view it affords of the life of one of the most powerful characters of the age, give it at once the charm of romance and the value of a record of contemporaneous events." C. K. Adams.

Longueville, Thomas. Chisel, pen & poignard; or, Benvenuto Cellini; his times and his contemporaries. 1899..92 C315lt
By the author of "The life of Sir Kenelm Digby."

Interesting and amusing but very condensed account, dealing only slightly with his art.

CERVANTES SAAVEDRA, Miguel de.

Kelly, James Fitzmaurice-. Life of Cervantes. 1892....92 C334k

Bibliography of the works of Cervantes, p.321-384.

Mr Fitzmaurice-Kelly has a great enthusiasm for the author of Don Quixote, and criticizes his writings with literary judgment, but his book will be more interesting to the student of Spanish literature than to the general reader.

Mayans y Siscar, Gregorio. Life of Michael de Cervantes

Saavedra; tr. fr. the Spanish by Mr Ozell. 1738....qr92 C334m

Contains a number of prints illustrating Don Quixote.

One of the four biographies of the famous Spanish novelist, author of Don Quixote, mentioned in Ticknor's "History of Spanish literature." He characterizes it as a "work of learning, and the first proper attempt to collect materials for a life of Cervantes, but ill-arranged and ill-written, and of little value now, except for some of its incidental discussions."

Oliphant, Mrs Margaret Oliphant (Wilson). Cervantes.

[1880.]92 C334o

"The biographical part has all the charm and dramatic colour of a novel...The purely literary and critical portion is less happy." Saturday review, 1881.

Watts, Henry Edward. Life of Miguel de Cervantes.

1891. (Great writers.).....92 C334w

Bibliography, apx. p.1-23.

A rearrangement of a larger work by the same author, omitting much matter intended for Spanish students, and adding criticism and literary history more interesting to the general reader.

An itinerant preacher of the Society of Friends. He visited the American colonies in 1698, 1700, 1710, and a few years before his death established a residence near Philadelphia.

CHALMERS, Thomas.

Blaikie, William Garden. Thomas Chalmers. 1896.

(Famous Scots series.).....92 C353b

"Looking at the influence of Chalmers on the religious thought and life of Scotland generally, we may say that he let in daylight and fresh air on the evangelical enclosures of the church...With broad, statesman-like view he was seen to have apprehended the evils of modern society, to have detected the remedy, and girded himself, in all his strength, to apply it." Dictionary of national biography.

CHAMBERLAIN, Joseph.

Jeyes, Samuel Henry. Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain.

(Public men of to-day.).....92 C355j

Brief account of the public career of "the best abused man in England," to quote Mr Chamberlain's own description of his position in public life.

The last chapter, "Mr Chamberlain the imperialist," includes a brief account of Dr Jameson's expedition in the Transvaal.

CHAMBERS, George.

Sharpe, John McDowell. Memoir of George Chambers of Chambersburg. 1873.....r92 C355s

Read before the Historical society of Pennsylvania, Feb. 17th, 1873.

Eminent Pennsylvania jurist, member of the convention that formed the present constitution of Pennsylvania, was made a judge of the supreme court of his state in 1851. A manuscript history of a considerable portion of Pennsylvania, which he had written for the Pennsylvania historical society was destroyed when the Confederates burned Chambersburg in 1864.

CHAMPLAIN, Samuel de.

Sedgwick, Henry Dwight. Samuel de Champlain. 1902..92 C358s

Being written for young people the biography does not refer to original sources or discuss at length questions of policy. It dwells particularly on Champlain's life in France and presents his nobility of character.

Davis, Henry William Carless. Charlemagne, the hero of two nations. 1900. (Heroes of the nations.).....92 C374d

"I have endeavored to give some idea of the first western Emperor's personality and influence upon European history. I have limited myself, in dealing with institutions and social and literary developments, to those facts which seemed to throw light on his career. I have throughout based my narrative on a study of the chronicles, diplomata, and literature of the period." Preface.

Eginhard (770-840?) was minister of public works and councillor to Charlemagne as well as his private secretary.

Hodgkin, Thomas. Charles the Great. 1897. (Foreign statesmen.).....92 C374h

The author prefaces his history of Charlemagne by a study of his predecessors and the conditions of the time, and in the last chapter gives a brief summary of the effect of his rule on the political condition of Europe, on literature, on laws and on the western church.

Mombert, Jacob Isidor. History of Charles the Great.

1888.92 C374m

"As a record of events...an admirable piece of work. Scarcely a single fact has escaped his notice, and he has entered far more minutely into several of the affairs of Charles's reign than any other historian who has written in English...He has not attempted to define the place which his hero holds in the history of the world, or to trace the effects of his conquests and general policy on the fortunes of the peoples included in his Empire." Saturday review, 1889.

Disraeli, Isaac. Commentaries on the life and reign of Charles I, king of England. 2v. 1851.....92 C3752d

"Disraeli's point of view is that of a High Tory, and it is probably the most powerful plea ever made in behalf of Charles I. But, notwithstanding the ardor of its advocacy, it is temperate in language and dignified in tone. The greatest value of the volumes is not so much in the new evidence brought to light, though new evidence is not wanting, as in the ingenuity with which known facts are woven into the argument and made to support his cause." *C. CHARLES I, king of Roumania.

Whitman, Sidney, ed. Reminiscences of the king of Roumania; ed. fr. the original. 1899.....92 C3754w

"Mr. Whitman is justified in claiming to introduce 'a piece of work which a politician must consult unless he is to remain in the dark concerning much of moment in the political history of the Eastern question'...The book is carelessly edited, and abominably indexed, but it deserves to be read for its...pleasant anecdotes and interesting sidelights on characters of European celebrity...It will remain an important book of reference and...affords us a graphic account of the romantic career of an essentially unromantic personage." Saturday review, 1899.

English poet, famous for his precocity and for his literary impostures, committed suicide in 1770 at the age of 17.
"There is little, if anything, of permanent value in his writings. In one way, however, he showed an acuteness which may, perhaps, be fairly called marvellous. He showed an instinctive knowledge—remarkable in one so young—of the kind of intellectual food for which a demand was springing up in the country. His forgeries illustrate, as they no doubt stimulated, the growing taste for ancient literature." Stephen's English thought in the eighteenth century.

- Davidson, James Leigh Strachan. Cicero and the fall of the Roman republic. 1891. (Heroes of the nations). .92 C475d
 "The author has thought for himself, and draws his own picture of Cicero and his times without making either a servile copy from other authorities or a fantastic caricature in defiance of them. . . Especially worthy of commendation is the clear statement of the relations of the different orders in the later Commonwealths." Nation, 1894.

- Trollope, Anthony. Life of Cicero. 2v. [1881.].....92 C475t
 "An exceedingly vivid portrayal of the life of the great orator. No one of the numerous biographers of Cicero has succeeded so completely in transplanting him and his surroundings into our own days... While Mommsen, Froude, Merivale, and others have looked at the condition and the necessities of the State, and have censured Cicero for not comprehending the nature of the situation, Trollope had studied the problem with a view to ascertaining and showing how it must have appeared to Cicero himself. Thus the volumes become very largely a personal rather than a political life." C. K. Adams.

Cobbett (1762-1835) was an English essayist, politician and agriculturist.

"Cobbett if not an attractive character, is a very interesting one, and the active part taken by him in all the public events and controversies of an important period makes him well worth knowing to all who are students of that period. For this purpose Mr. Waters's life is well suited...He has had the good sense, too, to let Cobbett tell his own story for the most part, an easy thing in so voluminous and egotistical a writer, and a very desirable thing in a writer so racy and entertaining." Nation, 1883.

 an intrepid frontiersman and a famous exhibitor. This biography is written by his sister and from the standpoint of hero-worship.

COFFIN, Charles Carleton.

Griffis, William Elliot. Charles Carleton Coffin, war correspondent, traveller, author and statesman. 1898....92 C662g Well-known, particularly in New England, as correspondent for many years, beginning early in the Civil war, of the "Boston journal."

COFFIN, Levi.

Reminiscences; history of the labors of a lifetime in behalf of the slave, with stories of fugitives who gained their freedom through his instrumentality. 1880.....r92 C663
 "Coffin was a member of the Society of Friends; resided in youth in North Carolina; and removed in early manhood (1822) to Indiana.
 Successful in business he devoted time and money to the help of escaping slaves,—several thousand, it is estimated in number. Because of his activity he was termed by some the president of the underground railroad. This volume...is a simple but thrilling record of the escapes with which the author was associated. It is one of the few books on the subject, and...is likely to remain a principal authority."

 Memoirs and letters; ed. by her daughter. 1875.....92 C6882
 Mrs Coleridge (1802-52) was the daughter of the poet Coleridge, and herself a poet.
 "The unanimous testimony of her friends represents her as an almost perfect woman, uniting masculine strength of intellect to feminine grace and charm. This favourable judgment is confirmed in both its branches by the correspondence published by her daughter in 1873, though a considerable part of it is occupied with references to contemporary theological controversies." Dictionary of national biography.

Letters; ed. with introduction by W. Benham. 1899.....92 C849l
"Two men of mark in English literature, Southey and Alexander Smith, have called Cowper 'the best of English letter-writers,' and few will be found to challenge this opinion. The charm of Cowper's letters, like that of his poetry, lies first of all in his naturalness and sincerity.
He writes simply because he had something to say, or because he loves his correspondent, and has no idea of posing for effect...His letters, then, are the simple statement of whatever he has in his mind; written in pure and beautiful English; full of the information and refined taste of a well-read man; overflowing now with humour, now with deep religious feeling." Introduction.

CRISPI, Francesco.

Stillman, William James. Francesco Crispi, insurgent, exile, revolutionist and statesman. 1899.....92 C884s Author was special correspondent of the London Times from 1876 to 1898. Crispi is pictured as one of the greatest of Italian statesmen, second only to Cavour among the makers of Italy.

"We take leave of this work with a feeling that few critics have the right to meet Mr. Stillman on a ground, every inch of which he knows so well, and yet, at the same time, with a doubt whether Signor Crispi is the great Italian hero he appears in these pages." Spectator, 1899.

The same. 1895.....r92 C892c

The same. 1899.....r92 C892c2

Finding the existing historical treatment of Cromwell typified by the extreme severity of Hume, or the equally unfair hero-worship of Carlyle, Mr Church began a serious study of the man and his time, and the result is this book, which he does not consider a biography, but "as an adequate narrative which aims to present, with sufficient detail, the formation of the Commonwealth and its strange paradox of the permanent establishment of civil and religious liberty through a Dictator who respected no law, in working out England's salvation, but the law of necessity; and this for a nation whose fortunes are happily and inseparably linked with the forms of popular monarchy."

Firth, Charles Harding. Oliver Cromwell and the rule of the Puritans in England. 1900. (Heroes of the nations.)92 C892f

While based on an article contributed by the author to the "Dictionary of national biography" in 1888, this life embodies the result of later researches and of recently discovered documents such as the Clarke papers. The battle plans have been specially drawn for this volume by B. V. Darbishire and in two cases differ considerably from those generally accepted as correct.

Gardiner, Samuel Rawson. Oliver Cromwell. 1899....q92 C892g

"A cautious, moderate and unpartisan estimate...A truly marvellous picture of Cromwell." Spectator, 1899.

"From a literary point of view, Mr. Gardiner has never done anything so good. As an artistic whole, the arrangement, the subordination of details to the general effect, the breadth and skill of the treatment, are worthy of a great historian." Literature, 1899.

Appeared in the "Century magazine," v.59-60, Nov. 1899-Oct. 1900.

"Not a biography, but an 'appreciation' of the Protector...Mr. Morley...unites the character of the man of letters...with the character of a statesman who has played a leading part in English public life...The book does not...explain the paradox of Puritanism...It does not give a picture of Cromwell, but it suggests peculiarities in his character which go far to explain his failure in every attempt to construct a system which should outlast his own life." Nation, 1901.

Paterson, Arthur Henry. Oliver Cromwell; his life and character. 1899.....92 C892pa

"The object of this book is to give a narrative of the personal life, aims, and motives of this great Englishman; any history of the time has been studiously avoided. Cromwell, and Cromwell alone, with what Cromwell did, and tried to do, and was—this is the theme." Preface.

"Mr. Paterson, though...a devotee of Cromwell, yet writes like a man who has first weighed the evidence pro and con." Spectator, 1899.

- Picton, James Allanson. Oliver Cromwell; the man and his mission. 1889.....92 C892p
 "Mr. Picton has succeeded in drawing a life-like portrait of the liberal-minded despot, and has clearly brought out the ideas, religious and political, that influenced him," Athenaeum, 1883.
 "The best biography of Cromwell." Fiske's Beginnings of New England, 1889.
- Roosevelt, Theodore. Oliver Cromwell. 1900.....92 C892r Appeared in "Scribner's magazine," v.27, Jan.-June 1900.
 Written with special reference to the birth of English liberty and its relation to the growth of American liberty and institutions. Illustrated with portraits, facsimiles, documents and memorabilia from the best English collections.
- Tangye, Sir Richard. The two protectors, Oliver and Richard Cromwell. 1899.....92 C892t Authorities consulted, p.16.
 "Of no little interest to all lovers of Cromwell, and to all students of the Commonwealth period. It is not a history or Life of Cromwell or his son, but rather a series of reproductions of Cromwell pictures and Cromwell relics with a certain amount of explanatory comment. Sir Richard Tangye appears to have a large and valuable collection of pictures and other objects connected with the Protector, and it is from his own collection that most of these pictures are drawn." Spectator, 1899.
- CROMWELL, Richard.
 Guizot, François Pierre Guillaume. History of Richard Cromwell and the restoration of Charles II. 2v. 1856..92 C8922g
 "A philosophical study rather than a history...Chief value lies in the mass of illustrative letters printed in the Appendices. Considerably more than half the work is filled with these letters, drawn from foreign archives, and some of them are of extreme importance...Cardinal Mazarin was one of the coolest and cleverest of the many spectators of events in England, and the letters of his diplomatic agent, M. de Bordeaux, are deeply interesting." Athenaeum, 1856.
- CROSS, Mrs Mary Ann (Evans). See ELIOT, George, pseud.
- CROWE, Sir Joseph Archer.
 Reminiscences of thirty-five years of my life. 1895.....92 C896
 An account of his life to the time when he entered the public service, and a most interesting life it was, passed by turns in London, on the continent, in India. He was war correspondent on the Danube in '54, in the Crimea, in Bombay during the mutiny, in the Franco-Austrian war in '59. Not the least interesting part of the book is his account of the circumstances under which he wrote in collaboration with Cavalcaselle the history of the early Flemish painters.
- CROZIER, John Beattie.
 My inner life; a chapter in personal evolution and autobiography. 1898.....92 C8962
 "Mr. Crozier is known to English readers as one of the most versatile and original thinkers of the day, and there is nothing which he is disposed to say which is not, at least, interesting and suggestive. This work...is a curious blend of biography, incident, and inward growth, together with much acute criticism on the history of philosophy, and on some of the leading writers of our time. The object of the work is to reveal the various forces which played on an exceedingly active and serious mind." Spectator, 1899.
- CRUIKSHANK, George.
 Jerrold, William Blanchard. Life of George Cruikshank, in two epochs. 2v. 1882.....92 C897j
 English caricaturist and artist (1792-1878). This biography is written largely from personal knowledge and reminiscences of friends. The two epochs are those of Cruikshank's early conviviality and his later devotion to the cause of total abstinence.

CUNNINGHAM, William, of Fitchburg, Mass., & Adams,
John, 1735-1826.

Correspondence, beginning in 1803 and ending in 1812.

1823.qr92 A214

Written by the ex-president to a relative shortly after being defeated for re-election. They were under the seal of the strictest confidence and dealt with the chief actors and events in the latter part of his public life. They were vehement, abusive and unjust. Mr C. F. Adams says that an heir of Cunningham gave them to the opponents of John Quincy Adams to be used against him when he was a candidate for the presidency. It was a great mistake upon Adams's part that he wrote them and a grave misfortune that they were published, even though dishonorably and many years afterward.

CURRAN, John Philpot.

Curran, William Henry. Life of John Philpot Curran.

1855.92 C931c

Irish patriot and orator (1750-1817). His wit and conversational powers were so brilliant that they almost eclipsed his reputation as an advocate and statesman.

The editor of this American edition of his Life by his son has introduced a large quantity of new matter relating principally to his legislative and personal life.

CURTIN, Andrew Gregg.

Egle, William Henry, ed. Andrew Gregg Curtin; his life and services. 1895.....92 C932e

Andrew Curtin (1815-94) was the famous "war governor of Pennsylvania." This biography consists of independent chapters on different periods and phases of Curtin's life, written by men closely associated with him.

Honors to Andrew Gregg Curtin. 1869.....qr92 C932

Account of a reception and dinner given by citizens of Philadelphia to Gov. Curtin on his departure for Russia.

G. Curtin; an address delivered in the House of representatives at Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 20, 1895. 1895.....92 C932m

Col. McClure was Gov. Curtin's intimate friend and associate during the most eventful period of his life.

CURTIS, George William.

Early letters to John S. Dwight; Brook Farm and Con- cord; ed. by G. W. Cooke. 1898.....92 C934

"Mr. Cooke has studied Emerson and others of the Concord set so carefully that he is well prepared to edit the letters which he now presents to us...Taken in their entirety, the letters are a fine disclosure of the working of Transcendentalism in a singularly ardent and ingenuous youth." Nation, 1898.

Cary, Edward. George William Curtis. 1895. (American men of letters.).....92 C934c

The author being himself a political journalist his comment and criticism on Mr Curtis's connection with "Harper's weekly," with civil service reform, with state and national politics is particularly valuable, while his judgments of the purely literary work are frank and discriminating. Of Mr Curtis's more personal and private life Mr Cary has written briefly, but with excellent taste.

"Taking his book as a whole, those must have known Mr. Curtis extremely long and well whose good opinion of him is not enhanced by this entirely simple and sincere portrayal of his character and career." Nation, 1895.

The same. 1895.....j92 C944ct
 Military life in Texas and Kansas during the two years immediately following the Civil war.
 "The book is not meant to be a mere chronicle of the small beer of domestic pleasures and trouble and nothing more...Its public value consists in its presentation of the constant trials and privations, as well as of more heroic adventures, that befell the troops when 'there was no wild clamor of war to enable them to forget the absence of the commonest necessities of existence.'" Nation, 1888.
- CUTHBERTSON, John.
 Biographical sketch of John Cuthbertson, the first Reformed Presbyterian minister in America, 1751-1791.
 [Anonymous.] 1878.....92 C948b
 For many years after coming over from Scotland in 1751, Mr Cuthbertson did missionary duty in various parts of Pennsylvania, though his principal congregations were at Octoraro, Lancaster county, and Lower Chanceford, York county. The facts of this work are taken from his diary and from details given by old people in the places where he worked.
- CUTLER, Ephraim.
 Life and times; prepared from his journals and correspondence. 1890.....r92 C949i Contains a biographical sketch of W. P. Cutler.
 Ephraim Cutler (1767-1853) was the son of Manasseh Cutler of the "Ohio company" and naturally turned westward with the other early emigrants. He rendered important service in the convention that framed the Ohio state constitution, and in the territorial legislature, and led the hard life of a frontiersman. The book contains also a short memoir of Jervis Cutler, one of Putnam's band of pioneers who began the settlement of Ohio in 1788.

CUTLER, Manasseh.

Life, journals and correspondence; ed. by W. P. and J. P.

Cutler. 2v. 1888.....r92 C949

"Most complete account ever published of the beginnings of the colonial system of the United States, in the first settlement and civil organization of the region beyond the Ohio river, grouped around the personality of one of the most prominent actors in the events themselves." Larned's Literature of American history.

CUVIER, Georges Léopold Chrétien Frédéric Dagobert, baron.

Lee, Mrs Sarah (Wallis) Bowdich. Memoirs of Baron

Cuvier. 1833.....92 C957l

Author and her husband, who wrote an "Introduction to the Ornithology of Cuvier," were in daily intercourse with him and his family in Paris for several years, and warm friends for many more. She speaks not only of his work as a naturalist and legislator, but also of his private and family life.

Mr Dabney (1808-86) lived most of his life in Mississippi.

"Intensely interesting, vivid, and valuable as a portraiture of a southern planter of wealth and intelligence, who treated his slaves with patriarchal dignity and affection...Mr. Dabney lost nearly everything during the Rebellion, and the volume gives an account of the deprivations undergone during this period...Of great importance, not merely as a biography, but as a contribution to social history." Larned's Literature of American history.

Written from personal knowledge and Dalton's correspondence and scientific journals, by one of his executors.

- Roscoe, Sir Henry Enfield. John Dalton and the rise of modern chemistry. 1895. (Century science series.)...92 D175r Short but fairly complete account of the author of the atomic theory.
- DAMPIER, William.
Russell, William Clark. William Dampier. 1894. (English men of action.)...92 D189r
Dampier (1652-1715) was buccaneer, pirate, circumnavigator, captain in the English navy, and an excellent hydrographer with a remarkable talent for observing and describing natural phenomena. This short sketch gives a good account of his voyages, but is less successful as a biography.
- DANA, James Dwight.
Gilman, Daniel Coit. Life of James Dwight Dana, scientific explorer, mineralogist, geologist, professor in Yale university. 1899.....92 D194g
Bibliography, p.385-394.
"In preparing the biography, which is personal rather than scientific, the subject of it is his own interpreter, and wherever his language could be introduced, or that of his correspondents, I have preferred to quote rather than to condense or rewrite what they have said."
Preface.
- DANA, Richard Henry, 1815-82.
Adams, Charles Francis, b. 1835. Richard Henry Dana.
2v. 1891.....92 D195a
Biography of the man best known as the author of "Two years before the mast," though he was also an authority on maritime law, and prominent in the defense of the fugitive slaves. Two-thirds of the book is autobiography, a large part of that a diary as interesting as his famous book.
- DANICAN, François André. See PHILIDOR, François

Earliest lives of Dante; tr. fr. the Italian by J. R. Smith.
1901. (Yale studies in English, v.10.).....92 D237b
Of the biography by Boccaccio, Scartazzini in his "Companion to Dante" says: "Though doubtless well intended and a fine monument of literature, valuable too, indeed indispensable, for the historic study of Dante, [it] has to be used with the greatest caution." The same author says of Bruni's work: "One of the most important among the old biographies of Dante, and his statements always deserve to be taken into consideration."
- Browning, Oscar. Dante; his life and writings. 1891....92 D237b Expanded from an article in the "Encyclopædia Britannica." Gives a short account of Dante's life and work without detailed criticisms. Useful as an introduction to the study of Dante.
- Plumptre, Edward Hayes, dean. Life of Dante; ed. by A.
J. Butler. 1900.....92 D237p
New edition of the work which appeared in 1886, the editor having pruned, he says, "a little of the somewhat exuberant conjecture in which the Dean, after the fashion of an earlier school of biographers, was apt to indulge." In spite of this tendency, the book has both value and interest and the advantage of compactness, covering less than 250 small pages of good-sized print.
- Toynbee, Paget. Dante Alighieri. 1900.....92 D237t
"For the general reader; controversial points are for the most part avoided...Mr. Toynbee...has given a certain originality...to his handling of the well-worn subject by making his little book very largely an avowed compilation." Athenæum, 1901.
- Ward, Mrs May (Alden). Dante; a sketch of his life and works. 1887.....92 D237w

Beesly, Augustus Henry. Life of Danton. 1899.....92 D238be
 Authorities, p.7-8.

"Distinctly apologetic from beginning to end...He shows a wide familiarity with French researches, but he has apparently paid little attention to the documentary sources of information." Dial, 1899.

Belloc, Hilaire. Danton; a study. 1899.....92 D238b

The first biography in English of the great French revolutionary leader, founded on original documents. Mr Belloc, late scholar of Balliol college, Oxford, deals only with known facts—facts that may be proved; he has painted a vivid and true picture of Danton and described the character of the period in which he was a central figure. An appendix supplements the narrative, embodying much collateral information.

with a preliminary notice by Charles Darwin. 1880..92 D2681k

"The permanent interest in his writings depends on his exposition of the form of evolutionism afterwards expounded by Lamarck. He caught a glimpse of many observations and principles, afterwards turned to account by his grandson, Charles Darwin; but, though a great observer and an acute thinker, he missed the characteristic doctrine which made the success of his grandson's scheme." Dictionary of national biography.

"To read Trente Ans de Paris is not reading in the ordinary sense of the word. It is spending a couple of hours with Daudet, who takes the reader out of himself, shows him Paris, and describes his own life

- there with that mixture of pathos and humour which is so characteristic of the great French artist." Nineteenth century, 1890.
- Daudet, Léon. Alphonse Daudet, to which is added The Daudet family, "Mon frère et moi," by Ernest Daudet. 1898.92 D284d
This memoir of the great French writer by his son, shows Daudet's charming personality and the general trend of his thought, and throws much light on his literary aims and methods. An appendix contains a conversation "concerning the imagination" between father and son and an interesting account of their early life by Daudet's brother.

Saintsbury, George. Earl of Derby. 1892. (Prime ministers of Queen Victoria.).....92 D443s British Tory statesman of the middle 19th century, premier in 1852, 1858-59 and 1866-68.

"A forcible, compact, yet, space considered, fairly thorough review, from the Tory standpoint, of Lord Derby's public career, with the due infusion of characteristic anecdote and personal detail...He sketches rapidly and sympathetically...the salient events of Lord Derby's political life, his part in fighting the Reform Question, his attitude towards the Corn Law agitation, his first, second and third ministries...Lord Derby's connection with the turf is not forgotten." Dial, 1892.

DESCARTES, René.

Mahaffy, John Pentland. Descartes. 1894.....92 D456m

Account of his life with an estimate of his writings.

DES ÉCHEROLLES, Alexandrine.

Side lights on the Reign of terror; memoirs; tr. fr. the French by M. C. Balfour. 1900.....92 D458

"It is a tale of personal vicissitude, wholly devoid of political character or literary association, and dependent for its success on the ingredients of peril and unexpected escape...The siege of Lyons is an episode of some moment in the history of the Revolution, and it fills the chief place among the historical events which are described by Mlle. des Écherolles. After the troops of the Convention had entered the conquered city M. des Écherolles was condemned, and escaped only after he had survived some remarkable dangers...Her reminiscences create a pleasant impression by their simplicity of tone, while the amount of domestic detail which they furnish places them in the class of historical materials." Nation, 1900.

DESMOULINS, Camille.

Claretie, Arsène Arnaud, called Jules. Camille Desmoulins and his wife; passages from the history of the Danton-

ists. 1876.....r92 D468c

"No man in himself ever personified the people better than did Camille Desmoulins [1760-94]... He not only aped the people, he was the people himself. His newspapers cried in the public streets, and their sarcasm, bandied from mouth to mouth, has not been swept away with the other impurities of the day... It was the popular chorus which led the people to their most important movements." Lamarine's Girondists.

DE SOTO, Hernando. See SOTO, Hernando de.

DE VERE, Aubrey Thomas.

Recollections. 1897.....r92 D487

Contains a chapter on Cardinal Newman and one on Cardinal Manning. "Recollections" and "Autobiographies" are very different things; and this book belongs to the former class, not to the latter. We have seen persons and places which have amused or interested us, and it occurs to us that if accurately described they might amuse or interest others also; but this is a very different thing from writing one's biography, with which the world has little concern." Preface.

DEWEES, Samuel.

History of his life and services; comp. by J. S. Hanna.

1844.r92 D513

A Pennsylvanian who served during the Revolution and the War of 1812. Of interest for its local history.

DEWEY, Admiral George.

Barrett, John. Admiral George Dewey; a sketch of the man. 1899.....r92 D514b

Most of the book is given to his career at Manila, May 1898 to May 1899. Author was war correspondent there.

Dewey, Adelbert Milton. Life and letters of Admiral Dewey, from Montpelier to Manila, containing reproductions in fac-simile of hitherto unpublished letters during his naval career and extracts from his log-book.

1899.q92 D514d

Very detailed biography. Many illustrations.

DIANE de POITIERS.

Hay, Marie. Madame Dame Dianne de Poytiers, la grande seneschale de Normandie, duchesse de Valentinois; a monograph. 1900.....qr92 D537h

A brief and interesting biography of this famous woman of the French court, who lived during the first half of the 16th century (1499-1566) and who exercised so great an influence on court and king (Henry II).

Among the numerous and fine illustrations those of the 16th century bookbindings are perhaps the most interesting.

DIBDIN, Thomas John.

Reminiscences. 2v. in 1. 1828.....r92 D541

English actor and dramatist (1771-1841).

"Though necessarily egotistical and devoted to theatrical recollections, [are] lively and amusing, full of interesting anecdotes of old companions." Dictionary of national biography.

DICK, Robert.

Smiles, Samuel. Robert Dick, baker of Thurso, geologist and botanist. 1878.....r92 D549s Life and scientific work of a poor Scottish baker (1811-66). Illustrated.

DICKENS, Charles.

- Collection of letters. 1889.....92 D551
 Small collection, much condensed from the larger volume of letters (92 D551) and with the connecting narrative also omitted.
- Letters, 1833-1870. 1893.....92 D551
 Date from 1833, just before the starting of the "Pickwick papers," to the day before his death in 1870. A slight thread of narrative introduces the letters of each year.
- Dickens, Mamie. My father as I recall him. [1897.]....92 D551d Informal portrayal of the great novelist's gay and affectionate nature in his own home.
- Forster, John. Life of Charles Dickens. 1893.....92 D551f
The same. 2v. 1889.....r92 D551f Gadshill edition.
- The same*; abridged and revised by George Gissing. 1903..92 D551f2
 This biography by Dickens's intimate friend and literary executor is the chief authority and source of information concerning his life and writings.
- Marzials, Sir Frank Thomas. Life of Charles Dickens. 1887. (Great writers.).....92 D551m Bibliography, by J. P. Anderson, apx. p.1-33.
 Short popular biography with some history and criticism of each of the more important works.
- Pemberton, T. Edgar. Charles Dickens and the stage; a record of his connection with the drama as playwright, actor and critic. 1888.....92 D551p
- Perkins, Frederic Beecher. Charles Dickens; a sketch of his life and works. 1870.....r92 D551p Short biography with little criticism of his works.
- Ward, Adolphus William. Dickens. [1882.] (English men of letters.).....92 D551w Short biography.

DICKINSON, Emily.

- Letters. 2v. 1894.....92 D553
 Extend from 1845 to the author's death in 1886.
 "These letters cannot fail to arouse sharp differences of opinion, but also they cannot fail to arouse interest. They are an important contribution to our collection of human documents...They deepen the impression made by Miss Dickinson's poems, and they afford material for the study of an extraordinary style." Nation, 1894.

The same. 1891. (In Pennsylvania historical society. Memoirs, v.13.).....r974.8 P39 v.13
 "Careful and thorough biography by a competent scholar." Larned's Literature of American history.

DIDEROT, Denis.

- Morley, John. Diderot and the encyclopædists. 2v. 1886-91.92 D562m
 "The biography of the chief founder and conductor of the Encyclopædia is not, in Mr. Morley's hands, a mere peg on which to hang a dissertation, but is set before us as an example of what Encyclopædists were. Treated in this way, the life of Diderot has a value which it could not have otherwise." Saturday review, 1878.

DIGBY, Sir Kenelm.

- Longueville, Thomas. Life of Sir Kenelm Digby, by one of his descendants. 1896.....92 D5771
 "Were it for nothing else than the picturesqueness and versatility of the man, Kenelm Digby would have been a notable figure at the court of King Charles. He had laid it out for himself to combine the roles in life of the philosopher, the fine gentleman, and the man of affairs, and he attacked his difficult problem with astonishing audacity, and on the whole, astonishing success... His life is pretty reading and we are in debt to the descendant signing himself, T. L., who has put it together for us." Academy, 1896.

DINGELSTEDT, Franz von.

Münchener bilderbogen. 1879.....92 D613

Dingelstedt (1814-81) was a German poet and dramatist, and stage director of the National theatre at Munich. His autobiography relates to his Munich experiences.

DIX, Dorothea Lynde.

Tiffany, Francis. Life of Dorothea Lynde Dix. 1892....92 D647t

The life of Dorothea Dix was devoted to work in behalf of paupers, prisoners and the insane. Her campaigns for reform won almost single-handed, her victories over the ignorance and indifference of legislatures, at home and abroad, form an unusually interesting story.

DOLET, Étienne.

Christie, Richard Copley. Étienne Dolet, the martyr of the renaissance, 1508-1546. 1899.....92 D694c

List of books written or published by Dolet, p.513-553.

First edition appeared in 1880.

"Such memory of Dolet as survives is the exclusive possession of the bibliophile or the scholar. To the former he is known as one of those erudite printers who have placed Lyons in typographical art by the side of Venice or Florence, or in subsequent times Amsterdam. The latter has gleaned some scanty particulars concerning one who was the friend and the publisher of Marot and Rabelais, the pupil of Villanovanus, the ally of Bonaventure Despériers, the opponent of Erasmus, and the antagonist of Scaliger... It is pleasant to think that an Englishman has been the first to drag to light such particulars concerning Dolet as may yet be found, and to supply a biography that must rank as adequate." Athenæum, 1880.

DOMINIC, St. called de Guzman.

Herkless, John. Francis and Dominic and the mendicant orders. 1901. (World's epoch-makers.).....92 F866h "Literature," p.227-230.

Short sketches of St. Francis and St. Dominic, followed by an historical account of the founding of the mendicant orders, particularly the Franciscans and the Dominicans.

DON JOHN of Austria. See JOHN of AUSTRIA, don.

DONATELLO, Donato di Betto Bardi, called. See Artists, p.1206, 1207.

DONNE, John.

Gosse, Edmund William. Life and letters of John Donne, dean of St. Paul's. 2v. 1899.....92 D728g

"Mr. Gosse's subtle and solid study of John Donne justifies expectation... It is a brilliant portrait: it is also a laborious and exact work of literary history... Apart from Walton... Mr. Gosse has found his chief mine of biographical matter in Donne's own works—the poems, so far as they can be dated, and the letters... These [letters] have been digested, set as far as possible in chronological order, and incorporated in the text of the compiler's narrative." Athenæum, 1899.

Jessopp, Augustus. John Donne, sometime dean of St.

Paul's, 1621-1631. 1897.....92 D728je

"It will not have been Dr. Jessopp's fault if the world does not begin to understand Donne's greatness as a preacher and a Churchman... Dr. Jessopp is an enthusiast, a Donne worshipper; but even if he does not always persuade us to take quite his view, he never fails to make his subject attractive." Spectator, 1897.

DORA, Sister. See PATTISON, Dorothy Wyndlow.

DORÉ, Gustave.

- Jerrold, William Blanchard. Life of Gustave Doré. 1891...92 D737j
 Biography and study of his work by an intimate friend and co-worker.
 Many illustrations chiefly from unpublished sketches.

DOUGLAS, Stephen Arnold.

- Brown, William Garrott. Stephen Arnold Douglas. 1902...92 D759b
 "Notable as a recognition of the great part that Douglas really played
 ...The criticism that suggests itself respects the scope rather than the form of the book. It is too mature for younger readers and too meager for older ones." American historical review, 1903.
- Sheahan, James W. Life of Stephen A. Douglas. 1860....92 D759s Extremely eulogistic sketch written to secure for him the presidential nomination of 1860.

DOUGLASS, Frederick.

- Life and times, written by himself. 1893.....92 D761
 "Highly interesting and instructive narrative. The account of slavery as it appeared to a slave is invaluable, and no other single source gives us such a strong and effective picture." Larned's Literature of American history.
- Chesnutt, Charles Waddell. Frederick Douglass. 1899.
 (Beacon biographies of eminent Americans.).....92 D761c
 Bibliography, p.136-141.
 Short sketch.

DOUGLASS, Sir James Nicholas.

- Williams, Thomas, civil engineer. Life of Sir James Nicholas Douglass, formerly engineer-in-chief to the Trinity house. 1900.....92 D7612w
 "For thirty years his life was a continuous record of lighthouse erection, design, and improvement, not only on the English coast, but also on the Great and Little Basses reefs...The Eddystone Lighthouse...has always been regarded as the chief monument of his engineering skill."
Athenæum, 1900.

DOW, Lorenzo.

- History of Cosmopolite; experience and travels in Europe and America, also polemic writings, to which is added the Journey of life, by Peggy Dow. 1850.....92 D767 Methodist minister (1777-1834) who preached in New England and the South, and visited Ireland feeling a divine call to preach to the Catholics, and England, where he introduced camp-meetings, and was the means of the organization of the sect of the Primitive Methodists.

DOW, Neal.

- Reminiscences; recollections of eighty years. 1898.....92 D767 Account of the temperance movement in Maine by the leader of the reform.

DRAKE, Sir Francis.

- Corbett, Julian Stafford. Sir Francis Drake. 1890. (English men of action.).....92 D786c Short popular biography which has been severely criticized as unreliable and unattractive, while a later work by the same author, "Drake and the Tudor navy," of which this is the nucleus, has been highly praised.
- Towle, George Makepeace. Drake, the sea-king of Devon.
 1882. (Young folks' heroes of history.).....92 D786t

DREW, Mrs Louisa (Lane).

- Autobiographical sketch, with an introduction by her son,
 John Drew, and biographical notes by Douglas Taylor.
 1899.92 D821
 "Little more than a bare outline of Mrs. Drew's professional career, with dates of her different engagements, the names of the characters in which she appeared, and the briefest references to the many distinguished players with whom she was associated at different times...
 Nevertheless, the book is worth reading as an illustration of the sort of apprenticeship which the really skilled actors of the past were compelled to serve, and is rendered additionally attractive by a number of excellent portraits." Nation, 1899.

DREXEL, Anthony Joseph.

Drexel institute, Philadelphia. Service in memory of Anthony J. Drexel, founder of Drexel institute, held Jan. 20, 1894. 1896.....92 D822d
The memorial address was by Bishop Potter.

DREYFUS, Alfred.

Five years of my life, 1894-1899. 1901.....92 D823f
Covers the time of his captivity on Devil's island.

"Almost entirely confined to extracts from the letters of Capt. Dreyfus to his wife and of Madame Dreyfus to her husband...Carefully excludes everything which bears upon what is known as 'the case' itself." Athenæum, 1901.

Letters of Captain Dreyfus to his wife. 1899.....92 D823

Cover the period from Dec. 5, 1894, to Feb. 14, 1898, and contain the only defense which Dreyfus has made refuting the calumny that his married life was not what it should have been. They are dated from the prisons of Cherche-Midi and La Santé, from Saint Martin de Ré, and from Devil's island. There is an introduction, summing up the Dreyfus case, by Walter Littlefield.

Barlow, George. History of the Dreyfus case, from the arrest of Captain Dreyfus, Oct. 1894 up to the flight of Esterhazy in Sept. 1898. 1899.....92 D823b

The author firmly believes in the innocence of both Dreyfus and Picquart, shows the entire improbability that Dreyfus ever made any confession of guilt, pays a high tribute to M. Zola and condemns the conduct of M. Cavaignac.

Conybeare, Frederick Cornwallis. The Dreyfus case. 1898.92 D823c

A brief biography followed by an estimate of Drummond's literary work.

- Smith, George Adam. Life of Henry Drummond. 1898..92 D845s Critical biography of the author of "The greatest thing in the world."
 "Drummond was, first, last, and always, an evangelical Christian, much in love with science and unable to be happy in his religious faith without her approval and consent...His enthusiasm for humanity...was the consuming passion of his life, and was marked by a naturalness and simplicity that make us love the man...What makes [Mr Smith's]
 ...biography admirable is his fairness in dealing with Drummond's intellectual product, and his loving appreciation of the man." Nation, tumes, contrasts of life, Indian and English." Nation, 1890.

- DUFFY, Sir Charles Gavan.
 My life in two hemispheres. 2v. 1898.....92 D877
 "As the career of the famous Irish editor, leader, and statesman covers forty years of active public life in Great Britain and Australia, his autobiography is practically a history of the stirring times of the Irish famine, the Young Ireland movement, the subsequent struggle in the House of Commons, and the final disruption of the Irish party."

DÜRER, Albrecht.

Conway, Sir William Martin, ed. Literary remains of Albrecht Dürer, with transcripts from the British museum manuscripts and notes upon them by Lina Eckenstein.

1889.q92 D875c

"Most thorough and conscientious study of his writings. Every scrap of them that has been preserved to us seems to have been deciphered—letters and journals and notes written upon the margins of drawings, as well as his professed treatises upon art and engineering—and the whole collated and compared with scrupulous care in the effort to throw some new light upon his nature, his ideas, and his methods of work. The result is almost altogether admirable." Nation, 1890.

"Authorities," p.7-10.

"Catalogue of Dürer's works," p.220-315.

"The account of the life and works of Dürer occupies only 193 small pages of large print. It is a vigorous and sympathetic biography of a great artist, who was also a worthy man and who lived a somewhat eventful life. It includes long extracts from the journal which Dürer kept during his journey to the Netherlands...For the general reader, not specially occupied with German art or with print collecting, this is the best life of Dürer." Russell Sturgis, 1897.

Taneyhill, Richard Henry. Leatherwood god; an account of the appearance and pretensions of Joseph C. Dylks in eastern Ohio in 1828. 1870. (Ohio valley historical series.).....r977 E84

"A very curious and interesting account of the achievements of Joseph C. Dylks, who appeared for the first time, no one knew how or whence, at a meeting of the Ohio Methodists in the open air; he laid claim to extraordinary physical and spiritual powers...The delusion of which it treats, is extraordinary in its nature, and the story is instructive and significant, as an example of the credulity of a comparatively educated and intelligent people." Thomson's Bibliography of Ohio.

Die geschichte meines lebens. 1893.....92 E218g

Story of my life. 1893.....92 E218

Born in Berlin in 1837, Dr Ebers has become well known as a novelist and Egyptologist, both in his own country and among English-speaking people. His autobiography, which closes with the completion of his first novel, gives a touching retrospect of his childhood, an account of his gymnasium and university career, and a description of the famous Keilhau school (founded by Froebel), its methods and ideals. There is much incidental portraiture and entertaining reminiscence.

Life and letters; ed. by A. J. C. Hare. 2v. 1895.....92 E284

"There is nothing more unlike the life of the typical literary lady than that of Maria Edgeworth as we see it in her letters. They are full of the happy cheerfulness of a lovable woman whose heart was in her home and her multifarious duties, and who took her writing mainly as one of the permissible healthy recreations." Saturday review, 1895.

"The history of Edward III. is practically that of England for half a century and embraces that of Scotland, France, the Low Countries, and Spain, in a more limited degree. The work is, therefore, more than a biography; it is a history of an important and dramatic epoch, as influenced and overshadowed by the extraordinary man who was the motive power of the activity of his age." Preface.

Anglo-French reminiscences, 1875-1899. 1900.....92 E3182a
"Has studied France long and sympathetically, and writes well of what she has seen; but her pages are pervaded by a vehement spirit of religious animosity...Her picture of Gambetta, whom she twice heard address a meeting, is striking. But the more interesting things are her detailed accounts of less famous persons, of M. Guépin of Nantes, a colleague in 1830 of Ledru-Rollin and Louis Blanc, a pioneer of democracy among the Bretons...and of Mr. Holden, the English Wesleyan manufacturer of Reims, to whom after the war of 1870 was unanimously voted the Legion of Honour... But the most interesting thing of all in the book is the study of the French soldier." Spectator, 1900.

- ELIZABETH AMÉLIE EUGÉNIE, empress of Austria.
 [Owen, Mrs Marguerite (du Plantz) Cunliffe-] Martyrdom of an empress [Elizabeth of Austria]. 1899.....92 E48520
 The writer is violently prejudiced in favor of the empress and blind to the fact that her misguided eulogies but strengthen the conclusion she so earnestly seeks to deny,—that all Elizabeth's troubles were indirectly of her own making. In seeking to vindicate Elizabeth's character she libels the emperor and other distinguished people. Like many other books which would have been better unwritten, this volume throws a good deal of light upon history and, in the main, is doubtless genuine, though often misleading and inaccurate.

Herbert of Cherbury, Edward Herbert, baron. Lives of Lord Herbert of Cherbury and Thomas Ellwood, with essays by W. D. Howells. 1877. (Autobiographic series.)92 H461

"The autobiography of Lord Herbert is of a style so charming, and of a manner and matter so singularly characteristic of his order, age, and nation, that one might easily believe it written by some skilful student of the period...As you read, you cannot help thinking...that Thackeray himself could not have done it better, if he had been minded to portray a gentleman of the first James's time. Yet this picture, so frank, so boldly colored, so full of the very life of a young English noble, is one of the most remarkable instances of self-portraiture in any language...A rare sincerity marks the whole memoir, and gives it the grace of an antique simplicity...Herbert, not only as James's ambassador to Louis XIII., but as a sort of soldier of fortune in the Low Countries, and a peaceful traveller in Italy, saw everything that was best worth seeing in the Europe of his day." W. D. Howells, in introduction.

"We have now the whole correspondence brought together chronologically, the letters being left intact as originally written, and made more valuable by a most complete series of explanatory notes giving references to the papers alluded to, as well as short biographical notices of people mentioned in the correspondence. The care and trouble which has been bestowed upon this most essential adjunct to a set of letters containing references to memoirs which for us represent the scientific literature of a former generation, has thus resulted in a distinct contribution to the history of science, and the editors have laid all workers in the domains of physics and chemistry under a debt of obligation." Nature, 1900.

Young engineer; memoir of Frank Russell Firth, with a sketch of the life of Otis Everett Allen. 1874.....92 F521y
Short memoir, written for private circulation, with an introduction by Edward Everett Hale, commending as an example the life of the young civil engineer engaged in railway construction in Kansas and Nebraska, 1868-72.

FITHIAN, Philip Vickers.

Journal and letters, 1767-1774; student at Princeton college, 1770-72, tutor at Nomini hall in Virginia, 1773-74; ed. for the Princeton historical association by J. R. Williams. 1900.....92 F554
Fithian was born in 1747 and was a student at Princeton with Burr and Madison and Henry Lee. He gives a graphic account of his life in Virginia as tutor in the household of Robert Carter of Nomini hall during the interesting period just before the Revolution. He was a frequent guest of the Lees of Stratford and Lee hall, the Turbervilles, the Washingtons of Bushfield and other famous families. The notes give much historical and genealogical information about these families.

FITZGERALD, Edward.

Letters to Fanny Kemble, 1871-1883. 1895.....92 F572
More letters; ed. by W. A. Wright. 1901.....92 F572m
These letters belong with the other two volumes of "Letters" and the "Letters to Fanny Kemble." They have the same progressive dates and they cover similar subjects.
The "Letters" will be found in v.1 of his "Letters and literary remains," call number 828 F57 v.1.
"Fitzgerald's letters are...among the best of their kind. They are real letters, written by the most modest of men, with no reputation in his own day and without any suspicion of posthumous honors...they are also candid letters, expressing the actual opinions he had formed on matters of literature and art...above all, they are the letters of a master of style." Spectator, 1902.

Glyde, John. Life of Edward Fitz-Gerald, with an introduction by Edward Clodd. 1900.....92 F572g

Bibliography of the versions and editions of the Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, by Edward Fitzgerald, and others, p.341-348; bibliography of articles in reviews and magazines relating to Fitzgerald and Omar, p.349-352.

English poet and translator (1809-83), best known by his rendering of the "Rubáiyát" of Omar Khayyám. His "Letters," published in 1894, tell us in such a charmingly unaffected way just what we want to know of his singularly quiet and uneventful life, that a formal biography is almost needless, but there are some things in Mr Glyde's "Life" which the lovers of the letters may like to note.

FLAUBERT, Gustave.

Faguet, Émile. Flaubert, [in French]. 1899. (Les grands écrivains français.).....92 F619f
"The most important part of the book lies among the hundred pages in the middle, where romanticism and realism are studied, and Flaubert's relation to them and the relations of them to his works." Nation, 1899.

tions of John Murray Forbes. 2v. 1890.....92 F754h
"John Murray Forbes renewed in our American society, during the most heroic period of the republic, the old Venetian type of merchant, who managed to unite a keen eye for trade and commerce with an equally keen or keener eye for the public interest...A most successful man of business...he found the time and had the inclination to keep in close communion with the choicest spirits of his day and country, to exercise a large and liberal hospitality...while at the same time placing at the disposal of his government the services of a ceaseless activity, and of a sagacity and judgment concerning the conduct of public affairs, which were rarely at fault." Nation, 1899.

"Sir John Fowler must be reckoned one of the grand old men of the Victorian era, for his work began before her Majesty's accession to the throne, and he died the year after the Diamond Jubilee, being then more than 80 years old. He saw the great railway boom and collapse of the later 'forties,' he took the lion's share in the creation of the Metropolitan Railway, and crowned a life's work with the great Firth of Forth bridge in conjunction with Sir Benjamin Baker." Spectator, 1900.

FOX, Caroline.

Memories of old friends; extracts from journals and letters, from 1835 to 1871; ed. by H. N. Pym. 2v. 1882.....92 F8512
 Memoir, v.1, p.13-31.

John Stuart Mill and John Sterling were among her intimate friends, and her journal owes its value to her association with many distinguished persons.

"Indicates the gentle, spiritual, and at the same time intellectual and accomplished woman, and it will always be valued as a highly important illustration of the most characteristic thought of the Victorian era." Dictionary of national biography.

FOX, Charles James.

Russell, John, earl. Memorials and correspondence of

Charles James Fox. 4v. 1853-57.....92 F851r

The third Lord Holland began the collection of the material, consisting of letters, notices and anecdotes from contemporary journals and other unpublished manuscripts, and of recollections of Fox's contemporaries, but Lord John Russell prepared the work for the press. There is a great amount of valuable and interesting material, but the arrangement is sometimes rather intricate.

Trevelyan, Sir George Otto. Early history of Charles

James Fox. [1880.].....92 F851t

"Although this volume purports to be only a history of a small part of the life of a single person, yet its historical importance is such as to entitle it to the student's most careful consideration...It is the best picture that has ever been drawn of the transition from the old methods of statesmanship to the new. The author holds that Fox was the first great statesman of the modern school...It is an admirable specimen of literary workmanship, and its charming pages are as instructive as they are fascinating." C. K. Adams.

The life of Fox, between 1774 and 1782, is so inextricably interwoven with the history of the American revolution that Trevelyan has treated this part of Fox's career in his "American revolution," 973.3 T73.

Short sketches of St. Francis and St. Dominic, followed by an historical account of the founding of the mendicant orders, particularly the Franciscans and the Dominicans.

Little flowers of Saint Francis of Assisi; tr. fr. the Italian with a brief account of the life of Saint Francis by A. L.

Alger. 1898.....92 F866

"In this little book are contained certain little flowers, miracles and devout examples of that glorious poor follower of Christ, Saint Francis, and of certain of his holy companions, told to the praise of Jesus Christ."

"A series of legends which were collected some two hundred years after his death, having been handed down by word of mouth until that time. They form an excellent biography of him and his disciples, told with quaint simplicity and grace." Preface.

Oliphant, Mrs Margaret Oliphant (Wilson). Francis of Assisi. 1902.....92 F866o

"Few, if any, of St. Francis's many biographers, Catholic or Protestant, have told the exquisite tale of his life and work with more quiet grace and appreciative sympathy." Saturday review, 1871.

Sabatier, Paul. Life of St. Francis of Assisi. 1894.....92 F866s

The same. 1895.....r92 F866s

The author, a Protestant, has made a fair and sympathetic study of St. Francis, applying the most modern methods of historical investigation.

 Centenary edition.
 "The book is founded on the most exhaustive study and the most careful observation. The author even visited the more important of Frederick's battle-fields and had surveys made in the interests of absolute accuracy. Every scrap of German writing that would throw light on the reign appears to have been examined and weighed. The result is one of the most remarkable books in the English language, and one, which, all things considered, is unquestionably the best history of Frederick the Great in any language." *C. K. Snider, Denton Jaques. Life of Frederick Froebel, founder of the kindergarten. 1900.....92 F961s Fröbel's life, from the standpoint of the author, the well-known lecturer and founder of the Chicago kindergarten college, was from beginning to end an illustration of his own principle of the unfolding of the child.

FROISSART, Jean.

- Robinson, Agnes Mary Frances, afterward Mme Darmesteter, afterward Mme Duclaux. Froissart; tr. by E. F. Poynter. 1895.....92 F963r
So little is known of the facts of Froissart's life that it is by no means easy to write the story of it, but Madame Darmesteter has very skillfully used both the old material and some which has been discovered recently. Being herself both historian and poet she is just the one to rightly estimate Froissart, who was so essentially both poet and historian.

Gaine (1726?-1807) was a Scotch-Irish printer and bookseller. In 1752 he established in New York a weekly publication called the "Mercury." At the close of the Revolutionary war, he discontinued the publication of his paper and confined himself to the printing and bookselling business. His journals here printed cover two years of the French and Indian war, five years of the Revolutionary war and two years of John Adams's presidency. They contain many minute details of interest to both the general and local historian.

 Autobiography; tr. by A. Werner. 3v. 1889.....92 G185
The same; ed. by Alexandre Dumas, tr. by William Robson. 3v. 1889.....92 G185
 "Throughout his eventful and romantic career, Garibaldi had years of comparative inaction, at least as respects public life...During those years he wrote the first part of his Memoirs, comprising his youth, his joining the Mazzinian uprising in Piedmont, his exile to South America, his ten years' guerilla warfare in that country, and the prominent part he took in the Italian revolution of 1848-49. This he did not publish at the time; but, after the eventful epochs of the Franco-Italian war against Austria, the Sicilian uprising against the Bourbons of Naples led by him and his one thousand red-shirted volunteers...and, finally, the Franco-Prussian war...Garibaldi, on retiring to his island home at Caprera, corrected and modified the first portion, and wrote the remainder without books or documents, or any assistance save his own memory...Space will not allow us to comment on Mme. Mario's Supplement [v.3 of the 1889 edition], except to say that it...is...the most thorough and authoritative addition to Garibaldi's memoirs that has yet been published." Nation, 1889.

GARRISON, William Lloyd.

Garrison, Wendell Phillips, & Francis Jackson. William Lloyd Garrison. 4v. 1885-89.....92 G195g
Many portraits.

"Although the treatise...is primarily a biography, and a very full and minute one, and although it is written with the reverential admiration of children rather than from the point of view of a dispassionate and critical historian, it is also virtually a history of the anti-slavery struggle. Seldom has a cause and a contest been more closely associated with the life of one man than in the case of abolition and Garrison."
James Bryce, in English historical review, 1886.

Smith, Goldwin. The moral crusader, William Lloyd Garrison. 1892.....92 G195s

In the preface the author acknowledges his indebtedness for his facts to the life of Mr Garrison by his children. The opinions are formed from his own point of view, that of an Anglo-Canadian who sympathized with the American friends of the antislavery cause.

GAVARD, Charles.

A diplomat in London; letters and notes, 1871-1877. 1897..92 G2482
"Notwithstanding the slovenliness of the translation, this book is very entertaining, particularly for its comments on English life, manners and tastes...The diplomatic notes are of much interest, as M. Gavard, though only an attaché of the French Embassy at London, was more than once, from the change of ministers, obliged to act as sole representative of France at the English Court." Critic, 1897.

GAVESTON, Piers, earl of Cornwall.

Dodge, Walter Phelps. Piers Gaveston; a chapter of constitutional history. 1899.....92 G248d Piers Gaveston was the companion and favorite of Edward II of England. His influence over the king was of the worst and he was especially disliked by the barons, whom he finally provoked to a rising, in the course of which he was captured and executed.

"Presents no clear image of the man, any more that it presents a clear picture of the times...Written in a jerky style, and though...it contains a good deal of hitherto inaccessible information...it is not interesting reading." Spectator, 1899.

Autobiography, with an essay by W. D. Howells. 1895.

(Autobiographic series.).....92 G361au

"All critics agree that Gibbon's autobiography is a model in its way. Every autobiography is interesting...But Gibbon's has the very rare and peculiar charm of recording complete success... We may probably have known of men... who might be compared to Gibbon in natural endowments, and who have left nothing but fragments... It is only when the right player comes, and the right cards are judiciously dealt to him by fortune that the great successes can be accomplished."

Stephen's Studies of a biographer.

Private letters, 1753-1794; ed. by R. E. Prothero. 2v. 1896. .92 G361p

This collection of correspondence practically covers the whole of Gibbon's life, and most of the letters now appear for the first time.

English divine, philosopher and voluminous writer, whose most important work is the "Vanity of dogmatizing" in which he attacks the Aristotelian philosophy.

"Joseph Glanvill was that fashionable divine and Fellow of the Royal Society at whose house in Bath our friend Samuel Pepys, four years his senior, used to sit up into the small hours with fair Mistress Pennington...Dr. Greenslet has made a diligent study of his subject, and has put into a compact and entertaining form all that ordinary readers, including students of philosophy and of literature, will generally be particular to know about Glanvill." Nation, 1900.

GOETHE, Johann Wolfgang von.

Autobiography and annals; tr. by John Oxenford. 2v.
1884-91.92 G559
The autobiography, begun in 1810, tells the story of the poet's life down to the time of his settlement in Weimar in 1775. The annals continue it to 1819.
"Has great charm, but the charm is scarcely, if at all, the kind which belongs to Autobiography. Its calm artistic delineation of men, scenes and influences...however we may prize them, only approximate to Autobiography; left as they are without the precise detail, and above all without the direct eloquent egotism which constitutes the value and charm of such works." Lewes's Life of Goethe.

Lewes, George Henry. Life and works of Goethe, with sketches of his age and contemporaries. 2v. 1856....92 G559le

"Has become the standard work on the subject...It shows his characteristic merits of clear good sense, independent criticism, and unflagging vivacity. Goethe's idolaters were of course dissatisfied, and Lewes's general prepossession against German style and dislike of the mystic and allegorical may disqualify him for adequate appreciation of some aspects of Goethe's genius. The book, however, has merits which have seldom been equalled in similar work, and it retains its position in our literature." Dictionary of national biography.

of national preservation and reconstruction. 1897.

(Heroes of the nations.).....92 G789c

"Such a life as Grant's cannot fail to be interesting, and, although Mr. Church fails as a military critic, his picture of the man of stubborn will, natural modesty, and clear judgment, but without a spark of genius, is distinctly attractive." London Times.

Coppée, Henry. Grant and his campaigns. 1866.....92 G789co

The events of the Civil war form the background for an outline of Grant's career. His plans, their execution and results are presented. Details of tactics are given only when necessary for the comprehension of the general's purposes and achievements. Personal and political history are subordinate to the military side of his life.

GRAY, Asa.

- Letters. 2v. 1893.....92 G816
- "The letters give special prominence to the...botanical researches and discoveries on which his fame securely rests, but...we shall be mistaken if the charming journals of travel, only lightly freighted with botanical lore, but rich in friendly gossip, botanical and other, do not prove welcome to many a reader who does not know one plant from another." Nation, 1893.

GRAY, Thomas, 1716-71.

- Letters, including the correspondence of Gray and Mason; ed. by D. C. Tovey. 2v. 1900-04.....92 G819l
- Edited in a most scholarly fashion and, for the first time, presented exactly as the poet wrote them.
- "His letters are all but the best in the best age of letter-writing. They are fascinating not only for the tender and affectionate nature shown through a mask of reserve, but for gleams of the genuine humour which Walpole pronounced to be his most natural vein." Dictionary of national biography.
- Letters; selected with a biographical notice by H. M. Rideout. 1899.....92 G819
- Includes only 55 letters, a small part of his published correspondence.

Memoirs of a life passed in Pennsylvania. 1811.....r92 G821

"Revolutionary period in Philadelphia and in New York, where the author was a prisoner. Extremely interesting, gossipy memoir... One of the earliest, best known and most used sources for the period and places." Larned's Literature of American history.

GREELEY, Horace.

Recollections of a busy life. 1868.....92 G826

"The personal narrative is well told and full of human interest...and this is no bad example of the egotistical, self-complacent, gossiping, rambling, miscellaneous medley of failures and successes, of joys and sorrows, of opinions, good and bad, and their issues, which we all of us like to read...because 'we have all one human heart.'" Nation, 1868.

Parton, James. Life of Horace Greeley. 1872.....92 G826p

First published in 1855. Supplementary chapters bring it down to Greeley's nomination for the presidency in 1872.

GREEN, John Richard.

Letters; ed. by Leslie Stephen. 1901.....92 G829

"Works of J. R. Green," p.497-503.

So far as possible the editor has limited his own work to narratives explaining Green's position during various periods of his life. These are derived from a fragmentary diary, from autobiographical reminiscences taken down by Mrs Green, and from information collected from friends. Most of the early letters are addressed to Prof. Boyd Dawkins and the majority of the later to E. A. Freeman.

GREENE, Gen. Nathanael.

Greene, Francis Vinton. General Greene. 1893. (Great commanders.)92 G837gr

Candid and intelligent study of the military operations of the Revolution and Greene's public relations. Valuable to students and interesting to the general reader.

Greene, George Washington. Life of Nathanael Greene.

3v. 1878-90.....92 G837g

"As the most important biography of the ablest subordinate to Washington in the Revolutionary War, these volumes are not without considerable historical value. They throw much light on the military history of the war, especially that portion of it which was under General Greene's immediate direction. The biographer differs in some important particulars from Bancroft; and, therefore, the two works may well be used in common." C. K. Adams.

Thomas Greenhalge. 1897.....92 G843n

Greenhalge (1843-96) was a member of Congress from Massachusetts, 1889-91, and governor of Massachusetts, 1894-96.

"The portrait...is really valuable because it points a moral. Here, on the whole, was the sort of man whom any government should try to ensnare into its service—able, honorable, disinterested, possessed of fibre and sentiment which is apt to go with a sensitive conscience." Nation, 1897.

An account of the military achievements of this distinguished general in the reigns of Henry VIII, Edward VI and Mary. The larger portion of the narrative is devoted to the details of the siege of Guisnes, in 1558, of which Grey was at that time the governor.

GRIFFITH, John.

Journal of [his] life, travels and labours in the work of the ministry. 1780.....92 G895

Griffith (1713-76) was a minister of the Society of Friends who came to Pennsylvania from England in 1726. He spent 1736-47 in visiting Friends' meetings in this country. After his return to England in 1747 he went about preaching in England and Ireland. His journal records only the religious conditions of the time.

GRISWOLD, Rufus Wilmot.

Passages from the correspondence and other papers of Griswold. 1898.....92 G931

Griswold (1815-57) was a journalist and compiler, best known by his works on American literature.

"Contains a more vivid and more intimate view of the atmosphere and state of literature in the early manhood of our important writers, as they proved to be, than is elsewhere to be obtained." Nation, 1898.

GRONOW, Rees Howell.

Reminiscences and recollections; anecdotes of the camp, court, clubs and society, 1810-1860. 2v. 1900.....92 G933

English officer and society "beau" of the first half of the 19th century. "When he relates his personal experiences, as in his account of the state of Paris in 1815, the condition of society in London in his own time, and the doings of the court of Napoleon III, his testimony is to be relied on, but his second-hand stories and anecdotes of persons whom he did not know are of little value." Dictionary of national biography.

GROS, Antoine Jean, baron.

GUÉRIN, Eugénie de.

Journal; ed. by G. S. Trebutien. 2v. 1893.....92 G958j

The history of Eugénie de Guérin and her brother Maurice is left in the form of journals and letters, the most intimate records of their characters and spirits. Eugénie's journal was written for her brother only; during her lifetime no one else ever saw it.

Matthew Arnold says, "Her soul had the same characteristic quality as ...[her brother's], talent,—distinction. To the circle of spirits marked by this rare quality, Maurice and Eugénie de Guérin belong; they will take their place in the sky which these inhabit, and shine close to one another."

 "He writes from considerable knowledge of the original authorities, and he undoubtedly succeeds in expressively delineating some sides of sixteenth-century life in France...Here [in the essay on Agrippa d'Aubigné] Mr. Macdowall has drawn the portrait remarkably well, and he shows a fine taste in letters, as well as an accurate judgment of Henri Quatre, Huguenotism, and his own hero. The third essay is a quiet and pathetic, even charming, sketch of Catherine of Navarre, Henri's unhappy sister." Literature, 1898.

"Mr. Hamerton was in this generation the best literary exponent of art to the public, and of different classes of art to each other...His literary services to art as a whole—his quarter-century editing of the Portfolio which he founded, with his clear and patient analysis of current works of art...his thorough technical works on Etching, on Landscape, on all the Graphic Arts; his life of Turner; his 'Thoughts on Art'...and much other matter—have probably done more than all other art writing of the age together to put the public mind into the only state from which anything good can be hoped for art." Warner's Library of the world's best literature.

Mrs Hamerton's Memoir is brightened with much lively chat as to her own experiences, domestic and social, in Scotland and in France.

"Rather a record of scientific discovery than a biography...Helmholtz was a physicist by training, but a physicist and mathematician by nature, and the problems to which he devoted his immense intellectual power with such brilliant success—notably optics and acoustics—involved the application of the most abstruse mathematical principles to physiological ends." Literature, 1900.

HÉLOÏSE, & Abailard, Pierre.

Abelard and Heloise; a mediæval romance, with the letters of Heloise; ed. by Mrs Abby Sage Richardson. 1895..92 A116r

Letters of Abelard & Héloïse, with a particular account of their lives and misfortunes by John Hughes. 1806....92 A116

First English translation. Contains besides the five letters of Abailard and Héloïse, one from Abailard to Philintus, a friend, also poems by Pope and Mrs Madan.

Lettres; tr. par E. Oddoul, précédées d'un essai historique par M. et Mme Guizot. 1839.....qr92 A116
Illustrated by J. Gigoux.

Love letters of Abelard and Héloïse. 1901. (Temple classics.)92 A116l

The love story of the illustrious Abailard and Héloïse is told in these six letters, which were written in Latin about the year 1128, 10 years after the lovers had separated, Abailard to become a monk and Héloïse a nun. Though both were famous in their day, Abailard as a philosopher and logician, H  lo  se for her learning, it is by these incomparable letters alone that they live to-day.

HENRIETTA ANNA, duchesse d'Orl  ans.

HERBERT, Amabel (Aston), lady.

Stepney, Catherine (Pollok), lady. Memoirs of Lady Russell and Lady Herbert, 1623-1723. 1898.....92 R917s

Rachel, lady Russell, was the wife of that Lord Russell who was beheaded in 1683 on a charge of treason. A woman of fine mind she was her husband's adviser, and even after his death followed public events with keen interest. Lady Herbert was the wife of Sir Edward Herbert, an adherent of the Stuarts. There is an interesting account of her rescue of her husband after the battle of Naseby and their escape to France.

HERBERT of CHERBURY, Edward Herbert, baron.

Lives of Lord Herbert of Cherbury and Thomas Ellwood, with essays by W. D. Howells. 1877. (Autobiographic series.)92 H461

"The autobiography of Lord Herbert is of a style so charming, and of a manner and matter so singularly characteristic of his order, age, and nation, that one might easily believe it written by some skilful student of the period...As you read, you cannot help thinking...that Thackeray himself could not have done it better, if he had been minded to portray a gentleman of the first James's time. Yet this picture, so frank, so boldly colored, so full of the very life of a young English noble, is one of the most remarkable instances of self-portraiture in any language...A rare sincerity marks the whole memoir, and gives it the grace of an antique simplicity...Herbert, not only as James's ambassador to Louis XIII., but as a sort of soldier of fortune in the Low Countries, and a peaceful traveller in Italy, saw everything that was best worth seeing in the Europe of his day." W. D. Howells, in introduction.

The other autobiography included in this volume is that of a "sturdy Quaker, good and beautiful, with a simple righteousness that comforts and strengthens the soul."

HERKOMER, Hubert. See Artists, p.1256.

HERSCHEL, Caroline Lucretia.

Herschel, Mrs John, ed. Memoir and correspondence of Caroline Herschel. 1879.....92 H4791h

The memoir, written to preserve for her nephew an account of the life and labors of his father, is the chief source of information concerning Sir William Herschel, whose able and devoted assistant she was.

HERSCHEL, Sir William.

Clerke, Agnes Mary. The Herschels and modern astronomy. 1895. (Century science series.).....92 H479c

"Not the annals of the Herschel family, but rather a series of pictures from the lives of Sir William, Sir John and Caroline, which suffice to present in vivid colors the individuality of brother, sister and son." Science, 1896.

Holden, Edward Singleton. Sir William Herschel. 1881..92 H479h

HIBERNICUS; or, Memoirs of an Irishman now in America; containing an account of the principal events of his life, and interspersed with anecdotes and observations, humorous, political and moral. 1828.....92 H521

Born in Ireland in 1779, the writer emigrated to America shortly after the famine of 1817. He tells quite fully the story of his youth in Ireland, his misfortunes, his wanderings about in America and his final settling in Kentucky, where misfortune still pursued him, this book being written to eke out his living as a teacher.

Higginson, Thomas Wentworth. Life of Francis Higginson, first minister in the Massachusetts Bay colony and author of "New England's plantation," 1630. 1891.

(Makers of America.).....92 H5361h

"The connection of Francis Higginson with the settlement of Massachusetts was so brief and his previous life so unrecorded, that the materials for his biography suffice for a mere outline sketch. Under these necessary limitations Col. Higginson has succeeded in presenting a readable life of his ancestor. He has allowed contemporary documents and the older historians, like Morton and Mather, to tell the story in the main, connecting these excerpts by gracefully written comments." Nation, 1891.

HOOKE, Thomas.

Walker, George Leon. Thomas Hooker, preacher, founder, democrat. 1891. (Makers of America.).....92 H774w

One of the founders of the Connecticut colony and first pastor of the Hartford church.

"200 pages, of which 70, an undue proportion, treat of his youth, education, preaching in England, and in Holland, whither he went in 1630 ...From Hooker's arrival in New England in 1633 when he was 47 years old, Mr. Walker's materials increase in value, and his narrative gains correspondingly in interest and importance...It is from the aptness and the raciness of the quotations from old sermons that the book gets its most characteristic and agreeable flavor." Nation, 1891.

HOOPER, J. W.

Three score and ten in retrospect; boyhood days and reminiscences of school experiences from twenty to seventy-two. 1900.....92 H778

Pictures of school and home life in Onondaga county, New York, 1847-99.

Hughes, Thomas. Memoir of a brother [G. E. Hughes].

1873.92 H897h

"Memoir itself is but a sketch...Those, however, who have a spare hour on their hands might well spend it in studying the character of one who, in his brother's words 'was only a good specimen of thousands of Englishmen of high culture, high courage, high principles, who are living their own quiet lives in every corner of the kingdom.'" Saturday review, 1873.

HUGO, Victor.

Letters; ed. by Paul Meurice. 2v. 1896-98.....92 H899

v.1. To his family, Sainte-Beuve and others.

v.2. From exile and after the fall of the empire; to Ledru-Rollin, Mazzini, Garibaldi, Lamartine and others.

"If the first volume...[contains] little else than dulness, the second offers the pleasing contrast of much attractive and valuable matter, whether for literature or for biography...The principal literary interest...of the correspondence arises from its unexpected abundance of illustrations of Hugo's characteristic mannerisms of style...One of the greatest merits of [the second] volume lies in its constant presentation of an aspect of his character not sufficiently dwelt on...the sunny and cheerful geniality of his prevailing mood." Nation, 1898.

Love letters, 1820-1822, with comment by Paul Meurice.

1901.92 H899l

Appeared in an abridged form in "Harper's magazine," v.101-102, Nov. 1900-Jan. 1901.

Written to Adèle Foucher, whom he married in 1822.

"They are love-letters pure and simple, the rapturous outpourings of a youth of genius who has nothing to conceal...and whose pen paints with delicate fidelity the fluctuating emotions of the lover's heart." Dial, 1901.

Memoirs; tr. by J. W. Harding. 1899.....92 H899me

"In no sense a connected autobiography...little more than scattered scraps of memoranda relating only to a few isolated episodes—and these not always the most important episodes—of his career...Not very well translated." Literature (Eng.), 1899.

Blémont, Émile, ed. Memorial life of Victor Hugo, by contemporary writers.....92 H899b

Col. Hutchinson, governor of Nottingham castle and town, to which is prefixed The life of Mrs Hutchinson, by herself, also an account of the siege of Lathom house. 1889.....92 H971h

"Intended simply for the preservation of his memory and the instruction of his children, it possesses a peculiar value among seventeenth-century memoirs. As a picture of the life of a puritan family, and the character of a puritan gentleman, it is unique." Dictionary of national biography.

HUTCHINSON, John Wallace.

Story of the Hutchinsons. 2v. 1896.....92 H9711

Interesting story of this remarkable singing family. They rendered effective aid to the cause of slavery and other reforms, and the book is full of anecdotes and reminiscences. Many illustrations.

Diary and letters of Thomas Hutchinson, captain-general and governor-in-chief of the province of Massachusetts Bay, with an account of his administration when member and speaker of the House of representatives, and his government of the colony during the difficult period that preceded the war of independence; comp. fr. the original documents by P. O. Hutchinson. 2v. 1883-86..r92 H971

"Story as narrated by himself of a man whose fate was perhaps as tragic as that of any figure in American history." Larned's Literature of American history.

Hosmer, James Kendall. Life of Thomas Hutchinson, royal governor of the province of Massachusetts Bay. 1896..92 H9712h

It adds materially to our knowledge of the Revolutionary era and restores Governor Hutchinson to his rightful place in our regard, both as a thoroughly capable magistrate and a thoroughly noble man.

HUTTON, Laurence.

A boy I knew, and Four dogs. 1898.....j92 H977

These two sketches were originally published in "St. Nicholas," and, as the writer says, are true histories, which he hopes will interest boys and girls. The reader soon discovers that "the boy" is the writer himself.

"A boy I knew" appeared in "St. Nicholas," v.24, Dec. 1896-Mar. 1897; "Three dogs" in v.23, Nov. 1895; "Another Dandy" in v.24, Oct. 1897.

HUXLEY, Thomas Henry.

Huxley, Leonard. Life and letters of Thomas Henry Huxley, by his son. 2v. 1900.....92 H983h

"Strongest...in the presentation of Huxley's character and personality.

Mr. Huxley's own writing is thoroughly good, and his appreciation of his father's scientific work is clear, but he leaves him for the most part to expound it in his letters...What we do get everywhere is the reaction of Huxley's mind upon his work, and its effect on others, with a good deal of its tentative process in advance of its deliberate expression...The chapters that report his relation to Darwin's epoch-making book are the most dramatic in this biography." Nation, 1901.

Mitchell, Peter Chalmers. Thomas Henry Huxley; a sketch of his life and work. 1900. (Leaders in science.)...92 H983m

"List of Huxley's writings," p.15-17.

"This volume is in no sense an intimate or authorized biography of Huxley. It is simply an outline of the external features of his life and an account of his contributions to biology, to educational and social problems, and to philosophy and metaphysics." Preface.

HYDE, Henry Baldwin.

Equitable life assurance society of the United States.

Henry Baldwin Hyde; a biographical sketch. 1901....92 H993e

Mr Hyde (1834-99) was the founder of the Equitable life assurance society of the United States, and later its president. He exerted an immense influence on the development of life insurance in the United States and throughout the world.

HYDER ALI.

Bowring, Lewin Bentham. Haidar Alí and Tipú Sultán.

1893. (Rulers of India.).....92 H994b

"The reigns of Haidar Ali and his son Tipu filled...thirty-eight years of the eighteenth century...To his varied local knowledge and his Oriental scholarship, Mr. Bowring adds a cool, unbiassed judgment, a searching study of documents, and a fair degree of literary skill. The result is a clear and impartial narrative of a remarkably troublous time, both for the natives of Southern India and for the English settlement at Madras." Athenæum, 1894.

IBSEN, Henrik.

Jæger, Henrik. Henrik Ibsen, 1828-1888; a critical biography. 1890.....92 I127j

"Jæger, has taken high rank in Scandinavia as a critic and man of letters and his biography has become the recognized authoritative life of Ibsen...Was written with Ibsen's sanction and partial collaboration." Nation, 1891.

IDA, a Florentine girl.

Alexander, Francesca, (pseud. Francesca). Story of Ida;

ed. by John Ruskin. 1891.....92 I141a

This "story of a young Florentine girl's too short life is absolutely and simply true: it was written only for a memorial of her among her friends by one of them that loved her best, and who knew her perfectly." Editor's preface.

IDDESLEIGH, Stafford Henry Northcote, earl of.

Lang, Andrew. Life, letters and diaries of Sir Stafford

Northcote, 1st earl of Iddlesleigh. 2v. 1890.....92 I1412l

Sir Stafford Northcote was a noted English conservative statesman. A graduate of Oxford, he became an M. P. and served consecutively as president of the board of trade, as secretary of state for India, as a member of the joint high commission which drew up the Treaty of Washington in 1871, as chancellor of the exchequer, first lord of the treasury and colonial secretary. He was the author of "Twenty years of financial policy."

"Unquestionably one of the best of Parton's biographies. Jackson's weaknesses are not concealed; on the contrary he is shown to have had serious faults, but, at the same time, to have been honest and interesting, though not at all times wise...Though the book contains much that a severe judgment would exclude, yet from beginning to end it is a narrative of absorbing interest." *C. Longfellow translated "The blind girl of Castel Cuillé," one of the best of Jasmin's poems, and in a note to the translation he says "Jasmin [1798-1864]. . . is to the South of France what Burns is to the South of Scotland, the representative of the heart of the people."

JAY, John, 1745-1829.

Jay, William. Life of John Jay. 2v. 1833.....r92 J223j

v.2 contains the miscellaneous and official correspondence of Jay.

With annotations by Isaac Craig.

"As unprejudiced as a son's life of his father is likely to be. The Life occupies Vol. 1. It is composed of letters patched together with what are scarcely more than editorial notes...The original papers contained in this work give it great value for the close reader." Larned's Literature of American history.

Pellew, William George. John Jay. 1892. (American statesmen.)92 J223p

The same. 1899. (American statesmen.).....r92 J223pi

"Thoughtful and judicious account of the life of one of the best and ablest of the old Federalist statesmen...It abounds in excerpts from Jay's correspondence, and gives an unusually clear picture of the Revolutionary period and two succeeding generations." Larned's Literature of American history.

Whitelock, William. Life and times of John Jay. 1887..92 J223w

JEFFERIES, George, baron. See JEFFREYS, George, baron.

JEFFERIES, Richard.

Story of my heart; my autobiography. 1898.....92 J231s

English writer (1848-87), best known for his descriptions of nature.

"A writer of a perfectly original type, and at the same time intensely English...he is unparalleled, unless by Shelley, for the eloquent expression of the mere rapture of living, of the joy of existence in fresh air and clear light amid lovely landscape...'The Story of my Heart'...idealises the feelings and yearnings of his youth; it is hardly what the lad really thought, but embodies all he was to think when he should have intellectually come to man's estate. The one fixed point in it is its intense pantheism." Dictionary of national biography.

Besant, Sir Walter. Eulogy of Richard Jefferies. 1888....92 J231b

List of Jefferies' works, p.366-369.

Besant's feeling for Jefferies, according to his own confession, is one of "admiration pure and unalloyed." The natural result is that his book will be completely acceptable only to those whose enthusiasm is equal to his own.

JEFFERSON, Joseph.

Autobiography. 1890.....92 J232

"Mr. Jefferson's style has the cadence and the color of good dramatic writing, with a charm that seems to be his own...Quaint and odd as were many of the personages whom he recalls for us in these pages, he sketches them with unfailing charity, with never a hint of acerbity, and with very remarkable skill...Something more than merely amusing. We see here the judgment of an expert with broad sympathies and a chastened taste." Nation, 1890.

Winter, William. Life and art of Joseph Jefferson. 1894..92 J232w

In his account of the long career of the actor (1829-1905) Mr Winter includes much of the earlier history of the American stage and accounts of some of Mr Jefferson's contemporaries. Illustrated.

JEFFERSON, Thomas.

Curtis, William Eleroy. The true Thomas Jefferson.

1901.92 J2323c

Series of sketches showing Jefferson as lawyer, farmer, politician, author of the Declaration of independence, founder of the University of Virginia, and as a scientific and literary man. The author hopes by this unconventional form to show Jefferson as he was and not as he has hitherto been presented either by strong partisans or bitter opponents.

Parton, James. Life of Thomas Jefferson. 1889.....92 J2323p

"The least valuable of the author's biographical productions, with the possible exception of the 'Life of Burr'...The author seems to have been moved by two impulses equally strong—admiration of Jefferson and aversion to Hamilton...The narrative is fascinating, but the historical value of the work is very slight." *C. Reminiscences of the manager of Jefferson's estate at Monticello from 1800 to 1820.

Randall, Henry Stephens. Life of Thomas Jefferson. 3v.

1858.r92 J2323r

"By far the most valuable of the biographies of Jefferson. It is a very elaborate effort to place the third President before the people...in a favorable light. The author...has brought together a large amount of valuable material...It is chiefly in this material that the real importance of the volumes consists." C. K. Adams, 1888.

Schouler, James. Thomas Jefferson. 1893. (Makers of America.)92 J2323s

Brings out clearly Jefferson's far-seeing intuition, not only in statecraft but also in moral and educational matters.

The same, with Boswell's Journal of a tour to the Hebrides, and Johnson's Diary of a journey into north Wales; ed.

by G. B. Hill. 6v. 1891.....92 J365b

"Assuredly a great, a very great work. Homer is not more decidedly the first of heroic poets,—Shakespeare is not more decidedly the first of dramatists,—Demosthenes is not more decidedly the first of orators, than Boswell is the first of biographers...Many of the greatest men that have ever lived have written biography; Boswell was one of the smallest men that ever lived, and he has beaten them all." Macaulay's Essays.

- Recollections of childhood, with a biography by A. C. Leffler. 1895.....92 K397
 Mme Kovalevsky was a gifted Russian mathematician and author.
 "Mr. Gladstone is right in saying that the biography of Sonia Kovalevsky is a book of extraordinary interest...There is nothing in the world more interesting than to obtain fresh insight into the real nature of a human soul...The character here described is that of a woman of extraordinary intellectual powers and of extraordinary richness and force of character... The story of her life is intensely interesting and intensely sad." Nation, 1895.
- KRASINSKA, Françoise, countess, afterward duchess of Courland.

 "Gives, with charming naïveté, a picturesque account of high life in Poland at the middle of the [18th] century—a life still pervaded by feudal traditions and customs...The Countess writes with all the vivacity of a girl who does not suspect that the glamour will pass, but withal she has very keen eyes, that see just those details which posterity is most interested in and rarely finds in formal histories." Nation, 1895.

- Memoirs of a revolutionist. 1899.....92 K425
- Appeared in the "Atlantic monthly," v.82-84, Sept.1898-Sept. 1899, with the title "The autobiography of a revolutionist."
- "Kropotkin's story is a singularly rich, diversified, and romantic one, and it is attractively told. Nothing more interesting in its way has ever been written than the chapters relating his prison life and escape. The book abounds in instructive pictures of Russian life and character, done with unconscious art." Dial, 1900.

- "Authorities consulted," p.15-16.
- Born at Riga in 1764, she led a brilliant social and intellectual life till she was about 30, when she was suddenly converted and devoted the rest of her life to the most exalted preaching and exhortation. Her special renown was acquired through her remarkable influence over the Russian emperor, Alexander I.
- "Mr. Ford's compilation from the Continental authorities is a valuable piece of work, and a service to English-speaking students of modern Russian history who constantly encounter allusions to one of the most famous of Russian women." Nation, 1893.

Sichel, Edith. Household of the Lafayettes. 1897.....92 L144s

Author is at her best in her general surveys of events, and she gives an interesting portrait of Adrienne de Lafayette, distinguished even in an age of notable women. Her statements are not always strictly according to history. Illustrated.

Tuckerman, Bayard. Life of General Lafayette, with a critical estimate of his character and public acts. 2v.

1889.92 L144t

"The greater part of the first volume deals with his American experiences...The whole of the second volume is devoted to his arduous labors during and after the French Revolution. The pictures of life in France, as painted by Mr. Tuckerman, form a brilliant addition to our knowledge of French history. Then comes one long swath of sunlight in the visit, in 1824, of Lafayette to America, and the homage of a grateful people." Critic, 1889.

LAMARCK, Jean Baptiste Pierre Antoine de Monet, chevalier de.

Packard, Alpheus Spring. Lamarck, the founder of evolution; his life and work, with translations of his writings on organic evolution. 1901.....92 L177p

Bibliography of the writings of Lamarck, p.425-443; list of biographical articles on Lamarck, p.444-445.

"The most important of the pre-Darwinian writers on evolution...With the advance of scientific knowledge others have discovered laws, regarding the processes of evolution, which were distinctly formulated by Lamarck, and it is the full exposition in English of Lamarck's own view upon evolution that constitutes the chief value of this volume... Chapters are added presenting Lamarck's views on the evolution of man, his thoughts on morals and the relation of science to religion, and a brief summary of the views of the more important Neo-Lamarckians." American journal of science, 1902.

LAMB, Gen. John.

Leake, Isaac Q. Memoir of the life and times of John

Lamb. 1850.....r92 L1791l

"Lamb was the leader of the Sons of Liberty in New York, beginning with the Stamp Act, and was connected with the most rabid spirits of the Revolution in that colony. Later, he was in the Canadian campaign, in command of West Point when Arnold tried to betray it, and was at the Yorktown surrender. His memoirs cover these topics, as well as the treatment of the Loyalists in New York, the adoption of the Constitution, and later New York politics." Larned's Literature of American history.

Bertin, Georges. Madame de Lamballe; tr. by Arabella

Ward. 1901.....92 L181b

The story of Madame de Lamballe (1749-92), her intimacy with Marie Antoinette and her devotion to the royal family, forms an interesting and pathetic chapter in the history of the French revolution. This biography seeks to show that her murder by the mob was entirely unmerited.

LAMBERTON, Robert.

Eaton, Samuel John Mills. Memorial of the Hon. Robert

Lamberton. 1885.....92 L184c

Short sketch of a typical Scotch-Irishman who settled in Franklin, Pennsylvania about 1830, and there engaged in trade and various other enterprises.

LAMPSON, Frederick Locker-

My confidences; an autobiographical sketch. 1896.....92 L211

"Locker-Lampson's literary acquaintance embraced most of the authors of his time...These recollections are cheery, consciously unaffected, and deliberately discursive...They contain capital...stories and some shrewd perspectives of character...Vitality is never missing...and the self-portraiture most undeniably charms." Athenæum, 1896.

These reminiscences, which cluster about the middle years of the 19th century, include recollections of George Eliot, Thackeray, Dickens, Leigh Hunt, Carlyle, Dean Stanley and others.

English poet and novelist of early 19th century.

"As a poetess Letitia Elizabeth Landon can only rank as a gifted improvisatrice...If not entitled to a high place in literature upon her own merits, she will nevertheless occupy a permanent one as a characteristic representative of her own time." Dictionary of national biography.

LANDOR, Walter Savage.

Letters, private and public; ed. by Stephen Wheeler. 1899..92 L228

"Lady Graves-Sawle, whom we have to thank for permitting the publication of these private letters, is niece to that 'Rose Aylmer' whom more than one generation has thanked for inspiring perhaps the most Hellenic of English lyrics. Written to Lady Graves-Sawle in her unmarried youth and during the first years of her marriage, they belong to the last division of Landor's life and cover the period of his final sojourn in England and his sad exile to his death-place, Florence... We are less grateful for the collection of public letters, rescued from the pages of the extinct 'Examiner.'" Saturday review, 1899.

Hapgood, Norman. Abraham Lincoln, the man of the people. 1900.....92 L715ha

"It is not easy to imagine that anyone would think so well of Lincoln after reading this book as before, could they not appeal from it to other and more comprehensive representations. This does not mean that Mr. Hapgood has had the intention of writing Lincoln down. He writes more things that are favorable to him than the reverse, and lavishes upon him many strains of generous and lofty praise. But he seems to do these things...from a sense of duty; while he tells the vulgar story and reports the political indirection with as much relish as conscientiousness...Somehow the emphasis appears to be upon the lower things." Nation, 1899.

Herndon, William Henry, & Weik, J. W. Abraham Lincoln. 2v. 1895.....92 L715h

Mr Herndon was for 20 years Lincoln's friend and law partner. Most of the work is given up to the incidents of Lincoln's boyhood and early manhood, and it gives no adequate estimate of his place in history, nor of his conduct of national affairs.

The same. 2v. 1899. (American statesmen.).....92 L715m1

Should have given more attention to Lincoln's life before the Civil war. Of all Lincoln's gifts, that of knowing the public mind, and finding his way to the public heart, was the most precious to the country. It is a great merit of this book that it holds this trait constantly before the reader's eye, although the author is himself too much dazzled by it. While Mr Morse cautions his readers very properly against the apotheosis of Lincoln by Nicolay and Hay, yet he is constantly sliding into the tone of idolatry in a lesser degree. Adapted from Nation, 1893.

Nicolay, John George, & Hay, John. Abraham Lincoln; a history. 10v. 1890.....92 L715n

The authors, as private secretaries to President Lincoln, stood in most intimate and confidential relations with him, and had his approval of this history for which they began to prepare during the war. Their work is really a history of the period with Lincoln as the central figure, particular attention naturally being given to the political struggle preceding the war, and to the narrative of military events. Cock; Mrs Alfred. Life of Madame de Longueville

(Anne-Geneviève de Bourbon). 1899.....92 L844c

Mme de Longueville (1619-79), sister of the great Condé, was in her youth an ornament of the Hôtel de Rambouillet, became the heroine of the Fronde, and in later life was attached to the Jansenists and the community of Port Royal.

"In that adventurous time there is no figure so romantic as that of the beautiful Duchess, and no story so exciting as that of her expeditions, her treaties, her narrow escapes, the sad disenchantment of the last days at Bordeaux, when treachery hastened the death of the Fronde and Mazarin's victory. Throughout those reckless years, in spite of terrible mistakes and severe punishment, Madame de Longueville may be said to have been the good angel of a bad cause." Spectator, 1900.

Reminiscences of the author's own childhood.

"These reminiscences date back to the second year, so that the narrative surpasses in retrospective reach all other records of childish experience...They give us in an almost startling vividness impressions of particular moments, sudden and transient awakenings of childish 'clairvoyance'...The writer...has the true feeling for child-nature, its original way of envisaging things, its questionings, its pathetic isolation...It is as if he were writing of another, of one whose innermost secrets had revealed themselves to him." James Sully, in Longman's magazine, 1891.

"A just estimate of an extraordinary character...When the record of events is condensed into small space there is little opportunity for

"So far as Mr. Norton's volumes represent Mr. Lowell, they represent him most delightfully and yet most fairly, and...there has not, on the whole, been a collection of English letters of such rich and varied quality since those of John Keats." Nation, 1893.
"From first to last," the one impression, inclusive of all others, that these letters make, is that Lowell the writer and Lowell the man were absolutely one...And while they do not alter, but confirm our previous apprehension of his personality, they add one of capital importance to the known variety of his gifts—a gift for writing letters of such brightness and such beauty that they are a permanent addition to one of the most delightful satisfactions which the past affords the present and the coming time." Forum, 1894.

Lesley, Mrs Susan Inches (Lyman). Recollections of my mother, Mrs Anne Jean Lyman; being a picture of domestic and social life in New England in the first half of the 19th century. 1899.....92 L989f

Mrs Lyman was the wife of Judge Joseph Lyman of Northampton, Mass. Their social position and overflowing hospitality drew to their home or into the current of their existence many interesting and eminent people, including Emerson, Webster, Bryant, Bancroft, Channing, Harriet Martineau, Lydia Maria Child and John S. Dwight.
The Round Hill school, the law school at Northampton, the Unitarian controversy, the slavery agitation, the early growth of American literature—all these add interest to the volume. But, as the title-page indicates, its chief attraction lies in its quality as a picture of the best New England life of the times.

MACDONALD, Maréchal Étienne Jacques Joseph Alexandre, duc de Tarente.

Recollections of Marshal Macdonald; ed. by Camille Rousset. 1893.....92 M145r

Created a marshal of France and duke of Tarentum by Napoleon for his military services.

"Carries in every page the evidence that it was written, as it professes to be, purely from memory, dashed off at speed, without revision by the aid of documents...What might be lost in fulness of historical detail is more than made up in the lively and vigorous presentation of the Marshal's own personality. He stands vividly before us for what he was—a brave, honest, and blunt man, half Scotch and half French, whose military eminence was fairly won and honorably used." Nation, 1892.

Morley, John. Machiavelli; the Romanes lecture, 1897.
1897.92 M168m

"Mr. Morley is to be thanked, in that he has not joined his mighty voice to the chorus of condemnation; he discriminates, illustrates, puts historical imagination into his final censure, and passes judgment with no note of unctuous rectitude." Academy, 1897.

Villari, Pasquale. Life and times of Niccolò Machiavelli.

2v. 1892.....92 M168v

"The most satisfactory work on the life and public services of this great political philosopher and writer. For centuries Machiavelli has been regarded as a species of sphinx of whom no one could solve the riddle...The work of Professor Villari is an effort to solve the enigma. The theory of the author is that an adequate explanation can only be found in a study of the man and of his times, as revealed especially in his unpublished writings. To this task Villari has applied himself with unusual assiduity and success." C. K. Adams, 1888.

Memoirs and letters of Dolly Madison. 1888.....92 M236i
A record of 40 years of married life of President Madison's wife, by a grandniece. As a picture of political and fashionable life in the early part of this century, these letters, while lacking the sparkle of Abigail Adams's, are still worthy to rank with them. The narrative which holds them together is given simply and with excellent taste.

"Viewed from a Federalist (and later non-'state-rights') standpoint. Severe, if not unsympathetic. The author thinks Madison possessed of great powers in ordinary affairs, but lacking purpose in crises; deplores his defection from the Hamiltonians, belittles the war of 1812, and sustains the attitude of New England. Nevertheless it is the best brief biography of Madison extant [1902]. Especially full on the origin of the Federal convention." Larned's Literature of American history.

v.2. Manning as a Catholic.

The biography has been much criticized as belittling its subject and betraying his confidence.

"Whatever view is taken of Manning's personal character, his methods and his principles, it must be acknowledged that his was a picturesque and commanding figure, that he was a distinguished Englishman and a distinguished prince of the Church. This, however, is not the impression gathered from this narrative." Athenæum, 1896.

MARMONTEL, Jean François.

Memoirs. 4v. 1805.....r92 M395

Interesting for what it tells of Marmontel, himself in the front rank of French litterateurs of the time, and still more for its revelations of the literary history and of the celebrities of the latter half of the 18th century. The author clearly depicts the court of Louis XV from 1753 and the whole reign of Louis XVI, and gives much space to the acts and events which led to the French revolution.

Craik, Mrs Dinah Maria (Mulock). A legacy; being the life and remains of John Martin, schoolmaster and poet. 1878.92 M428c

Born in the East end of London, his early life was spent in the depths of misery and poverty, but in spite of everything he educated himself sufficiently to be a schoolmaster, though he never achieved the literary recognition he so much desired. Most of the book is occupied with his journals and note-books.

MARTINEAU, Harriet.

Autobiography; ed. by M. W. Chapman. 2v. 1877.....92 M431

Memorials of Harriet Martineau, by Mrs M. W. Chapman, v.2, p.131-596.

English author, of the 19th century, whose first literary success was a series of stories illustrating the political economy of Malthus, Ricardo and James Mill. In 1834 she visited America and assisted the abolitionists.

"This is doubtless one of the very honestest autobiographies ever written, and in respect to careful self-analysis, it probably stands at the head of its whole class...The little deaf woman...was courted by lords, commons, and society at large...She saw everybody in London who was notable...but there was no figure in this circle more remarkable than Harriet Martineau herself, a young woman of thirty, into whose ear-trumpet philosophers dropped their theories and statesmen their plans, while she in return supplied, at their request, facts, theories, and themes." Nation, 1877.

- Lang, Andrew. Mystery of Mary Stuart. 1901.....92 M439l
Appendix contains Scottish and English translations, and original French version of the Casket letters.
The most serious charges against the character of the Scottish queen are involved in the partial or complete authenticity of what are known as the "Casket letters," a series of eight epistles which came into the hands of Mary's enemies in 1567. Half of Mr Lang's book is devoted to an examination of these letters, and, though the author disavows the intention of defending Mary's innocence, he throws a searching light on the intricacies of the tragedy.

Rowland, Kate Mason. Life of George Mason, 1725-1792, including his speeches, public papers and correspondence. 2v. 1892.....92 M449r
Bibliography, v.1, p.17.
Gives a genealogy of the Mason family in Virginia, a biography of the "planter statesman of the Revolution," an abbreviated history of the time, an exposition of the political opinions and principles of which he was so distinguished an advocate. He was an intimate associate of Washington in public and private affairs, member of the Virginia assembly and author of the "Declaration of rights," member of the convention that drafted the constitution of the United States. Thomas Jefferson says of him that he was "a man of the first order of wisdom among those who acted on the theatre of the Revolution, of expansive mind, profound judgment, cogent in argument, learned in the lore of former constitutions, and earnest for the republican change on democratic principles."
- MASON, William, b. 1829.
Memories of a musical life. 1901.....92 M453 Entertaining and valuable reminiscences of music and musicians, chiefly in Europe, by one of the best known living (1901) American musicians.

MASSIE, Nathaniel.

Massie, David Meade. Nathaniel Massie, a pioneer of Ohio; his life and selections from his correspondence.

1896.92 M458m

"Bare, matter of fact narrative of the life of a distinguished actor in early Ohio history...He was a surveyor, land speculator, founder of towns and politician. He was a pronounced Jeffersonian...and an active advocate of the early admission of Ohio to the Union. Historically the main interest of the book is in the original documents relating to this event." Larned's Literature of American history.

MATAMOROS, Manuel.

Greene, William. Manuel Matamoros; his life and death; a narrative of the late persecution of Christians in Spain.

1866.r92 M467g

Matamoros (1834-66) on account of his belief was imprisoned in Spain for several years, and finally condemned to the galley, but the sentence was commuted to exile, during which he did much work for the spread of Christianity in Spain.

MATHER, Cotton.

Wendell, Barrett. Cotton Mather, the Puritan priest.

1891. (Makers of America.).....92 M468w

"Authorities," p.309-310.

Mather (1663-1728) was an able minister, a voluminous writer, but is most widely known for his connection with the witchcraft trials where his course has been much criticized. Prof. Wendell believes him to be truthful, honest and devout, but prejudiced, narrow and lacking in judgment.

MATHEWS, Charles James.

Life, chiefly autobiographical, with selections from his correspondence and speeches; ed. by Charles Dickens. 2v.

1879.92 M472

English actor and dramatist (1803-78). This work is the principal authority for the events of his life.

"Full of anecdotes, nearly all of them fresh and well told. Mathews's frequent letters are as light and sprightly as possible." Nation, 1879.

MATHY, Karl Friedrich Wilhelm.

Freytag, Gustav. Karl Mathy, [in German]. 1898.....92 M474f

German editor and statesman (1807-68) with a varied career from his connection with the revolution of 1830 through his long work in government departments of finance and trade in Baden, where he did much to develop banks and railways. The memoir is by a friend and fellow journalist.

MAURICE, Frederick Denison.

Maurice, Sir John Frederick, ed. Life of Frederick Denison Maurice, chiefly told in his own letters. 2v. 1884..92 M495m

Maurice (1805-72), Anglican divine and one of the leaders in the "Christian socialist" movement of the middle of the 19th century.

"In the 'Life of Frederick Denison Maurice' the world has received the picture of a character and the account of an influence. The man himself...was of deeper import than his work, and his character explains the quality and the limits of his influence." Nation, 1884.

MAURIER, George du. See DU MAURIER, George.

MAURY, Gen. Dabney Herndon.

Recollections of a Virginian in the Mexican, Indian and Civil wars. 1897.....92 M498

During his life at West Point and his long service in the United States and Confederate armies Gen. Maury knew intimately most of our military leaders, and his estimates of them are extremely interesting. As is natural the Virginians fare best at his hands.

MAX-MÜLLER, Friedrich. See MÜLLER, Max.

MAXWELL, James Clerk.

Campbell, Lewis, & Garnett, William. Life of James Clerk

Maxwell, with selections from his writings. 1884.....92 M524c

Biography, popular account of his scientific work and a selection from his poetry. Illustrated.

"The interest and freshness of Prof. Campbell's story lie in the light it throws on the subjective influences that moulded the character of the gentle physicist, a character which was the most extraordinary combination that this generation has seen, of practical wisdom, childlike faith, goodness of heart, metaphysical subtlety, and discursive oddity, with wonderful critical sagacity and penetrating scientific genius."

Nature, 1882.

Glazebrook, Richard Tetley. James Clerk Maxwell and modern physics. 1896. (Century science series.).....92 M524g

Brief non-technical account of his scientific work.

Short popular account, with many extracts from contemporary memoirs, of the great cardinal and the France of his time.

MEADE, Gen. George Gordon.

Bache, Richard Meade. Life of Gen. George Gordon

Meade, commander of the Army of the Potomac. 1897..92 M553b

"Rather a narrative of the campaigns of the Army of the Potomac; and the intimate history of Meade is limited to a dozen pages at the beginning and a score at the end of the volume... We find the standpoint of the writer to be that of a group of the younger officers who surrounded General Meade, who, starting with the intensest prejudices against the men who succeeded McClellan, transferred the dislike with equal hostility to Grant and Sheridan, when Meade was superseded in the independent command of the Potomac army." American historical review, 1898.

Pennypacker, Isaac Rusling. General Meade. 1901.

(Great commanders.).....92 M553p

"Mr. Pennypacker... sums up as a logical deduction from his whole story, the services of Meade: 'In the history of the wars of the United States, it does not appear that the nation ever profited by the services of any other army commander who combined thorough training with personal energy and skill on the battlefield as did General Meade.' That is a great verdict, and unless the whole structure of Mr. Pennypacker's book can be overthrown, it is a true one." Dial, 1901.

Carpenter, Edith. Lorenzo de' Medici; an historical portrait. 1893.....92 M561c

Brief study, taking a middle ground between admiration and severity of criticism, and pointing out his real accomplishments as poet, scholar, art critic, statesman and man of affairs.

Reumont, Alfred von. Lorenzo de' Medici the Magnificent; tr. fr. the German by Robert Harrison. 2v. 1876...92 M561re

"Not so much a biography of Lorenzo as a history of Italy at the time Lorenzo was its most important figure. The work of an able scholar and historian. The translation has numerous errors." C. K. Adams.

Roscoe, William. Life of Lorenzo de' Medici. 1891.....92 M561r

Memoir of Roscoe, p.19-48.

"Not to be regarded as a good authority. Roscoe's style introduced his books easily into public favor, but his works have been shown again and again to be inaccurate." C. K. Adams.

MEHEMET ALI.

Murray, Sir Charles Augustus. Short memoir of Mohammed Ali, founder of the vice-royalty of Egypt.

Does full justice to his character and work, without concealing his failings. Gives selections from his letters and other writings.

Wilson, Rev. George. Philip Melancthon, 1497-1560. 1897.92 M581w

Having both thorough knowledge of his subject and literary skill Mr Wilson has made an interesting short sketch, giving a good account of the more personal side of his life and of his theological work.

MELBOURNE, William Lamb, viscount.

Dunckley, Henry. Lord Melbourne. 1890. (Prime ministers of Queen Victoria.).....92 M582d
Bibliographical note, p.5.

English Whig statesman, was prime minister in 1834 and 1835-41.

"A readable sketch of Queen Victoria's first Premier and early Mentor ... While Lord Melbourne was not, despite his Premiership, in any sense a great man, he bore no inconsiderable share in great events; and the story of his private life is sufficiently piquant to attract readers who might shrink from following Dr. Dunckley into the maze of British politics." Dial, 1891.

METASTASIO, Pietro Antonio Domenico Buonaventura Trapassi.

Burney, Charles. Memoirs of the life and writings of Metastasio, in which are incorporated translations of his principal letters. 3v. 1796.....r92 M645b Consists chiefly of letters written after he became court poet at Vienna in 1729.

"He may be considered as the originator of a real improvement in the musical drama, though long since superseded. His popularity as a dramatic poet was great; the charm, grace, melody, and sweetness of his verse have induced the composers to overlook the absence of contrast and strong passion; and in consequence some of his libretti have been set to music thirty or forty times." Grove's Dictionary of music.

- MILL, John Stuart.
Autobiography. 1887.....92 M687
 "The practical record of the formation of an eminent thinker's mental habits and the succession of his mental attitudes...If Mr. Mill's autobiography has no literary grandeur, nor artistic variety, it has the rarer merit of presenting for our contemplation a character that was infested by none of the small passions, and warped by none of the more unintelligent attitudes of the human mind." John Morley, in Fortnightly review, 1874.
- Courtney, William Leonard. Life of John Stuart Mill. 1889. (Great writers.).....92 M687c

Chronological list of Millais' work in oil, water and black-and-white, v.2, p.466-494.

"The 'Life and letters' is somewhat confusingly written, skipping back and forth and sometimes giving contradictory accounts of the same event; but it succeeds, on the whole, in drawing a clear picture of the cheery, hearty, determined, straight-forward, eminently British personality of the man...Profusely illustrated." Nation, 1900.

MILLER, Hugh.

My schools and schoolmasters; or, The story of my education. 1882.....q92 M692

To the author of this autobiography, Thomas Carlyle wrote: "You have painted to us scenes of life, scenes of nature, which rarely come upon the canvas; such draughtsmen, too, are extremely rare in that and in other walks of painting." This book convincingly proves how much education there is out of school—in the experience and thought of every-day life. A work of especial value to readers who regret their lack of thorough formal instruction. Miller was a Scottish geologist and worked as a stone-mason in his youth.

Millet; his life and letters. 1896.....q92 M696c

"The authoress has combined the information gathered from the books of Sensier and Piedagniel and much information from articles in the American magazines, together with a number of Millet's letters. The result is a very good and satisfactory treatise on the man." Russell Sturgis.

Sensier, Alfred. Jean-François Millet, peasant and painter.

1896.q2 M696s

Biography of the author, p.5-8.

A peasant and the painter of peasants, whose typical figure was the laborer in the fields, Millet is one of the most interesting of artists. Sensier was an intimate friend and his biography is the authoritative one.

MILMAN, Henry Hart.

Milman, Arthur. Henry Hart Milman, dean of St. Paul's;

a biographical sketch. 1900.....q2 M711

"'Scholar, poet, critic, historian, but above all these a perfect Christian gentleman,' Dean Milman was also a man of the world, and a most agreeable member of society at a period when society was most agreeable. Walter Scott and Byron were still alive when he entered it, and Sidney Smith, Whately, Macaulay, Stephen, Monckton Milnes, Rogers, Senior, Lords Holland and Lansdowne, and many others whom it would take too long to enumerate, were his contemporaries." Spectator, 1900.

MILNES, Richard Monckton, baron Houghton.

Reid, Sir Thomas Wemyss. Life, letters and friendships of Richard Monckton Milnes, first lord Houghton. 2v.

1891.q2 M715r

Lord Houghton (1809-85) lived in intimate contact with the stirring events in England and Europe for half a century from 1835 onwards, and knew well the chief actors in them. He was an accomplished man of the world, a scholar and man of letters, a critical and philosophical spectator, the friend of Carlyle and Edward Fitzgerald and Tennyson, the political confidant of de Tocqueville and Guizot, equally at home with Landor in Florence and Emerson in Concord. The biography is generously appreciative. Condensed from Saturday review, 1890.

MITFORD, Mary Russell.

Life, told by herself in letters to her friends; ed. by A. G.

- K. L'Estrange. 2v. 1870.....92 M754
 Miss Mitford (1787-1855) was an English novelist and dramatist. She was an inveterate letter-writer and corresponded with scores of people whom she never met. Her letters are as attractive as her books. The most interesting are those written to Sir William Elford and Miss Barrett. But her correspondents also included Macready, Mrs Hemans, Mrs Trollope, Dyce, Allan Cunningham, Haydon, Douglas Jerrold, Mary Howitt, Harriet Martineau, Mrs Jameson and Barry Cornwall.

 Field-marshal Count Helmuth von Moltke as a correspondent; tr. by Mary Herms. 1893.....92 M811f Selected letters to his father, sisters, brother and other relatives, and to several friends, on a variety of subjects.
- Letters to his mother and brothers; tr. by Clara Bell and H. W. Fischer. 2v. 1891.....92 M811l Biography of Frau von Moltke, v.1, p.3-6.
 Gives an excellent idea of the real nature of the great German general. Illustrated.
- Letters to his wife and other relatives; tr. by J. R. McIlraith. 2v. 1896.....92 M811
 These letters show Moltke to be very different from the ordinary conception of him. To the world he was cold and silent, to his family and friends he was affectionate, kind and sympathetic to a remarkable degree. Though generally regarded as little better than a strategic machine we find in these letters that two of his chief characteristics are admiration of nature and fondness for children. He was a keen observer and his opinions of the people and countries which he saw in his long life are interesting and valuable.

Hermes, Mary, tr. Moltke; his life and character. 1892...92 M811h Largely made up of selections from his journals, letters and autobiographical notes. Includes a tale written at the age of 28. Illustrated with drawings by von Moltke and portraits.

MONMOUTH, James Scott, duke of.

Fea, Allan. King Monmouth; a history of the career of James Scott, "the Protestant duke," 1649-1685. 1902..92 M832f

"The ill-fated career...of James, Duke of Monmouth, the natural son of Charles II., forms an important chapter in English history; and... it is as a picture of the times, rather than of the man, that any recital of his adventures can be of value...The chief interest in Monmouth's career centres, of course, in his invasion from Holland soon after his father's death, and in the battle of Sedgemoor which put an end to his kingly pretensions...The new material drawn upon by the author makes his book well worth the writing." Dial, 1901.

"Short and simple account of the most important events in Monroe's life. When the book was written the Monroe manuscripts at Washington, while not inaccessible, were not easily handled...The publication of these papers may show the desirability of a more extended biography; but probably the general judgments of this book will not be overthrown." Larned's Literature of American history.

MONTAGU, Lady Mary (Pierrepont) Wortley.

Letters and works; ed. by Lord Wharnccliffe. 2v. 1893....92 M845

Memoir of Lady Montagu, by W. M. Thomas, v.1, p.1-48; Anecdotes of Lady Montagu, by Lady Louisa Stuart, v.1, p.49-121.

From 1718 to 1739, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu was one of the leaders in English society and letters, a friend of Pope, Sir Horace Walpole and Lord Hervey. She accompanied her husband on his embassy to Turkey, and the letters written during this time are her best. Her sprightliness and the easy elegance of her style, her pungent wit and shrewd observations make her letters justly famous.

MONTAGU, Victor Alexander.

A middy's recollections, 1853-1860. 1898.....92 M8452

The author began his sea-service when he was only 12 years old. He saw service in the Crimean war, the war with China in 1857, and in the mutiny in India, when he was a member of a naval brigade which did land duty.

MONTALEMBERT, Charles Forbes René de Tryon, comte de.

- Oliphant, Mrs Margaret Oliphant (Wilson). Memoir of Count de Montalembert; a chapter of recent French history. 2v. 1872.....92 M848o

Mrs Oliphant was personally acquainted with Montalembert, she wrote with the aid and sanction of his family, she had access to the best sources of information, and she produced a valuable and interesting memoir to which there is, however, one marked objection. She gives an undue prominence to the romantic, sentimental or sensational aspects of character, and places the clerical enthusiast in broad relief, but hardly does justice to the orator, statesman, author and accomplished man of the world. Condensed from Quarterly review, 1873.

MONTEFIORE, Sir Moses, & Judith (Cohen), lady.

- Diaries, 1812-1883; ed. by L. Loewe. 2v. 1890.....92 M855

Sir Moses Montefiore (1784-1885) was a Jewish philanthropist of Anglo-Italian origin, who spent his enormous wealth in ameliorating the condition of the Jews in all parts of the world. His life is also interesting from its great length, he having lived to over a hundred years in perfect possession of his faculties.

MONTESQUIEU, Charles de Sécondat, baron de.

- Sorel, Albert. Montesquieu; tr. by M. B. Anderson and E. P. Anderson. 1888. (Great French writers.).....92 M859s

"M. Sorel does his work very well. He gives us a fair notion of what Montesquieu did, but does not contribute much that is new. We knew before that Montesquieu was one of the pioneers of modern political philosophy; that he helped, without knowing or intending it, to pave the way for the French Revolution; and we strongly suspected that a great deal of his speculation was wholly groundless, or, rather that the groundwork of his speculation was often flimsy and unsubstantial. Perhaps the exhibition of this weakness is the best part of M. Sorel's work." Nation, 1888.

"In the portrayal of this energetic and brilliant statesman he [Mr Roosevelt] found a congenial task. Occasionally the author indulges in flip-pant comments, or in exaggerated praise or blame, but on the whole his method and temper are commendable. The life of Morris in Paris during the days of the French Revolution is entertainingly described."

MORRIS, William.

Mackail, John William. Life of William Morris. 2v. 1899.92 M9182m
 This biography of the poet, decorator, printer, and craftsman in many arts was undertaken at the special request of the late Sir Edward Burne-Jones. The author had unreserved access to all materials in the possession of the family of William Morris. His crowded, brave and useful life is put on record with excellent judgment of essentials and non-essentials.

 "Chronological list of the printed works of William Morris," p.447-452;
 "Publications of the Kelmscott press," p.453-454.
 This does not claim to be a biography or an account of Mr Morris's private life. It is an enlargement of "The art of William Morris" by the same author, the most important addition being a chapter on Morris's connection with the socialistic movement. The author was expressly permitted by Mr Morris to bring out this book and every facility was given for reproducing a number of ornaments of the Kelmscott press. Perhaps the distinctive feature of the book is the chapter "Of the firm of Morris & co., decorators."

MOSCHELES, Felix.

Fragments of an autobiography. 1899.....92 M9312

The author's special gift as a writer of reminiscences was shown in his "In Bohemia with Du Maurier." In this volume he tells of his student life in Paris, of his love affairs, of sketching tours with Claude Raoul Dupont, ocean travel with Henry Irving and Ellen Terry, life in New York and Chicago, and meetings with Mazzini, Rossini and Robert Browning. The volume is illustrated with portraits of the author's mother, of Mazzini and Browning, reproduced from the author's paintings.

Gehring, Franz. Mozart. (Great musicians.).....92 M948g

"We can pay it no higher compliment than in saying that the little volume reads like an abstract of Jahn's great work. The style is very clear and thoroughly interesting, and though any detailed account of Mozart's compositions was obviously impossible, the short criticisms given in the course of the narrative are just and discriminating." Athenaeum, 1883.

built upon previous notices; he has thus produced a trustworthy, and, so far as possible, an exhaustive account of Mozart's life...The result is a work which must be considered as the most trustworthy and serviceable biography that could be produced by a skilful employment of the materials generally accessible. Holmes has not attempted to draw from hitherto unknown sources. He neither carries his researches to any depth nor offers any original opinions or explanations." Jahn's Life of Mozart.

Jahn, Otto. W. A. Mozart [in German]. 2v. 1867.....92 M948j

The same. 4v. 1856-59.....r92 M948j

The book is not a life of Mozart so much as an encyclopædia of musical art and biography. Not only have we the narrative of the life of Mozart himself from his cradle to his grave in the smallest particulars, with a detailed examination of each work, but we have the history of the rise and progress of each branch of music that Mozart touched. We have also full accounts of the social and musical condition of the various cities visited by Mozart and biographical notices of every person whom his biographer has occasion to mention. Condensed from preface by Sir George Grove.

Being ordered by his doctor to go away for a rest, and to take no books with him, Max Müller relieved the tedium of his vacation by writing these fragments of autobiographical reminiscence which are full of interest. In v.1, one chapter is devoted to his "recollections," four contain his "literary recollections," two his "recollections of royalties," and a final chapter on "beggars" gives some entertaining stories of his experiences with needy students, crafty adventurers and literary impostors. v.2, "My Indian friends," includes a chapter on the poets of the Veda, with metrical translations of some of their hymns.

My autobiography; a fragment. 1901.....92 M959m cal sketch and notes by R. L. de Beaufort. 1888.92 N129bo

"Biographical sketch of Prince Napoleon," p.1-93.

Author was a nephew of Napoleon, son of his brother Jerome.

Bourrienne, Louis Antoine Fauvelet de. Memoirs of Napoleon Bonaparte; ed. by R. W. Phipps. 4v. 1890.92 N129b

Lively and entertaining, but often inaccurate. Author was the early friend of Napoleon, and his private secretary, 1796-1802.

private life of Napoleon, his family and his court; tr. by

E. G. Martin, with a preface by Imbert de Saint-Amand.

4v. 1895.92 N129c

For many years Constant was his servant, hardly leaving him for a day.

Gives the details of his daily life.

Doris, Charles. Secret memoirs of Napoleon, by one who never quitted him for 15 years. 1896.92 N129d

First issued in 1815.

Political rather than personal. The author was no blind admirer of Napoleon.

- Forsyth, William. History of the captivity of Napoleon at St. Helena; from the letters and journals of Sir Hudson Lowe and official documents not before made public. 3v. 1853.....r92 N129f
- A defense of the personal and official conduct of the governor of St. Helena. Historically it is important and has been a mine of information for students ever since its publication, but the general reader will hardly find it interesting.
- Hazlitt, William. Life of Napoleon Buonaparte. 3v. 1894.....92 N129ha
- "Not...a correct view of Napoleon as he is revealed to us by later investigators, but still one of the best of those originally published in English. Unlike most of the histories of Napoleon written on the north side of the Channel, it shows a strong sympathy for the career of its subject. Certainly in English no better word than this has been spoken for the first emperor. But as all histories written before the publication of Napoleon's Correspondence are now to be regarded as incomplete and imperfect, so this cannot be held as a high authority." C. K. Adams.

- Second title-page reads "Home and court life of Napoleon and his family."
- Also published with the title "Memoirs of the emperor Napoleon, from Ajaccio to Waterloo."
- Wife of a marshal of France, and herself a well-known figure at the court of Napoleon, the author gives a vivid and entertaining description of the life there.
- Lanfrey, Pierre. History of Napoleon the First. 4v. 1894.....92 N129l
- The history is carried down to 1811 only, as Lanfrey died before completing his work.
- "In his treatment of the first emperor, Lanfrey is very severe; but his severity is discriminating, and he has therefore been able almost completely to revolutionize public opinion concerning the character and purposes of the emperor." C. K. Adams.

- Méneval, Claude François, baron de. Memoirs illustrating the history of Napoleon I, from 1802 to 1815. 3v. 1895.92 N129me
- Méneval was for some years Napoleon's private secretary.
- "The value of these memoirs is scarcely proportional to their bulk. They contain neither inspiring narrative nor profound analysis. The Baron was incapable of either. It is impossible to compare them with the thoughtful memoirs of the Chancellor Pasquier, and they do not contain a trace of the spice that enlivens the reminiscences of the Rémusat family...Unstinted adulation and extravagant panegyric are the warp and woof of these books...Nevertheless...[they] are not entirely devoid of interest." Nation, 1895.

- Author was a nephew of Napoleon.
- O'Connor, Thomas Power. Napoleon. 1896.....92 N129o
- Collection of essays giving the substance of various histories and memoirs of Napoleon, aiming to produce a true picture. Mr O'Connor's witnesses are generally favorable to Napoleon.
- O'Meara, Barry Edward. Napoleon in exile; or, A voice from St. Helena; the opinions and reflections of Napoleon. 2v. 1827.....r92 N129o
- Author was surgeon to Napoleon at St. Helena until recalled for his intrigues against the governor in 1818. He was in Napoleon's confidence, but he was also for part of the time the spy of the British government, and his book though interesting is unreliable.
- Ropes, John Codman. First Napoleon; a sketch, political and military. 1895.....92 N129r
- "An able attempt to stem the resistless tide of condemnation that set in with the publication of Napoleon's correspondence." C. K. Adams.
- Rose, John Holland. Life of Napoleon I, including new materials from the British official records. 2v. 1901-02.92 N129ros
- "This book is rather biographical than historical—that is to say, it deals with Napoleon rather than with the Napoleonic epoch...The chief contribution which Mr. Rose makes to the materials of Napoleon's biography consists in his personal study of the British official records of the Napoleonic times...and...[his] systematic examination of the archives of our Foreign Office, War Office, and Admiralty, from 1795 to 1815, has yielded much valuable information." Athenaeum, 1902.
- Rosebery, Archibald Philip Primrose, earl of. Napoleon; the last phase. 1900.....92 N129ro
- "The bulk of the book is devoted to three subjects: the relations between the British government and Napoleon arising out of the captive's custody; Napoleon's life at Longwood...and finally, his character considered in the light of his whole career...The style is beautifully clear and has the characteristics of clever, compact and well-sustained conversation...Judging him by the standard of sheer capacity, Lord Rosebery raises Napoleon to a height beyond which the enthusiasm of the devotee could hardly soar." Nation, 1900.

Contents: On progress in art.—Realism.—Napoleon.—The burning of Moscow.—The Cossacks.—The grande armée.—The marshals.

"It may fairly be doubted whether any other so brief treatment of the Moscow campaign makes for the general reader a more satisfactory and intelligible presentation of the subject." Nation, 1899.

Warden, William. Letters written on board the Northumberland and at Saint Helena, in which the conversations of Napoleon and his suite are faithfully described.

[1816.]r92 N129w

During the voyage to St. Helena, and for several months afterward, Warden, a British naval surgeon, was in frequent attendance on Napoleon who talked frankly to him, but as he spoke no French and Napoleon spoke no English and the interpreter was Las Cases the book is considered to have little historical value.

NAPOLEON III, emperor of the French.

Forbes, Archibald. Life of Napoleon III. 1897.....92 N129lf

Excellent popular biography, contributing no new material, but showing familiarity with the French and English sources. Particularly good in its account of the events leading up to the Franco-German war. Many portraits and other illustrations.

poleon and Mademoiselle de Montijo. 1897.....92 N129is

Spirited biography of Louis Napoleon down to his marriage in 1853.

NASMYTH, James.

An autobiography; ed. by Samuel Smiles.....92 N146

Nasmyth (1808-90), Scottish engineer and inventor of the steam-hammer.

"A pleasant record of a very interesting life. It would seem that from his earliest years Mr. Nasmyth has not suffered any passing event to escape his observation, and the consequence is that, in addition to his record of the many valuable mechanical contrivances in which he takes a just pride, he gives us some delightful sketches of a time which has completely passed away and of which we cannot have too many records." Saturday review, 1883.

 ment of the sea power of Great Britain. 2v. 1897....92 N222m
 "It is essential to the completeness and rounding off of the author's discussion of the 'Influence of Sea Power,' that he present a study, from his own point of view, of the one man who in himself summed up and embodied the greatness of the possibilities which Sea Power comprehends." Preface.

"Capt. Mahan's merit is that he treats with full competence the three aspects involved—personal, professional, and political." Nation, 1897.

William Cavendish (1592-1676) was governor of the prince of Wales, afterward Charles II, and prominent in the royalist cause. His second wife, Margaret, cultivated literature with great industry and her best work is her biography of her husband.

"Her life of the duke is in its way a masterpiece. With it may be classed her autobiographical sketch, the naïveté and beauty of which are equal. Not easy is it to find a picture so faithful and attractive of an English interior." Dictionary of national biography.

NEWMAN, John Henry, cardinal.

Apologia pro vita sua; a history of his religious opinions.

1893.92 N285

Remarkable account of the inner life of the distinguished English cardinal for 45 years, written in answer to a controversial pamphlet by Charles Kingsley.

"Few books have so triumphantly accomplished their purpose as that remarkable work. Its simple candour wrought conviction even in theological opponents, while it revolutionized the popular estimate of its author." Dictionary of national biography.

NUGENT, Robert, earl.

- Nugent, Claud. Memoir of Robert, earl Nugent, with letters, poems and appendices. 1898.....92 N498
 One of the prominent figures of his time (1702-88). For 20 years he represented the city of Bristol in Parliament, he held office under the government, and was the fast friend of Frederick, prince of Wales. He was the associate of such men as Pope, Goldsmith, Chesterfield, Chatham, Pitt, Henry Fox and Horace Walpole, and many of their letters to him are included in this volume.

O'HARA, Theodore.

- Ranck, George Washington. "Bivouac of the dead," and its author [Theodore O'Hara]. 1898.....92 O181r Theodore O'Hara (1820-67) is known to us almost wholly through his poem, the "Bivouac of the dead." This little volume contains a brief biographical sketch and the text of the poem.

O'KEEFFE, John.

- Recollections of his life. 2v. 1826.....r92 O222
 O'Keeffe (1747-1833) studied under Benjamin West, but early gave up painting, first for acting, and later for dramatic writing. These rambling recollections are full of gossip of the social and dramatic world in London and Dublin.

OLIPHANT, Laurence.

- Oliphant, Mrs Margaret Oliphant (Wilson). Memoir of the life of Laurence Oliphant and of Alice Oliphant his wife. 2v. 1891.....92 O233o
 Biography of two very remarkable characters and lives. In Laurence Oliphant (1829-88) a taste for adventure, wit, humor, shrewd business ability and knowledge of the world were singularly combined with a strange religious development. Both he and his wife, a beautiful and attractive woman, had great fascination for all who knew them.

OLIPHANT, Mrs Margaret Oliphant (Wilson).

Autobiography and letters; ed. by Mrs Harry Coghill.

1899.92 O2332

List of Mrs Oliphant's works, p.441-451.

The memoir left by Mrs Oliphant was begun in 1860 and relates chiefly to the struggles of her early widowhood. She made no addition to the work till 1864 and after this there is a long gap of 21 years, when the narrative was taken up again at intervals until 1892. Her manuscript has been supplemented by letters, the whole being connected with the slightest possible thread of story.

v.3. Sept. 1643-1660.

v.4. 1660-1668.

v.5-6. Letters.

James Butler (1610-88), first duke of Ormond, became lord lieutenant of Ireland in 1644. After the execution of Charles I, he attached himself to the cause of Charles II, whom he accompanied into exile. At the restoration in 1662, he was returned to the lord-lieutenancy of Ireland. The biography by Carte is quoted in the "Dictionary of national biography" as one of the chief authorities for the life of the duke of Ormond, especially the collection of letters in the appendix.

PALGRAVE, Francis Turner.

Palgrave, Gwennllian F. Francis Turner Palgrave; his journals and memories of his life. 1899.92 P186p
"This little sketch of my father's life has...been greatly aided by his own journals, which are quoted at some length, for in them he speaks for himself, expressing many thoughts and opinions which could not otherwise have been so plainly given...I have tried to show my father both as a man of true poetical feeling, possessed of the purest taste in art and literature, and also as one who was loved by an almost infinite number of friends." Preface.

PALMER, John McAuley.

Personal recollections; the story of an earnest life. 1901.92 P196
Mr Palmer (1817-1900) had a long political career. He served as Illinois state senator, commanded the 14th Illinois regiment in the Civil war, was governor of Illinois from 1869 to 1873, and United States senator from 1891 to 1897.

Comes down only to 1847.
"We could wish the life had been written by one who had lived more in his society, and could to a certain extent have Boswellized him, as he would have repaid the process more perhaps than most of our public men. As it is, the book, though a valuable contribution to history, is upon the whole rather dry, and very unlike what one's imagination had previously conceived of a life of Lord Palmerston." Academy, 1874.

Campbell, marquis of. Viscount Palmerston. 1892.
(Prime ministers of Queen Victoria.).....92 P198l
"The Marquis of Lorne has wisely availed himself of the enormous amount of correspondence, official and private, left behind by the 'fair and square' political fighter whose official career extended over nearly sixty years, allowing him to speak wherever feasible, and thus indicate in his own way the object and motives that influenced him... An interesting chapter on Lord Palmerston's personal characteristics rounds out the view of the politician and statesman." Dial, 1892.

"The Diary of Pepys is unquestionably one of the most singular and one of the most entertaining in any language. Though the author was not without royal favor in the days of Charles II, he was not above the work of making record in his diary of the most insignificant affairs...The diary covers the interesting period from 1659 to 1669, and throws a flood of light on the character of that singular decade. It deals with social far more than with political affairs; but the student of politics will here find not only much that will entertain, but also something that will instruct." C. K. Adams.

 "Purpose...is essentially historical...Views Petrarch not as a poet, nor even, primarily, as a many-sided man of genius, but as a mirror of his age—a mirror in which are reflected all the momentous contrasts between waning mediævalism and the dawning Renaissance. Petrarch knew almost everyone worth knowing in those days; consequently few historical sources can rival his letters in value and interest." Preface.
 "Petrarch's life, views and character, his friends, and the political and literary conditions of his day are so vividly set before us, and the

3v. 1793.....r92 P672a

"The writer has not the vanity to offer this Work as a History. He presumes no more, than having collected, and preserved, a fund of materials, which may afford light and information to the future inquirer; who could not have found them in any of the books hitherto printed ...The anecdotes which he has here committed to paper, were, all of them, in their day, very well known. They were the subjects of public conversation. But they have not been published." Preface.

"Not a complete record, for they break off at 1820, and the author lived on at Paris until the closing years of the Second Empire...Was a great-granddaughter of Stanislaus Poniatowski...and the grandniece of Stanislaus Augustus, the last king of Poland...The Countess describes a visit to Paris in 1810 very fully; otherwise, the action centres in Poland. Prior to 1806, her family interests were paramount, but when the war of the Third Coalition brought the French to Warsaw, she came in contact with Napoleon and his staff. After the Grand Duchy of Warsaw had crumbled, she witnessed the return of the Russians. The last episode of the volume is the marriage of the Grand Duke Constantine... She had the liveliness of the Polish nobles, and she knows how to communicate it to her memoirs." Nation, 1900.

POTOCKA, Hélène (Massalska), comtesse.

Memoirs of the princesse de Ligne; ed. by Lucien Perey,

tr. by Laura Ensor. 2v. 1887.....92 P8532

Covers the period of her school days at a convent school near Paris, her marriage with Prince Charles de Ligne, and her subsequent life to the time when she became the wife of Count Vincent Potocki. Some doubt has been cast on the genuineness of the countess's journal and the accuracy of M. Perey's supplementary narrative. The popular picture of the "Countess Potocka" by Mme Le Brun, is generally supposed to be a portrait of this countess.

The subject of this biography was an Indian ascetic (1833-86). He was supposed to possess powers of thought-reading, predicting future events, seeing things at a distance, healing disease by simply willing, and the power of changing a man's thought by simply touching his body. He believed that all religions are true, and in explaining this side of his nature the author describes the various religions of India and their expounders. He was looked upon as half God and half man, and his influence among his people was marvelous.

"To no more competent source could we look for a lifelike biography of Ernest Renan. Madame Darmesteter knew him intimately in his later years, and became, after her marriage with the eminent scholar James Darmesteter, almost a member of Renan's family circle...The influence exercised on Renan by his sister, his sojourn at the Seminary—every episode of his long, storm-tossed life is of course dealt with, but the very real charm of this small volume of less than 300 pages lies in the writer's insight into Renan's character and personality in his old age...and in her analysis of his various books and opinions." Literature, 1897.

 "To write memoirs of one's own life was one of the fancies of the time, but like all else, it became in Rousseau's hand something more far-reaching and sincere than a passing fashion. Other people wrote polite histories of their outer lives, amply coloured with romantic decorations. Rousseau with unqualified veracity plunged into the inmost depths, hiding nothing that would be likely to make him either ridiculous or hateful in common opinion, and inventing nothing that could attract much sympathy or much admiration." Morley's Rousseau.

- RUPERT, prince.
 Scott, Eva. Rupert, prince Palatine. 1899.....92 R878s
 Considers the history of the English civil war only as far as it concerns Rupert of the Rhine. Valuable for the side-lights thrown upon the internal dissensions which tore the Royalist party to pieces and were a large factor in its ultimate collapse.
 "Miss Scott's Life of the Prince Palatine may be called very satisfactory." Nation, 1899.
- RUSKIN, John.
 Præterita; scenes and thoughts in my life. 3v. 1885.....92 R899
 Author, artist and social reformer (1819-1900).
 "The most important work of his last period was the fragment of autobiography, undertaken at the suggestion of his friend, Prof. C. E. Norton, and published at intervals during 1885-9 under the title of 'Præterita'...This book contains occasional passages of description as fine as anything in 'Modern Painters,' and is marked throughout by limpid ease in the narrative, by the keenness of its recollections, and by brilliant character-sketches of friends and acquaintances." Dictionary of national biography.
 Collingwood, William Gershom. Life and work of John Ruskin. 2v. 1894.....92 R899c
 Bibliography, v.1, apx. p.9-14 and v.2, apx. p.12-18.
 Author was for many years Ruskin's private secretary.
 "His book, which, for the rest, is a noble tribute to his own devotion to its subject, and a by no means valueless contribution to the history of a man who will always be an object of great interest in the history of literature, is otherwise simply a labored and almost indiscriminate as well as unintelligent laudation of all Mr. Ruskin has ever done or proposed to do." Nation, 1893.
- Hobson, John Atkinson. John Ruskin, social reformer. 1898.92 R899h Gives a short biography of Mr Ruskin taken from "Præterita," "Fors," and other papers; and a summary of his views on political economy, socialism, machinery and industrial towns, education, and woman's place. The author is himself a social reformer and has written some books on economics.
- La Sizeranne, Robert de. Ruskin and the religion of beauty. 1899.....92 R899l
 "Three essays which first appeared in the 'Revue des Deux Mondes'... The writer approaches his subject very much as Taine would have approached it, and treats it with the same combination of picturesqueness, vivacity, and philosophical analysis...It is clear in its exposition and unflinching in its sympathy; yet it does not blink at inconsistencies." Dial, 1900.
- Mather, James Marshall. John Ruskin; his life and teaching. 1900.....92 R899m List of the principal works of Ruskin, p.171-179.
 "The book...remains an exposition and not a criticism, a synopsis of Ruskin's teaching rather than an outline of how he is to be studied to the best advantage." Introduction.

Meynell, Mrs Alice (Thompson). John Ruskin. 1900.

(Modern English writers.).....92 R899me

"Method...is to consider successively and briefly Ruskin's principal works, devoting to each book...a special chapter. Each of these chapters sets forth the leading ideas of the work considered, includes a few illustrative extracts, and brings to the discussion a certain element of the author's personal idiosyncrasy. The author is herself a writer of such distinction that this personal note always proves interesting, although it is sometimes irritating, and often excites to protest." Dial, 1900.

Rossetti, William Michael, ed. Ruskin, Rossetti, pre-

Raphaelitism; papers, 1854-1862. 1899.....92 R744ro

A volume of correspondence chiefly between John Ruskin and Dante Gabriel Rossetti, containing much interesting art criticism and affording new knowledge of the character and genius of Rossetti. Extracts from the diaries of Madox Brown and W. M. Rossetti are given and the volume also contains some miscellaneous items pertaining to the pre-Raphaelites and their exhibition of 1857. The illustration of the book is in photogravure, the pictures with one exception being Rossetti's work.

Spielmann, Marion Harry. John Ruskin; a sketch of his life, his work and his opinions, with personal reminiscences. 1900.....92 R899s Contains a paper by Ruskin, entitled The black arts. Popular little sketch, which bears the marks of having been hastily put together after Ruskin's death in response to the demand for information concerning the distinguished art critic.

Promising young Southern poet (1853-78). Many of his poems were in negro dialect.

RUSSELL, John, earl.

Reid, Stuart J. Lord John Russell. 1895. (Prime ministers of Queen Victoria.).....92 R915r

"From the days when Napoleon was changing the map of Europe at his will until the time of our own Civil war, Lord John Russell was in the House of Commons, and prominent from the first; and this splendid service was crowned with five years more of distinguished service as Earl Russell in the Foreign Office and as Prime minister. During this whole career Lord John was the champion of the Whig principles of religious toleration and equality...The cause of parliamentary reform was so peculiarly his own that he was chosen to introduce the great measure of 1832, although not yet of cabinet rank." Dial, 1896.

RUSSELL, Rachel (Wriothesley), lady.

Stepney, Catherine (Pollok), lady. Memoirs of Lady Russell and Lady Herbert, 1623-1723. 1898.....92 R917s

Rachel, lady Russell, was the wife of that Lord Russell who was beheaded in 1683 on a charge of treason. A woman of fine mind she was her husband's adviser and even after his death followed public events with keen interest. Lady Herbert was the wife of Sir Edward Herbert, an adherent of the Stuarts. There is an interesting account of her rescue of her husband after the battle of Naseby and their escape to France.

 Celebrated Italian tragedian, born in 1829.
 "Tells us of his youth, of his first humble appearance on the stage, of his early successes, of his later triumphs, and of his stellar wanderings. He gives us his impressions, not only of his compatriots, Modena, Rossi, and Ristori, but also of Rachel, Sarah Bernhardt, Coquelin, Mounet-Sully, Edwin Booth, and Henry Irving...The frankness of Signor Salvini's interest in himself is its own excuse; he is right in believing himself so great an actor that what interests him shall interest us also." Nation, 1893.

 Biographical sketch of George Sand, v.1, p.9-40.
 "Their intrinsic interest, the large additions that they make to the knowledge of their author's character, the varied scenes and the numerous attractive personalities that they bring before us, can neither escape the notice, nor disappoint the expectation, of any competent reader." Athenæum, 1886.
- Lettres d'un voyageur. 1869.....92 S213l
 The first of these, dated 1834, gives the author's impressions of Italy.

Among the others are letters addressed to Liszt, to Meyerbeer, and others. The "Encyclopædia Britannica" says of them, "They are specially valuable to the student of George Sand, as they give her views of men and things, not refracted and distorted by the exigencies of a novel."

Caro, Elme Marie. George Sand. 1892. (Great French writers.)92 S213c

"His running exposition, both of the individual novels and of the Sandian conception of a novel in general, is most adroit and far from inadequate. He has managed with great skill to lay emphasis, without tediously dwelling, on the points in which that conception and its embodiment in words correct the faults of the prevailing school of novels, and he has...made great use of that charming correspondence with Flaubert, which exhibits both correspondents so fully and so agreeably." Athenæum, 1888.

Thomas, Bertha. George Sand. 1883. (Famous women.)...92 S213t

"To a rapid and concise account of outward events and material circumstances are added clear and attractive sketches of the books which best lend themselves to such a résumé, and which are most important as illustrations." Nation, 1883.

SANDS, Admiral Benjamin Franklin.

From reefer to rear-admiral; reminiscences and journal jottings of nearly half a century of naval life, 1827-1874.

1899.92 S221

The narrative includes incidents never before told in the lives of Farragut, Porter, Rodgers, Rowan, Ammen, Jenkins and Worden; anecdotes of Generals Grant, French and others; reminiscences of Garibaldi and Dom Pedro I of Brazil; also some account of the revolutions in South America, the slave-trade on the west coast of Africa, the Mexican war, and the War of the rebellion. The work also tells of the origin and growth of the United States coast survey, and of the foundation and nucleus of the United States naval observatory.

Also published with the title "Souvenirs d'âge mûr."

Recollections of the popular French dramatic critic and lecturer (1828-99). This volume supplements his "Souvenirs de jeunesse," which embodies his memories of youth.

Souvenirs de jeunesse. 1895.....92 S243

"M. Sarcey may not be a great writer...but what a charming talker he is! There can be no greater pleasure than to read his theatrical feuilleton in the Temps—rambling, disconnected notes, full of personal allusions, remote as possible from any attempt at fine writing, and full of rich hints and the very best independent criticism. In the 'Souvenirs' the same qualities are found. The tone rises, however, but only a little, when he gives graphic details of his academic career, both as a pupil in the École Normale and as an instructor in several provincial faculties." Nation, 1885.

SARPI, Pietro, called Fra Paolo.

Robertson, Alexander. Fra Paolo Sarpi, the greatest of the Venetians. 1894.....92 S246r

Sarpi (1552-1623) is best known as the historian of the Council of Trent and the adviser of the Signory of Venice in its quarrel with Paul V.

"It does not contain, apparently, the results of any original research, but recites in somewhat exaggerated style the well-known facts in the career of the remarkable man whom the author characterizes on the title-page as 'the greatest of the Venetians.'" Nation, 1894.

SARTAIN, John.

Reminiscences of a very old man, 1808-1897. 1899.....92 S249

"As a boy he was assistant to a maker of fireworks who had charge of the 'effects' at Covent Garden Theatre, and thus came into contact with many of the actors of the day. Later he became an engraver, and, crossing to America in 1830, knew many of the artists of that period, Inman, Sully, Neagle, and others. Still later, as magazine proprietor, he met many of the earlier literary men of America... Mr. Sartain's style is not particularly vivid, and of many of the interesting people he knew he has not much to tell us; but the book is, nevertheless, an entertaining one." Nation, 1899.

SAVONAROLA, Girolamo.

Lucas, Herbert. Fra Girolamo Savonarola; a biographical study based on contemporary documents. 1899.....92 S268l

"Bibliographical list," p.11-20.

"This volume had its origin in the fiery controversy which the fourth centenary of Savonarola's death revived. Its first appearance was in the form of articles in the Tablet, representing what may be called the Jesuit point of view, while simultaneously the very divergent view of the Dominicans found expression in a series of papers in the Irish Rosary. Since that time Father Lucas has revised and in great measure rewritten his work... It is most carefully derived from the original sources, which are scattered through numerous periodicals and monographs, not easy for the English reader to obtain." English historical review, 1901.

"Brings together a rich collection of contemporary documentary evidence bearing on the relations of parties, the political and ecclesiastical intrigues, and the correspondence between the magistracy of Florence and the Papal Court at Rome." M'Hardy's Savonarola.

"A sympathetic and entertaining biography... The writer does not undertake to present new views of his subject otherwise than by a careful review of such material as has been already presented... Departs in no essential particular from the traditional treatment." American historical review, 1902.

 "We have now the whole correspondence brought together chronologically, the letters being left intact as originally written, and made more valuable by a most complete series of explanatory notes giving references to the papers alluded to, as well as short biographical notices of people mentioned in the correspondence. The care and trouble which has been bestowed upon this most essential adjunct to a set of letters containing references to memoirs which for us represent the scientific literature of a former generation, has thus resulted in a distinct contribution to the history of science, and the editors have laid all workers in the domains of physics and chemistry under a debt of obligation." Nature, 1900.

The period covered is from November 1825 to 1832.

"Who can reproduce the subtle charm and pathos of Scott's Journal?... "Mr. Anderson's bibliography is much more than worth the price of the tame, yet well-meaning sketch it accompanies." Athenæum, 1888.

SCOTT, Gen. Winfield.

Memoirs. 2v. 1864.....92 S4312

"The narrative opens the public life of the writer with the Canadian campaigns of the War of 1812, and carries it through the Black Hawk War, Nullification in South Carolina, removal of the Cherokees, the Mexican War, and the ensuing honors to the victorious general." Larned's Literature of American history.

SÉGUR, Louis Philippe, comte de.

Mémoires. 3v. 1842.....r92 S456s

A French politician and author. He served in the American revolution, was ambassador to Russia, was a councilor of state under the empire, and was made a peer at the restoration. He died in 1830.

SÉGUR, Philippe Paul, comte de.

Aide-de-camp of Napoleon; memoirs. 1895.....92 S456

The author was a French general and historian, who served in the Napoleonic campaigns.

"The personal and anecdotal portion of Count Philippe de Ségur's voluminous 'History, Memoirs, and Miscellanea,' published in 1873. The memoir is one of the most charming and graphic as well as most instructive records of Napoleonic times." Dial, 1895.

SEIDL, Anton.

Finck, Henry Theophilus, ed. Anton Seidl; a memorial by his friends. 1899.....q92 S458f

Musical conductor (1850-98).

This volume contains a biographical sketch by H. T. Finck, an account of Seidl's funeral services, some personal tributes, appreciations by musical critics and singers, letters to Seidl from Richard Wagner and others, and an account of Seidl's literary work.

SELBORNE, Roundell Palmer, earl of.

Memorials. 2v. in 4. 1896-98.....92 S464

v.1, pt.1-2. Family and personal, 1766-1865.

v.2, pt.1-2. Personal and political, 1865-1895.

The family and personal chronicle tells of the earl's brilliant career at Oxford and his rapid rise at the bar, including a few important political reminiscences, one being the "Alabama claim." v.2 is of more general interest, covering his two terms as lord chancellor, his distinguished service in the settlement of the Treaty of Washington and the Geneva arbitration, and his work in reforming the machinery of law.

SELWYN, George Augustus.

George Selwyn; his letters and his life; ed. by E. S. Roscoe and Helen Clergue. 1899.....92 S469

"The merit of George Selwyn's letters can be estimated for the first time by the general public...He owes to his friend Horace Walpole the seat which he has long occupied in the temple of fame as a wit... Despite the bad literary form of Selwyn's letters, they have an historical value which redeems many shortcomings and fully justifies their publication...Readers of these letters learn much that is new about the manners of the period and the associates of Selwyn." Athenaeum, 1900.

These associates included George III, Fox, Pitt, Horace Walpole and most of the other well-known men of the time.

SEVIER, John.

Gilmore, James Roberts. John Sevier as a commonwealth-builder; a sequel to The rear-guard of the Revolution.

1887.92 S511g

A biography of the builder of the commonwealth of Tennessee. In this, as in the "Rear-guard of the Revolution," the author has transformed the characters of history into living men, and presented their achievements in a spirited narrative.

SÉVIGNÉ, Marie de Rabutin-Chantal, marquise de.

Letters; ed. by Mrs Hale. 1895.....92 S5113

"The letters of Madame de Sévigné are unrivaled for their fresh charm, shrewd wit, and easy gaiety of heart. They form an almost complete and familiar chronicle of the Court and high society of the time [1669-95]. Their vivacity scarcely ever flags, whether she is telling of Court life, of scenes at the baths of Vichy, or of country society and diversions. She writes spontaneously, sketches vivid pictures in a few rapid strokes, or gives in sparkling narrative the social happenings of the day, meanwhile unwittingly revealing her own character." New international encyclopædia.

'After having read over the letters of Mme. de Sévigné, I will simply say what impression they have made on my mind, without asking myself if I repeat what others have said before me: this is the only method which I shall follow in this book.' M. Boissier takes in turn the woman, the writer, the work—a somewhat artificial division." Nation, 1887.

- "With Sewall's well-known diary as his guiding thread, and with constant quotation from it, the author sketches many features of the life and characters of the New Englanders of the second and third generation, their conceptions of Church and State, their business characteristics, their home life, their courtships, their literature, their relations to the other races with which they were brought in contact. If he has added little that was novel, he has described the traits of the age with which he deals with much clearness of insight and fair-mindedness." Nation, 1897.

- Seward was governor of New York, 1838-42; United States senator, 1849-61; and secretary of state during the administrations of Lincoln and Johnson.
- "The autobiographical portion consists of less than one fourth of the first volume, ending with the year 1834...The narrative of early life, his entrance into and rapid progress in politics is candid and interesting. The memoir by his son begins with the year 1831. A large part of this consists of extracts from Seward's letters, journals and speeches...The editor has endeavored to make the work 'the story of a life, not the history of a time.'" Larned's Literature of American history.
- Bancroft, Frederic. Life of William Henry Seward. 2v. 1900.92 S514b
- "He divides the statesman's career into two contrasted parts at the point of his defeat for the Presidential nomination in 1860. The preceding part is supposed to be dominated by a selfish ambition for place and power, the succeeding by abnegation of self and intense patriotic devotion to the cause of his country. In the first, the author not only makes a general attribution of unworthy purpose, but follows every specific act with the explanation in accordance with it, as if to run no risk that the reader should be misled by its apparent rectitude or merit...[The] second volume is a positive addition to our historical knowledge of its period, and a fine presentation of the incidents, the inner qualities, and the strategy of a notable diplomatic contest," Nation, 1900.

SFORZA, Caterina.

Pasolini, Pietro Desiderio, conte. Catherine Sforza; tr. by

Paul Sylvester. 1898.....92 S523p

Catherine Sforza, called the Madonna of Imola, a woman of great beauty, strong character and remarkable intellect, was a prominent figure in Italian political life in the 15th century. One of her sons was the famous Medici called Giovanni delle Bande Nere. The author of this work has made extensive researches in Italian and foreign archives and had other sources of information not open to Catherine's earlier biographers.

SHAFTESBURY, Anthony Ashley Cooper, earl of, 1621-83.

Traill, Henry Duff. Shaftesbury, the first earl. 1886.

(English worthies.).....92 S5252t

"The inclusion of the first Earl of Shaftesbury among the 'English worthies' is gratifying to those who believe that few characters, and no period, of English history more deserve or will better repay research than the character of Anthony Ashley Cooper and the reign of Charles II. . . Mr. Traill has, in default of original research, shown good judgment in the choice of his sources of information. . . For its literary merits Mr. Traill's book fully deserves and will doubtless find many readers. None the less Shaftesbury still awaits a biographer." Athenæum, 1886.

SHAFTESBURY, Anthony Ashley Cooper, earl of, 1671-1713.

Benjamin Rand. 1900.....92 S5253

"Dr. Rand has discovered among the mass of Shaftesbury papers in the Record office two note-books filled with meditations by the moralist for his own edification. . . These fill 272 pages of the volume. . . The letters. . . are of interest in reference to his own philosophy, especially in relation to that of Leibnitz. There are also many political letters. . . Other more personal letters. . . go to increase our esteem for his conception of morals." Nation, 1901.

SHELLEY, Mrs Mary Wollstonecraft (Godwin).

- Marshall, Mrs Florence A. (Thomas). Life & letters of Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley. 2v. 1889.....92 S5451m
"The first volume of Mrs. Marshall's ably and graphically written biography closes with the death of Shelley. The second is given to the twenty-nine years of Mary's widowhood, during which she was forced to labor unremittingly with her pen to eke out the scanty sum which Shelley's father, Sir Timothy, reluctantly allowed for the maintenance of his daughter-in-law and grandson." Nation, 1890.

SHELLEY, Percy Bysshe.

- Biagi, Guido. Last days of Percy Bysshe Shelley; new details from unpublished documents. 1898.....92 S545b
"The 'new details' of which Mr. Biagi speaks were, we believe, published a few years ago in Harper's Magazine; and the present book consists substantially in a reprint of that article, preceded by a recapitulation of the facts already known concerning the closing days of Shelley.
New details...fall into two classes: documents, drawn from the archives of Tuscan and Florence, concerning the discovery of the corpse, and the negotiations of the poet's friends for its possession and disposal; and depositions of the old fishermen and other local persons who witnessed the last scene on the beach at Viareggio." Academy, 1898.

- Dowden, Edward. Life of Percy Bysshe Shelley. 2v.
1886.92 S545d
"He has condensed the old Shelley papers by Hogg, Peacock, Trelawney, Medwin, Hunt, Lady Shelley, Stockdale, and other lesser writers, the correspondence and diaries of Godwin, and the modern investigations of Garnett, Rossetti, Forman, and Shelley students of less note; and he has amplified the biography constructed from these sources by manuscript papers of the Shelley family and others...The work is necessarily henceforth the authority for the facts of Shelley's career. It is in a strict sense a biography. It deals with the events of his life, and touches only incidentally and briefly his works and genius, his contemporaries, and the history of his times." Nation, 1887.

- Salt, Henry Stephens. Percy Bysshe Shelley. 1892.....92 S545sa
"Written from the point of view of intimate sympathy with the poet's doctrines and personal character...The book is both brief and pleasant to read, and leaves a much clearer impression on the mind than Mr.
Sharp's book does; and, although it is a less cultured and judicial performance than Mr. Symonds's little volume, it has a more distinct aim and unity, and deserves an equal popularity. Its aim is to depict Shelley as the writer feels he was, and what Mr. Salt feels Shelley was is simply an advanced embodiment of the higher civilization which it should be the aim of man's existence to attain." Athenæum, 1888.

- Sharp, William. Life of Percy Bysshe Shelley. 1887.

"Mr. Sharp has been at pains to give a fair summary of the facts before him, while Mr. Anderson's bibliography, appended to Mr. Sharp's 'Life,' is a useful contribution to the literature of the subject. Mr.
Sharp's work is not that of a partisan; indeed, it seems to betray almost too slight an interest in Shelley for the attainment of a high position."

Personal memoirs. 2v. 1888.....92 S552i

The same. 2v. 1888.....r92 S552i

"As a book for general reading, Sheridan's Memoirs have attractive features that will insure success...For purpose of permanent history, one could wish that the aim had been less popular and more critical; but a long narrative by so distinguished an officer in a great war cannot lack value, even when the narrative is cursory and superficial." Nation, 1889.

SHERIDAN, Richard Brinsley Butler.

Fitzgerald, Percy. Lives of the Sheridans. 2v. 1886.....92 S552f

"Seems to hold a brief against the man whose life he is writing...Those who have read any of his books will know just what to expect in this last, and they will not be disappointed when they find contradictory inaccuracies, a bustling vivacity, a general slovenliness, and a most interesting subject...The most valuable part of Mr. Fitzgerald's volumes is devoted to Mrs. Norton...The account of another gifted member of this singularly gifted family, the late Sheridan Le Fanu, the novelist, is also welcome. The few pages given to Sheridan Knowles, the dramatist, are altogether inadequate. Nor is the treatment of 'Tom' Sheridan or of the other children besides Mrs. Norton at all satisfactory." Nation, 1887.

Oliphant, Mrs Margaret Oliphant (Wilson). Sheridan.

[1883.] (English men of letters.)92 S552o

"Mrs. Oliphant thinks Sheridan has been overrated. Her sketch of him and his writings appears designed to emphasize this view...Not only in the general view of Sheridan which Mrs. Oliphant takes is there much that provokes dissent, but in particular remarks there is some lack of accuracy." Athenaeum, 1883.

Rae, William Fraser. Sheridan; a biography. 2v. 1896....92 S552r

"Mr. Rae has told the romantic and diversified story of Sheridan's career well and temperately...His book at once takes its place as the standard one on the subject—the one in which the real Sheridan, as contradistinguished from the half-mythical Sheridan of previous memoirs, is portrayed with all attainable clearness. To release this brilliant and singularly winning and humane figure from the region of largely calumnious fiction was a worthy task; and Mr. Rae has done it...satisfactorily." Dial, 1896.

Sanders, Lloyd Charles. Life of Richard Brinsley Sheridan. [1890.] (Great writers.)92 S552sa

Bibliography, apx. p.1-11.

"By a stroke of good fortune, the author of the 'School for Scandal' has at last found a friendly biographer...Watkins was a political opponent; Moore was a trifler who betrayed his hero; Prof. Smyth was another traitor...and Mrs. Oliphant combined the acme of incompetence with the utmost carelessness...Mr. Sanders is not blind to Sheridan's very obvious faults, and he makes no attempt to gloss over his many failings. He has gone to the sources for his facts, although he is able to add but little to the discoveries of earlier investigators, except possibly in his fuller use of more recent political biographies to illustrate Sheridan's public life." Nation, 1891.

SHERMAN, John.

Recollections of forty years. 2v. 1895.....92 S553I

The same. 2v. 1895.....92 S553I

"Ends with the convening of Congress, Dec. 1894. It is a very frank self-revelation. The long public career of the author-subject (began 1854) and especially his identification with the financial history of the U. S. during and since the Civil War, make his book a history of American politics for the period. It is, however, the work of a strong party man, and is also written largely from recollections without sufficient verifications. The book is unequal, the interest continuous. It may also be especially consulted for the political history of Ohio. Though written entertainingly, it makes no effort at literary finish." Larned's Literature of American history.

The same. 2v. 1892.....92 S553

The later edition contains an additional chapter on General Sherman's last years, death and funeral.

"The free use he makes of his letters, orders, and reports gives a very great interest and value to his book. He is never dull, and he contrives to break up and enliven even the accounts of the movements of troops so that the attention never seriously flags...His memoirs close with the great review in Washington, but he appends a concluding chapter on the military lessons of the war, which is full of knowledge, wisdom, and sound sense." Atlantic monthly, 1875.

SHERMAN, Gen. William Tecumseh, & John.

Sherman letters. 1894.....92 S553s

"These letters of two brothers to each other cover a period from 1837 to 1891...Not only an interesting illustration of the constant affection of two strong and famous men, widely different in character, but add many lines to the portraiture of contemporary character. They also assist in the proper interpretation of critical events of the Civil War period. General Sherman's letters are particularly frank and energetically express his antagonism to politicians and political methods." Larned's Literature of American history.

SHERMAN, Gen. William Tecumseh.

Bowman, Samuel M. & Irwin, R. B. Sherman and his campaings; a military biography. 1865.....92 S553b

"Although among the earliest of the lives of Sherman, this was among the most authentic. It was written by officers who served with Sherman, and were given access to his papers. They also had the coöperation of leading generals and others who had part in the events narrated. The book is well and clearly written, but is of course subject to the drawback that the Official records were not then available, and many important topics were not fully understood. It was, however, a leading authority till Sherman published his own memoirs ten years later." Larned's Literature of American history.

Force, Gen. Manning Ferguson. General Sherman. 1899.

Jacob Cox, who is, therefore, responsible for the latter...part of the biography...Gen. Cox, an admirable officer in many of the campaigns which he describes, also enjoyed a long personal friendship with Sherman...The early portions of the book are of unequal satisfactoriness as a specific biography of the man." Nation, 1899.

It is a careful reprint from Tegg's edition of 1843 of the 'Memoirs' first published in 1829...The story he tells in his own characteristic fashion is full of varied interest lightened by an atmosphere of sprightly and luxuriant humour." Athenæum, 1890.

List of principal authorities, p.9-10.

"Mr. Fox Bourne's claim to write about Sidney is well established. His original 'Memoir of Sir Philip Sidney' is among the best things of its kind. Critics have rejoiced...to throw it in the teeth of succeeding commentators, and, in a word, the first serious rival of Mr. Fox Bourne A. D. '62 is Mr. Fox Bourne A. D. '92. The thirty years have perhaps shed as much light on the period of Sidney as on any other in literature. And the light has so shone on Mr. Bourne that he tells his story afresh, disowning...certain hot errors of his youthful blood... In a marked degree he succeeds in picturing to us the possibilities of noble boyhood and manhood in Elizabethan days. But it is Sidney for Sidney's sake who has our interest and attention throughout the volume." Athenæum, 1892.

"There are plenty of readers who will doubtless be fascinated by Mr. Symonds's well-written narrative, which rightly treats Sidney as something more than a man of letters, and the critical expositions of Sidney's writings will certainly be of service to those who do not possess Sidney's books. But the biography is little more than a résumé of Mr. Fox Bourne's well-known work." Athenæum, 1887.

of Sixtus the Fifth. 2v. 1872...92 S625h

Pope from 1585 to 1590.

"Within two years he issued seventy-two bulls for the reform of religious orders alone...Left the reputation of a zealous and austere pope—with the pernicious qualities inseparable from such a character in his age—of a stern and terrible but just and magnanimous temporal magistrate, of a great sovereign in an age of great sovereigns...Most valuable part of [the book] is the rich appendix of documents." Richard Garnett, in Encyclopædia Britannica.

SMETHAM, James.

Letters, with an introductory memoir; ed. by Sarah Smet-ham and William Davies. 1892.....r92 S638 Smetham (1821-89) was an English artist and essayist.
"Smetham's familiar letters...possess a high...interest. They are to a certain extent prepared compositions, owing to his habit of noting down his thoughts for future use, but this does not interfere with their ease and freshness. Written from a full heart on the wide range of subjects which interested him, they have the first qualification of good letter-writing—vitality." Dictionary of national biography.

"It is hastily assumed in some quarters that Adam Smith as an economic thinker has become antiquated. This book is the outcome of a desire, long entertained, to show the vitality of the principles which underlie Smith's great work, and to trace their relation to the fruitful generalisations associated with the Evolution theory." Preface.

"Upon the whole, we think that Mr. Rae has performed a difficult task with a good degree of success. He cannot be said to have reanimated his subject, and brought him before us as a living and speaking man. The outlines of the portrait are faint and the colors are dim. But students of economics and of the art of government will be glad to have all the relics of their great teacher collected and arranged with the respectful care shown by Mr. Rae." Nation, 1895.

SMITH, Mrs Elizabeth (Grant).

Memoirs of a Highland lady, 1797-1830; ed. by Lady Strachey. 1898.....r92 S646
Written to interest the children and nieces of the author in the scenes of her early life.

"In its way the chronicle is a very intimate one, for it tells the whole inner history of a respectably important family, tells it, too, with no omissions of darker scenes, till one is fairly forced into a lively interest in the whole kin. We hear of the early days in Lincoln's Inn Fields and of the holidays at watering places; then of the long years in the Highlands, varied with seasons in Edinburgh...The style is without art, but direct, vivid, and at times fired with genuine emotion."

SMITH, Sir Harry George Wakelyn.

Autobiography of Sir Harry Smith, baronet of Aliwal on the Sutlej; ed. with supplementary chapters of G. C. M. Smith. 2v. 1902.....92 S649
Bibliography, v.1, p.19.

"It is characteristic of Sir Harry Smith that he wrote the greater part of his autobiography in two months. Nearly six hundred pages, alive with energy, were 'scrawled over by him at full gallop' between August 11th, 1844, and October 15th...Few men ever saw wider or harder service. Africa knew him, and India. At Aliwal he won perhaps his chiefest triumph, and in South Africa he has left at Aliwal North, at Harrismith, and at Ladysmith the memory of his achievements...Harry Smith ranks among the happiest men that ever lived. But the book is not only happy; it is packed with military wisdom...and all soldiers may study it with profit." Spectator, 1901.

SMITH, James, 1775-1839.

Beavan, Arthur H. James and Horace Smith; a family narrative, based upon hitherto unpublished private diaries, letters and other documents. 1899.....92 S651b
An interesting picture of London life in the early 19th century. Both brothers acquired some literary fame, and conjointly wrote a rather clever collection of parodies entitled "Rejected addresses."

SMITH, Sir James Edward.

Memoir and correspondence. 2v. 1832.....92 S651
One of the most distinguished English botanists (1759-1828), author of many books, among them the work generally known as Sowerby's "English botany." By the excellent scholarship, agreeable style and happy illustration of his books and lectures he did much to popularize the study of botany.

Reid, Stuart J. Sketch of the life and times of Sydney Smith; based on family documents and the recollections of personal friends. 1884.....92 S661r English clergyman, wit and essayist (1771-1845).
"The main facts of Sydney Smith's life were so clearly and gracefully set forth, and his character was in most of its aspects so fully illustrated, by Lady Holland and Mrs. Austin in the 'Life and Letters' which appeared some twenty years ago, that it was not possible for Mr. Reid to do more than gather up stray details from outside sources of information, published and unpublished, and avail himself of the opportunity afforded him of extracting from the family documents such items as it had not been thought desirable to print during the lifetime of persons to whom they partly referred. There was room for much profitable gleaning, however...and Mr. Reid has produced an interesting and useful book." Athenæum, 1884.

 Sophia Dorothea (1666-1726) was the divorced wife of George, crown prince of Hanover and later George I of England. This book is intended as a vindication of her character and conduct.
 "Much as we may sympathize with our author's motive, we cannot but very closely question the sources of his information; there is at least, as he allows, something 'very curious' in this Diary of the repudiated Princess...The doubts which we have hinted as to the genuineness of the dramatic diary, are corroborated by its internal evidence." Athenæum, 1845.

 Madame de Staal (1684-1750) at the age of 27 entered the household of the duchess of Maine as a maid-of-waiting, in which position she remained for nearly 40 years. At one time during this period she was imprisoned in the Bastille. Her memoirs contain descriptions of the manners of her time and a curious glimpse of prison life in the Bastille, but their interest is more personal than historic.

"He is evidently well acquainted with his heroine's actual writings and he has usually (a very weak point with his countrymen) read what foreigners have to say of her...He is, though distinctly apologetic...by no means uncritical, and his own intimate acquaintance with the politics of the period adds to his competence for dealing with the subject. We know no book which we could so well recommend to any one who wished to acquire a general impression of the author of 'Corinne.'" Athenæum, 1891.

Stevens, Abel. Madame de Staël; a study of her life and times, the first revolution and the first empire. 2v.

"Dr. Stevens has consulted almost everything available, and has digested the whole into a narrative which is sufficiently readable, accompanying it with criticisms of the work as well as of the life of his subject. Both as a biographer and as a critic he is far too laudatory. His reiterated statement that Madame de Staël is the first of women authors is almost ludicrously exaggerated." Athenæum, 1881.

Bulgarian statesman (1855-95).

"Political partisanship runs too high in Bulgaria for the truth easily to be made known, and the author of the present book frankly tells us that he writes from the point of view of the friends of the murdered minister. Nevertheless, he is fair enough...It comes out clearly that Prince Alexander was merely a handsome puppet, and that the whole credit for his military successes must be ascribed to Stambuloff. On the other hand, the reckless violence of Stambuloff is clearly established even by a friendly pen." Athenæum, 1895.

 English scholar and divine (1815-81).
 "Dean Stanley's biographer has tried rather a dangerous experiment in publishing a sort of supplement to the 'Life and Letters.' It inevitably covers much the same ground as the earlier work...On the whole, however, the correspondence, if judged on its own merits, seems quite worth giving to the world. It is also the case that whereas the biography dealt, for the most part, with Dean Stanley the theologian, the present collection throws fresh and interesting light on that far more fascinating being Dean Stanley the man." Athenaeum, 1895.
- Bradley, George Granville. Recollections of Arthur Penrhyn Stanley. 1883.....92 S787b
 "Within the compass of a hundred and fifty pages Dr. Bradley has contrived to give an animated and interesting account of his lamented predecessor in the Deanery of Westminster...He lays just emphasis on Stanley's courtesy, his unflinching charity, his noble courage, his eagerness to see what is good in the opinions of those from whom he differed, his hatred of oppression and sympathy with the oppressed. The style is sometimes too rhetorical, but in popular lectures such a fault is excusable." Athenaeum, 1883.

In 1796 she was married to Mr Stanley, afterwards Lord Stanley of Alderley. These delightful, entertaining letters give an excellent picture of the every-day life of her time.
- STANTON, Edwin McMasters.
 Gorham, George Congdon. Life and public services of Edwin M. Stanton. 2v. 1899.....92 S7922g
 Although this work contains a sketch of Stanton's early life, his professional career and his general characteristics, its main purpose is to present the record of his relation to the Civil war, and to mark the place in history to which his services to the country entitled him. His public life embraced the secession winter of 1860-61, three years of the Civil war—1862-65, and three years of the reconstruction struggle which followed. Mr Gorham, who describes President Lincoln's great war secretary, was an intimate friend and great admirer of Mr Stan-

"Macaulay's sinister dislike and Thackeray's warm affection have created a Steele for us; and, different as their judgments are, the divergence springs rather from their temperaments than from their conceptions of the culprit's career. Mr. Dobson suggests...that the flings of the one and the condonements of the other of the two great literary portrait painters are too much in one tone of color. For himself, he has tried, though against tremendous rhetorical odds, to give us only a natural picture." Nation, 1886.

"In Mr. Montgomery we recognize much industry, with a want of power to grapple with his subject...Although he has nothing new to say of Steele, he might have put together in one volume all that is important, of what has been said of, or by, 'poor Dick,' and he might at least have drawn some new inferences from old evidence, the bearing of which has escaped the observation of other writers. But Mr. Montgomery had a pair of panniers to fill, and he has cared for nothing but the filling of them." Athenaeum, 1865.

duction by Sidney Colvin. 2v. 1899.....92 S848l

"The shelf of our library that contains our best letter-writers is considerably furnished, but not overcrowded; and its glory is not too great to keep Stevenson from there finding a place with the very first... He never fails of the thing that we most love letters for, the full expression of the moment and the mood...the thing in his head, his heart or his house...The ego does, magnificently, shine—which is much the best thing that, in any correspondence, it can ever do... The impression, for the reader of the later letters, is...one of singular beauty—of deepening talent, of happier and richer expression, and, above all, of a sort of ironic, desperate gallantry, burning away, with a finer and finer fire, in a strange, alien air." Henry James, in North American review, 1900.

Stevensoniana; a reprint of various literary and pictorial miscellany associated with Robert Louis Stevenson, the man and his work. 1900.....92 S848st

Medley of fragments by and about Stevenson. Includes a short article by Stevenson entitled "Books which have influenced me," a sketch of Mrs Stevenson, one about Stevenson's love of music, an account of a visit to Stevenson's Pacific isle, a review of his later "Letters" by S. R. Crockett, and some short paragraphs of appreciation and homage by various writers.

Vailima letters; being correspondence addressed to Sidney

Colvin. 2v. 1895.....92 S848v2

The same. 1896.....92 S848v

These letters extending from Nov. 1890 to Oct. 1894, were written to Mr Sidney Colvin with the idea of giving him and Mr Stevenson's other friends in England full and regular account of his life in the new world in which his health obliged him to live. Begun without a thought of publication, he put into them so much of his life and thought that finally, in June 1892, it occurred to him that "some kind of a book" might be made of them after his death, and upon this suggestion Mr Colvin has acted; but after, as before, that date there is not the slightest suggestion in Mr Stevenson's manner that he was writing for an audience of more than one. The interest of these letters is manifold. Unconsciously they reveal the author's personality, they tell of his thoughts, his interests, his pleasures in his South sea home, and, by no means least, they contain a full record of his literary work during this period.

"They unite the exotic interest of a book of travels with the record of a literary life, and in both these phases present the self-painted portrait of a man of genius, who for a brief space exercised a larger personal sway than any other literary worker of his generation." Nation, 1896.

(Famous Scots series.).....92 S848b

"Sympathetic it is undoubtedly, and it possesses the negative virtue of avoiding that conscientious malevolence which...has decried the life and work of Edgar Poe. But here its merits end. The writer knew Stevenson in his early Edinburgh days, but she throws practically no new light of any value on that period." Athenæum, 1898.

Contents: His heritage.—His ancestry.—Outline of his life.—The moralist.—The artist.—The romantic.—The novelist.—The limner of landscape.—His style.—Epilogue.

No attempt is made to give new biographical details. It is rather an essay toward a "just appreciation of Stevenson's personality and temperament as shown in his finished achievement."

burgh days. 1898.....92 S848s

"It is in the spirit of semi-idolatry which the brave spirit and wayward charm of Stevenson the man roused in many who knew him, that this book is written...In spite of all this, it gives a pleasant notion of Stevenson's parents, his nurse, to whom his life-long devotion was most creditable, and himself." Nation, 1899.

STEWART, Admiral Charles, 1778-1869.

Biographical sketch and services of Commodore Charles

Stewart of the navy of the United States. [Anonymous.] 1838.....92 S849

Served in the operations against Tripoli in 1804 and in the War of 1812.

Afterwards rendered important services in the organization of the navy, and during the Civil war was raised to the rank of rear-admiral.

STILLMAN, William James.

Autobiography of a journalist. 2v. 1901.....92 S857

Appeared in an abridged form in the "Atlantic monthly," v.85, 1900.

"Mr. Stillman's account of his early ventures in journalism...in political conspiracy (he became associated with Kossuth in 1852 and went to Europe on a secret mission for him), in 'roughing it' in the Adirondack wilderness, is followed by the charming episode of the 'Adirondack Club'—one of the richest chapters in the book... Mr. Stillman was consul at Rome in the early sixties, and... deals very frankly with the then moral and political condition of the papal city... Second volume is devoted mainly to his consular experiences in Crete, and his adventures in the Balkan countries and the Levant... as foreign correspondent of the 'Times' and other newspapers... Eastern questions, and Greek and Italian politics and politicians are interestingly discussed." Dial, 1901.

STOBO, Maj. Robert.

Memoirs of Maj. Robert Stobo of the Virginia regiment;

[ed. by N. B. Craig]. 1854.....92 S863

The same. 1854.....r92 S863

Stobo was one of the hostages confined in Fort Duquesne after the surrender of Fort Necessity, and furnished to the Americans a plan of the fort and a scheme for its reduction. When this was discovered by the French, he was closely confined in Quebec, but finally escaped. This edition is from a manuscript copy of the rare first edition in the British museum, with notes and a facsimile of Stobo's plan of Fort Duquesne.

English statesman (1593-1641).

"Well-written sketch of 'the historical representative of the Absolutist cause.' Mr. Traill maintains successfully the theory of Wentworth's apostacy from the parliamentary party." Dial, 1890.

STRATFORD de REDCLIFFE, Stratford Canning, viscount.

Poole, Stanley Lane-. Life of Lord Stratford de Redcliffe.

1890.92 S898p

Lord Stratford de Redcliffe (1786-1880) was eminent in the English diplomatic service during his long public career, but his most distinguished and valuable service was at Constantinople, where he was minister at different times from 1810 to 1858.

Condensed from the edition in two volumes published in 1888, chiefly by the omission of the longer dispatches and memoranda.

"Never before, or since, has a Christian exercised such a sway or held such a place as he did in the Moslem Empire, and his iron rule, as it is [here] described...leaves a powerful impression of his strength, resolution, sagacity, and lofty conception of his duties." Spectator, 1888.

The same. 1891. (In Ruthven's Murder of Rizzio.).....r941 R93

The Young Pretender was leader of the insurrection for the recovery of the British crown for his father. He was defeated at the battle of Culloden moor (1746).

Lang, Andrew. Companions of Pickle; a sequel to "Pickle the spy." 1898.....92 S929la

Studies of persons connected with Prince Charles and the Jacobite movement of 1745, with further evidence to prove the identity of Pickle and Alastair Ruadh Macdonnell of Glengarry.

Lang, Andrew. Pickle the spy; or, The incognito of Prince

Charles. 1897.....92 S929l

The subject of the book is the mysterious disappearance of Prince Charles from 1749 to 1766. Author seeks to identify Pickle the spy with Alastair Ruadh Macdonnell of Glengarry.

"It is of supreme importance as dealing a fatal blow—and one driven home with great ability and Voltairean decision—to British belief in the Young Pretender, and the nobility of the Jacobite chiefs." Spectator, 1897.

Lang, Andrew. Prince Charles Edward. 1900.....qr92 S929l

"Mr. Lang has never been more happily inspired than in this study of the...last conspicuous Prince of an ill-fated house, and the centre of a movement which he did not understand [Jacobitism]. He has invested the whole narrative, splendid and sordid, with an unreal, fairy tale atmosphere, which is the true one." Spectator, 1900.

The make-up of the book is unusually good, with many portraits.

STUART, Gilbert Charles. See Artists, p.1251.

STUART, Lady Louisa.

Selections from her manuscripts; ed. by Hon. James Home.

1899.92 S931

The author was the youngest daughter of John, third earl of Bute, prime minister at the beginning of the reign of George III. During her long life, from 1757 to 1851, she constantly met noted men and women of the period.

Abbott, John Stevens Cabot. Peter Stuyvesant. 1898....j92 S938a

Tuckerman, Bayard. Peter Stuyvesant. 1893. (Makers of America.)92 S938t

"Useful and well-written account of the life of Stuyvesant and of the history of New Netherland during the last twenty years of its existence. The book also contains, in an introductory chapter, a sketch of the origin of the province and of its progress previous to the beginning of Stuyvesant's administration...One chapter contains a compact and valuable account of the topography and social condition of New Amsterdam just before the English conquests." Larned's Literature of American history.

SULLIVAN, Sir Arthur Seymour.

1900.92 S949l

"Complete list of Sir Arthur Sullivan's work, compiled by Wilfrid Bendall," p.329-340.

Sketch of the well-known composer of "The Mikado" and "Pinafore."

"Put together by Mr. Arthur Lawrence, but with much aid, apparently, from Sir Arthur himself—in fact, the volume is a notable specimen of what may be called 'biography by interview.'" Academy, 1899.

SUMNER, Charles.

Dawes, Anna Laurens. Charles Sumner. 1892. (Makers of America.)92 S956d

Somewhat unsympathetic, but carefully prepared and admirably written.

"Interesting and well written book devoted chiefly to the public career of Sumner, but giving a good portrayal of his personal and social characteristics...The author is strongly in sympathy with the anti-slavery cause but does not indulge in indiscriminate praise of Sumner." Larned's Literature of American history.

Pierce, Edward Lillie. Memoir and letters of Charles

Sumner. v.1-2. 1877.....r92 S956p

"For the rise of the slavery issue, the legislation of the period of Civil War and Reconstruction, and the history of the foreign relations of the United States from 1861 to 1871, this work is almost indispensable. Mr. Pierce was a lifelong friend of Sumner, and has edited his letters with the greatest care. The accompanying memoir is remarkably fair and judicious. The first two volumes are more important for the intellectual and social history of New England than for national history." Larned's Literature of American history.

Storey, Moorfield. Charles Sumner. 1900. (American statesmen.)92 S956s

- The same.* 1900. (American statesmen.).....r92 S956s
 "There was, in truth, no chance for Mr. Storey to display originality in research...but there was a rare opportunity to rearrange the topics and the colors and to analyze Sumner's impressive character. The opportunity has been improved to a considerable degree, but...the book lacks vivacity and a literary touch." Nation, 1900.

SUNDERLAND, Dorothy Sidney, countess of.

- Cartwright, Julia Mary, afterward Mrs Ady. Sacharissa; some account of Dorothy Sidney, countess of Sunderland, her family and friends, 1617-1684. 1893.....r92 S958c
 The subject of this biography is the beautiful Dorothy Sidney immortalized by the poet Waller and the artist Van Dyck, and of whom Steele wrote in the Tatler, "The fine women nowadays are at best but pretty girls to me who have seen Sacharissa, when all the world repeated the poems she inspired." She was the daughter of Robert, earl of Leicester, the sister of Algernon Sidney and of Henry Sidney, earl of Romney, while the famous George Savile (Lord Halifax) was her son-in-law. Her life was a meeting point of so many distinguished men and women and was so identified with the society and politics of her time that it serves well as the centre of a narrative like this.

SWIFT, Jonathan, dean.

- Unpublished letters; ed. by G. B. Hill. 1899.....r92 S977
The same. 1899.....r92 S977
 These letters were written between 1714 and 1731 to an Anglo-Irish squire, Knightley Chetwode, and are mostly occupied with Chetwode's own private affairs, though they settle one or two doubtful points concerning Swift's work. Dr Hill's notes are all helpful to readers unacquainted with Swift, and some of his information is not elsewhere accessible. Illustrated.

- Craik, Sir Henry. Life of Jonathan Swift. 2v. 1894.....r92 S977c
 "The first attempt in our own times to give to the public a finished biography of the satirist [1667-1745] who exercised such strange power over his contemporaries...The biographer evidently writes with a strong sympathy for his subject, but he rarely allows himself to become a mere partisan...It is to be regretted that his style is somewhat monotonous and wanting in vivacity...But the work shows much industry and research, and in some instances the author has been fortunate enough to gain access to documents which have hitherto been either unknown or overlooked." Athenæum, 1883.

- Stephen, Sir Leslie. Swift. [1882.] (English men of letters.)r92 S977s
 "Perhaps, too much space is devoted, in this brief biography, to the part played by Swift as a politician; and yet we scarcely like to hint at a fault in this direction, for nowhere have we met with an account of Swift's public career so concise and so comprehensive. That the little volume should be entirely satisfactory to the student of the period is impossible, for Mr. Stephen has been forced to write, as it were, in shorthand, but the general reader will gain all that he is likely to ask for from this admirably-written narrative." Spectator, 1882.

SWING, David.

- Trial of David Swing before the presbytery of Chicago; ed.

 American Presbyterian minister (1830-94), who was tried for heresy in 1874 and acquitted.

SWISSHELM, Mrs Jane Grey (Cannon).

- Half a century. 1880.....r92 S979
 Author (1815-84) was a Pittsburgh woman, for many years prominent as an abolitionist and champion of woman's rights.

SYDENHAM, Thomas.

- Payne, Joseph Frank. Thomas Sydenham. 1900. (Masters of medicine.).....92 S982p
 "References and authorities," p.255-256.
 Sydenham (1624-89) was an eminent English physician and the great reformer of practical medicine.
 "The fullest biography yet written [1900] of this famous seventeenth-century physician." Academy, 1900.

SYMONDS, John Addington.

- Brown, Horatio Robert Forbes. John Addington Symonds; a biography compiled from his papers and correspondence. 2v. 1895.....92 S988b
 "One who of all the men of our generation best knew, loved, and understood the Italian genius in literature." Frederic Harrison.
 "Symonds was one of the most lovable of men: brave in his outlook, courageous in the face of adverse and often disastrous circumstances, youthfully enthusiastic...generous, a nature of sweet human sunshine...He was a scholar in the best sense of the word: a man of catholic culture. There has, in our time, been no mind more sensitive to beauty." William Sharp, in Academy, 1895.
 Mr Brown, whom Mr Symonds asked to be his literary executor, has very wisely supplemented Mr Symonds's autobiography by many letters and extracts from diaries and note books, and has been unusually successful in putting these together into a consecutive narrative.

 These memoirs of the celebrated French statesman and diplomat (1754-1838) according to his directions were first published 50 years after his death.
 "The most experienced and sagacious of men discourses about certain selected events that concerned him, and passes sentence on two generations of contemporaries...Nothing could increase the lustre of the talents which he is known...to have displayed...but we are made to know him better; and all that he says and much that he conceals brings into vivid light one of the wonders of modern politics." Lord Acton, in Nineteenth century, 1891.

 Bibliography of Taylor's works, p.299-307.

"Mr. Smyth has drawn his materials for this book mainly from the full biography of Taylor which was made soon after his death by his wife and Mr. Horace E. Scudder...The...letters...are quoted freely...and the writer has availed himself of Mrs. Taylor's manuscript collections and of the letters and reminiscences of many friends...Mr. Smyth has spent more of his strength upon the man's personality and the circumstances of his wide experience than on the criticism of his work." Nation, 1896.

- Taylor, Mrs Marie (Hansen); & Scudder, H. E. Life and letters of Bayard Taylor. 2v. 1885.....92 T251t
 The story of the life of the well-known author and traveler (1825-78) is told largely in his letters.

"The work has been done not only with affection, but with judgment and good taste. The result is a finished and accurate picture of a most attractive subject." Atlantic monthly, 1880.

TAYLOR, Sir Henry.

- Autobiography, 1800-1875. 2v. 1885.....92 T253
 Sir Henry Taylor is perhaps best known as the author of the drama,

"Philip Van Artevelde," but he also wrote other plays, was a warm friend of Southey and well known to many leading men of letters.

TEMPLE, Dorothy (Osborne), lady.

Letters to Sir William Temple, 1652-54; ed. by E. A. Parry. 1888.92 T283l

"Dorothy's letters tell the story of this old-time courtship from its commencement to its happy termination, and reveal to us the singularly noble and attractive personality of Lady Temple...The letters are written in a very agreeable style, and show the courtly negotiator of the 'Triple alliance' in a pleasanter light than that in which we have heretofore seen him." Dial, 1889.

To the outline of the chief incidents in the life of the poet, the author has added critical estimates of his work, taken both from English and foreign sources.

Horton, Robert Forman. Alfred Tennyson; a saintly life.

1900.92 T295h

"We do not think that it is judicious to attempt any change in the established connotation of the word 'saint.' So much we feel bound to say, but we have no fault to find with the general tone and temper of Dr. Horton's book. It is a very able criticism of the poet's life and work, and sets forth appreciatively, but without exaggeration, his great service to human faith and morals." Spectator, 1900.

Lang, Andrew. Alfred Tennyson. 1901. (Modern English writers.).....92 T295l

The material for the biography is taken from the life of the poet by his son, but that part is very short, and the chief value of the work lies in its impartial, yet sympathetic criticism of the poetry.

Rawnsley, Hardwicke Drummond. Memories of the Tennysons. 1900.....92 T295r

"The Rawnsleys for two generations were born and bred in the region where Tennyson received his first impressions, among the scenes so often celebrated in his poems...There are...chapters...on the poet's funeral, on 'Virgil and Tennyson,' and on Charles Tennyson Turner...The sixteen illustrations are mostly unfamiliar, and add to the interest of the book." Nation, 1901.

- Tennyson, Hallam, lord. Alfred, lord Tennyson; a memoir. 2v. 1897.....92 T295t
 "He enables us to look behind the curtain, to see the artist at work, and it is this which raises the biography to a rank in the first order of such writing...It is a record, so full as perhaps has never before been given to the world, of the growth and progress of the mind of a great imaginative artist." Edmund Gosse, in North American review, 1897.
- Waugh, Arthur. Alfred, lord Tennyson; a study of his life and work. 1896.....92 T295w
 "It is scholarly and unhysterical; the narrative part is a remarkably full and careful cento taken from the journals, memoirs and correspondence of the age, arranged in excellent taste, and the criticism, if sometimes a little...timid, is sound and wholesome...A valuable feature of Mr. Waugh's book is the prominence it gives to a consideration of the plays." Saturday review, 1892.

- THACKERAY, William Makepeace.
 Collection of letters of Thackeray, 1847-1855. 1889.....92 T333
 Nearly all of these letters were written by Thackeray to his friends the Brookfields.
 "The collection covers eight years of Thackeray's mature life. It is composed of every-day notes, written from the club or his lodgings about the things of the hour; or of longer letters of travel, sent from some watering-place on the continent, or some country retreat in England, or from Paris...They are for the most part entirely personal, and describe what happened to himself, or confide the moods that visited him; and, too, they are especially the letters of a novelist,—the world that he sees is the very same that he writes about." Atlantic monthly, 1887.

 Begun by Merivale, who was a personal friend of Thackeray, but who had to give up the work on account of ill health, the biography was continued by Marzials.  Written from 1856 to 1894.
 "In the faith that she was a woman of radiant nature, they [the editors] have shown her almost exclusively from the side of her affections. Incidentally, of course, the reader gets glimpses of her relation to wider interests in the world of thought and action, but for the most part the narrative is one of the affectionate duties and interests of Celia Thaxter as wife, mother, daughter, and friend." Nation, 1895.

THOMAS à BECKET, St.

Abbott, Edwin Abbott. St. Thomas of Canterbury; his death and miracles. 2v. 1898.....92 T3731a
"The work falls into two parts. In the first, Dr. Abbott compares, incident by incident, the various narratives of the martyrdom given by St. Thomas's biographers...with the object not merely of ascertaining the facts, but also of determining the relative value, as a witness, of each...and of establishing the causes on which that value depends...The second part...deals with the miracles wrought upon believers in the martyr, which began immediately upon his death." Academy, 1898.

"The biography here presented has been taken from Dean Milman's great history of Latin Christianity." Preface.

Thompson, Robert Anchor. Thomas Becket; martyr, patriot. 1889.....92 T3731t
Mr Thompson seeks to prove that Thomas à Becket did not seek ecclesiastical privileges to gratify personal ambition, but in order to better resist the tyranny of the English crown.

THOMAS AQUINAS, St.

Vaughan, Roger William Bede, abp. Life and labours of Saint Thomas of Aquin; abridged and ed. by Jerome Vaughan. 1890.....92 T3732v Eminent scholastic teacher of the 13th century. He was the author of numerous works, theological, moral and metaphysical.
"The best account of the life of St. Thomas Aquinas and his times it has been our good fortune to peruse in English or in any other language." Athenæum, 1872.

THOMAS, Gen. George Henry.

Coppée, Henry. General Thomas. 1893. (Great commanders.)92 T373c
American general (1816-70), who won distinction in the Mexican war and later in the Civil war, on the Union side.
"He has found it easy to eulogize his hero without vilifying others... The author's characterizations of Gen. Thomas are happy, both in the development of the man in the earlier chapters, and in the summary near the end of the book. The military preëminence which is attributed to him over all his contemporaries will not be accepted as the final verdict." Nation, 1894.

Van Horne, Thomas Budd. Life of General George H.

Thomas. 1882.....92 T373v

"The author has probably injured General Thomas, rather than honored him, by his ill-advised attempt to clear him of the charge of slowness at Nashville...He has not carefully analyzed the situation, but has gathered a formidable number of criticisms and suspicions and has failed to refute them. Instead...he has contented himself with sweeping assertions, with condemning the military plans of every officer to whom Thomas was subordinate, and with depreciating the services of other commanders." Larned's Literature of American history.

Bibliography, p.215-235.

An enlargement of a short monograph originally prepared for the Historical society of Montgomery county (Pa.). Thomson was elected secretary of the Continental congress in 1774 and retained the position till 1789. He had great influence, and was called "the soul of that political body." His translation of the Bible contained the first English version of the Septuagint that had been published at that time and was considered a great credit to American scholarship.

"Includes apparently all the letters in Emerson's edition of 1865...Mr. Sanborn's additional matter is of two kinds—letters of Thoreau's not hitherto published in a book, and a good deal of editorial matter, rich in personal recollection and the fruit of much research...Moreover,

Mr. Sanborn has made good his purpose in undertaking a new collection, namely, to show Thoreau in a less aloof and stoical aspect than Emerson deliberately singled out." Nation, 1894.

"Mr. Channing's self-revelation is not the least valuable part of it. His thought and style are often wilfully eccentric and obscure, but there is more than enough of excellent matter, original and quoted, to condone every fault. Nothing else written about Thoreau comes so close to his life and mind as this delightful and exasperating incoherency." Nation, 1902.

Sergyeenko, P. A. How Count L. N. Tolstoy lives and works; tr. fr. the Russian by I. F. Hapgood. 1899.....92 T588s

The Russian authorities forbade any demonstration on the occasion of Count Tolstoi's 70th anniversary. The only public notice of the event was the appearance of these desultory descriptions of Tolstoi's daily life. The writer first met the great Russian author in 1892, but has come into very intimate relations with him. Many items of interest are told about the vegetarian life led by Tolstoi and his eldest daughter, and the more conventional life of Countess Tolstoi and her other children.

Adventures of a younger son. 1891. (Adventure series.)...92 T718

A narrative based partly upon Trelawny's life and partly drawn from his imagination. Trelawny (1792-1881) was an Englishman, the friend of Byron and Shelley; he fought with the former in Greece, and wrote one of the most widely read volumes about these famous men, "Records of Shelley, Byron, and the author."

TROLLOPE, Anthony.

Autobiography. 1883.....92 T761

"It will not be so much my intention to speak of the little details of my private life, as of what I, and perhaps others round me, have done in literature; of my failures and successes such as they have been, and their causes; and of the opening which a literary career offers to men and women for the earning of their bread." Author.

TRUMBULL, John, 1756-1843.

Autobiography, reminiscences and letters, from 1756 to Trumbull was governor of Connecticut, 1769-83.

"This work, though marred by serious defects, is possessed of many merits. It is based on reliable data, consisting of information furnished by papers, memoirs, and the like...Though flattering to Trumbull, it is not excessively so, and it is the only biography that has been written of a man whose career deserves greater recognition...The material, valuable and important as much of it is, is neither well sifted nor well arranged." Larned's Literature of American history.

Note upon Turgot's works, p.7-8.

Noted French statesman and financier (1727-81).

"In default of the possibility of lively narrative he has, very excusably, diverged a little into accounts of other political economists of Turgot's day, and his book is thus a treatise in little on those questions...which agitated France so much in the middle of the eighteenth century." Athenaum, 1888.

TURNER, Joseph Mallord William.

Hamerton, Philip Gilbert. Life of J. M. W. Turner. 1889..92 T865h

"As biography the 'Life of Turner' is meagre, because Turner furnished no materials for biography and left no letters or journals...But so far as the artist is concerned Mr. Hamerton has given a sober, full, and invaluable analysis of what we most want to know of him, which is at the same time one of the most valuable pieces of aesthetic writing that English literature has produced." Nation, 1879.

In 1700, after the death of Charles II of Spain, the grandson of Louis XIV of France was called to the Spanish throne under the title of Philip V. He was but 17 years old, and his queen, Maria Louise of Savoy, but 13. The youth of the couple rendered it necessary that they should have a friend and adviser, and the princess des Ursins, a Frenchwoman of noble birth and of great tact and intelligence, was chosen for this position, though nominally the camarera-mayor, or superintendent of the queen's household. For 12 years during the turmoil and chaos of the wars of the Spanish succession her power was almost absolute. Her life was full of contrasts and is of unusual interest.

- Oliphant, Mrs Margaret Oliphant (Wilson). Queen Victoria; a personal sketch. 1900.....92 V312o Pleasantly written sketch of Queen Victoria's private life, full of anecdotes showing her tact, kindness and real character from her earliest childhood. Many interesting illustrations.
 Private life of the queen, by one of Her Majesty's servants.

1897.92 V312p
Gives in the greatest detail descriptions of the queen's private houses, Osborne and Balmoral, the routine of her private life, what she eats and drinks, what she spends and how, and tells of the queen as house-keeper, as hostess, as writer and musician.
- Smith, George Barnett. Life of Queen Victoria, 1819-1897.
1897.92 V312s
Appeared first at the time of the queen's jubilee in 1887 and is brought down to 1897 by the addition of a few brief chapters. Gives full details in regard to the public appearance of royalty.

"The purpose of the following Essays is to study the strong, true and universal ideas the French Revolution took for its law, not in connection with that event, but in their relationship to what is called 'the modern spirit.'" Preface.
- Morley, John. Voltaire. 1891.....92 V378m
"This is hardly a life of Voltaire, as that word is generally understood ... It is rather a presentation of Voltaire on the supposition that we are already familiar with the main incidents of his life, and a discussion of his influence and various views... It is full of eloquent defence of Voltaire, as well as of critical estimate of his position... We commend this book for its earnestness, its impartiality of aim, and its freedom from ill-temper and fanaticism." North American review, 1872.
- Parton, James. Life of Voltaire. 2v. 1889.....92 V378p
"Genuine life of Voltaire, and not a critique upon...[his] life and character. In this respect it differs entirely from the works of Strauss and of Morley... He of course must incidentally comment upon Voltaire's position and teaching... but his real object is not to tell his readers what Mr. Parton thinks about Voltaire, but to give them full, complete, ample details as to what Voltaire himself did, wrote, spoke and thought during the course of a long existence." Nation, 1881.
- WAGNER, Richard.
Letters to Wesendonck et al.; tr. by W. A. Ellis. 1899....92 W134l Contents: To Wesendonck.—To Malwida von Meysenbug.—To Frau Elisa Wille.
"The letters forming the first group in this little collection were addressed to a friend whose acquaintance he had made at Zurich in 1852, and with whom and his wife he remained on terms of cordial friendship until his death... Had it not been for Herr Otto Wesendonck's assistance during a long crisis in Wagner's financial position, it is hard to conceive how the artist could have survived to compose his later works." Preface.

 "In no other respect is his book more impressive and affecting than in that of his complete identification of himself with his people...The vicissitudes and achievements of the Tuskegee School are exhibited in a series of pictures and contrasts that must sometimes make the reader's heart beat fast and sometimes dim his eyes...Mr. Washington has had successes that would turn the head of many a white man, but his own is right side up. It is kept so by the balance of a heart devoted to the elevation of his race." Nation, 1901.
- WASHINGTON, George.
 Daily journal in 1751-2, kept while on a tour from Virginia to the island of Barbadoes; ed. by J. M. Toner. 1892...92 W272d
 With autograph letter by J. M. Toner.
 Major Lawrence Washington was compelled through ill health to spend a winter in the tropics. His brother George was his companion. The original journal kept by the latter is in a very fragmentary and mutilated condition, this being probably the most successful reprint that can be made. Every letter and word discernible has been faithfully and literally copied.

Ford, Worthington Chauncey. George Washington. 2v.

1900.qr92 W272fo

"Mr. Ford's careful and conscientious edition of Washington's letters, and the studies which it involved, have given him special qualifications for...[this] work...Avoiding all temptations to superfluous comment or panegyric, and austere rejecting unnecessary details, he keeps the reader's eye from first to last fixed upon Washington himself, the events of whose life are narrated with a simplicity and sobriety that bring the man before us as he lived. In the portion of the narrative which deals with the military operations of the Revolution, this rigid self-restraint on the part of the biographer is especially noticeable, only so much being told as enables us to understand the position, acts, and motives of the Commander-in-Chief." Nation, 1900.
